LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Correspondence for this column should be addressed to the Editor, North-China Daily News Office, 17 The Bund, Shanghai, and marked "Letters to the Editor"

The Anglo-Saxons:
No Degeneration

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—In view of the situation in which even the Anglo-Saxon nations, two great Powers of the world, so suffer as aggressions extend here in the Far East and elsewhere in Europe, some of my Chinese friends ironically pity them as they pity the Chinese who suffer even more from invasions. My friends seem to believe that the Anglo-Saxon nations degenerate and fail in self defence, even though much less than the Chinese. And it is not easy to answer their argument which I hear. While they cannot all read B. H. Streeter's "The God Who Speaks," perhaps this quotation may help them to understand the Anglo-Saxon position a little better:

"The most fundamental difference," writes Streeter "between the Christian and the Confucian or Stoic is their attitude toward humiliation. The follower of Christ knows that it is unimportant 'to save his face.' He must be ready to own up to a moral lapse; though to do this before any fellow human being is acutely humiliating...."

Again he explains: "The actual result of ....self-identification with the Cross of Christ is liberation from the bondage of inward fears and conflicts and, in face of the world, new hope, new courage, and new power."

It is in the light like this, I hope, that my Chinese friends would eventually understand the movement in world politics of such representative Anglo-Saxons as Messrs F. D. Roosevelt and N. Chamberlain. Indeed, I may add, it is exactly in this light that their Christian fellow-Chinese are so able to hold fast their faith in China in the midst of untold loss of life, liberty, property and pursuit of happiness.

A QUAKER.

"Scrupulous Respect":
A Reader's Experience

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—After reading over the letter from POINTISLANDER it reminds me of how the Japanese respect the third nationals' rights.

I have several houses built near Kiangwan Road. For the sake of distinguishing the nationality of the owner, I used to hoist a big Union Jack in the garden since 1925.

But sin e the recent hostilities, the above-mentioned houses received more shells and/or bombs than the adjacent Chinese houses.

And up to now I refrained from protecting the damaged houses and have not received any compensation, though an official claim has been handed to the authorities concerned 12 months ago.

If they really wish to respect the rights of other nationals, why do they not pay for the damages by sending the sufferer a cheque and apologize for what they have done?

EX-KIANGWAN ROAD RESIDENT.

Surcharges:
A Belated Protest

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—I was hoping to hear that a strongly-worded protest would be entered against the continuation of surcharges, but it would appear from an article appearing in your issue of this morning, that the poor lambs who were so meekly brought to the slaughter are to be bled indefinitely.

In this connection it would be interesting to know what the surcharges collected run into per month and also the amount of the deposits held by the company on account of consumers. Perhaps some kind reader can supply these figures?

I am not a qualified accountant but it would appear that the surcharges thus collected go a long way towards helping the company pay a dividend!

Funds for Refugees:
Voluntary Tax Suggested

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—May I make use of the columns of your esteemed paper to suggest an idea to meet the new call for hospital help for European refugees referred to in the letter under the above heading in your today's issue.

I am quite certain that a regular weekly sum could be raised by instituting a voluntary tax, of say 20 cents per person, on people attending cocktail parties, of which it is fairly safe to say there are at least six a night in Shanghai, costing $150 to $200 or more. A bag or box might be put at the entrance to the house or garden, and every guest put in 20 cents. This at a moderate estimate of 300 guests per party would realize $60 per party, $360 per night, six nights a week $2,160. All nationalities would have the opportunity of taking part, and the nightly sum realized might be sent to somebody who would act as secretary and forwarded to Mr. Hayim once a week.

JOINT EFFORT.

St. Tichon's:

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—The Ladies' Committee who were responsible for organizing the street collection on June 2nd in aid of St. Tichon's Orphanage, wish to express their appreciation of the splendid response which enabled them to hand over the sum of $2,577.50 for the work of the Orphanage.

They also wish to acknowledge your courtesy in announcing the date of the collection in your columns.

Limbless Fund:
Shanghai's Generous Response

To the Editor of the
"NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS"

SIR,—On behalf of the Committee of the Limbless Soldiers and Sailors Fund, will you kindly permit us, through the medium of your paper, to express our sincere thanks to the British Community and their friends for their generous response to our appeal on Empire Day.

We are also indebted to the "North-China Daily News," "Shanghai Times," "Shanghai Evening Post & Mercury," "China Press," Union Church Committee, Mr. Adam Black, Willow Pattern Press, Scotch Bakery and to all who gave donations and helped in many other ways, we tender our grateful thanks.

Seventy Years Ago

FROM THE "NORTH-CHINA DAILY NEWS" OF JUNE 11, 1869

An American paper says special despatches from Mexico were considered in the Cabinet. They contained a proposition to cede a portion of the territory of Meixco to the United States for a certain sum, not exactly known outside of official circles, but believed to exceed $3,000,000. The territory proposed to be ceded comprises the State of Sonora, Sianloa and the eastern part of the Gulf of California. The proposition comes in the form of a protocol for a treaty, and is being negotiated principally by Senor Romero. It is made with the view of filling the coffers of the depleted Mexican treasury. It is understood that the Administration have decided on nothing.

King's Taste in Films; Last Tribute to Irving; New Career for Sir Thomas Beecham

BY CHARLES MARTIN

The King and Queen are both keen on films. They saw a dozen aboard the Empress of Australia on their way to Canada, and a further selection will be shown to their Majesties on the return journey. What films do they prefer? Who are their favourite stars?

King George and Queen Elizabeth occasionally visit a London theatre or music-hall and all such "Royal" performances are widely noted in the press. Films are sent to Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle for private showing, and their identity is kept secret. Royal interest in the screen is well known, but as a rule no publicity regarding individual choice or taste is permitted.

In the absence of any official information it is not easy to discover just what films their Majesties prefer. The secrecy observed by the authorities is criticized in some quarters. The films that go to the Royal Palaces have largely taken the place of the players who in by-gone days were commanded to appear, and who certainly did not hide their light under a bushel.

On the voyage to Canada the officials relaxed and allowed announcements of the films shown to the Royal travellers to be made public. I was not surprised to hear that "The Lambeth Walk" had been chosen, for when their Majesties saw "Me and My Girl" (from which the film was made) at the Victoria Palace, London, a few days before they sailed, their enjoyment was obvious.

Lyceum's Swan Song

Efforts are being made to ensure an appropriate "curtain" for the doomed Lyceum. Sir Henry Irving's famous régime started with "Hamlet" and it is suggested that the play should be put on as a last tribute to the great actor and a fitting swansong for the old theatre.

Little time remains for making the necessary arrangements, as the work of demolishing the theatre is due to begin at the end of June. John Gielgud, who is giving eight performances of "Hamlet" at Elsinore, Denmark, is keen on the idea. Gielgud is related to Ellen Terry, who was Irving's leading lady.

If the plan falls through, the Lyceum will end its memorable career with the celebrated blood-curdler "Dracula." In this play the final curtain is rung down on the words: "Into Thy Hands, O Lord." These are also the closing words of "Becket," the last play produced by Irving at the Lyceum. Strangely enough the prayer was also Irving's last speech. He died in a Bradford theatre almost immediately after uttering it in "Becket."

From Music to Politics

Among the members of the next Parliament is likely to be seen the picturesque figure of Sir Thomas Beecham, the famous conductor. After devoting the greater part of his life "giving opera to people who don't want it," to quote his own words, Sir Thomas is seriously considering the adoption of a political career. He is not forsaking music, but he feels that things need saying in the House of Commons, and that he is the man to say them.

At 60, Sir Thomas thinks he is "old enough to consider politics." Another prospective candidate who, however, is not waiting until he reaches that age before plunging into the political arena, is a 27-year-old New Zealander, Mr. Lucas Lowndes. Unlike Sir Thomas, he has no craving for independence. He is expected to receive the Conservative nomination for a London constituency in succession to a member who is retiring. An ancestor of Mr. Lowndes was an English M.P. 260 years ago.

Refugees Bring Food Ideas

The impact of the refugees on London life is evident in more than one sphere. For one thing, it looks as if they are gradually changing our eating habits. I have already referred to the new restaurants opened specially to cater for foreigners, and largely patronized by my countrymen as well. Now I have discovered that Continental customs are finding their way into quite a number of the existing establishments.

At one quiet but rather exclusive West End restaurant the other day I noticed a wide variety of sausages displayed temptingly. Obviously foreign, yet they looked fresh enough, I thought. On enquiry I discovered that they were made in London by refugees. There was also a Tree Cake, which is delivered about a yard high and is cut down in horizontal slices. It is made by a refugee who was once a lawyer.

Other immigrants are educating Londoners to appreciate all kinds of fancy breads, as well as many cheeses formerly made abroad and innumerable dishes hitherto strange to the average English table.

The home of clubs for a hundred years and of one club in particular, the Sports, for nearly half that period, No. 8, St. James's Square, London, has closed its doors for demolition. It was here that England Test elevens were chosen, when Lord Hawke was a power in English cricket, and it was here in more recent times that the English Rugby Union Selection Committee decided upon representative teams.

The Royal Tour

A commentary on the arrival of their Majesties the King and Queen in New York and their drive through the city, has been added to the series of descriptive broadcasts on the Royal tour that listeners to Daventry are to hear.

On June 15 the last but one of the series will be, heard, bringing to listeners overseas an actuality account of their Majesties' departure from Halifax for New foundland. This broadcast, arranged by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, will come from Halifax's splendid harbour—the third largest in the Dominion—where the Prime Minister of Canada, Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, and the Lieutenant-Governor and Prime Minister of the Province of Nova Scotia, and thousands of his Majesty's subjects will be gathered to take part in the historic occasion.

Many events in the tour will be described for listeners at Home and overseas in special talks and eye-witness accounts, illustrated by on-the-spot recordings, that the BBC's travelling observer, Richard Dimbleby, will arrange. Among the scenes that it is planned to cover in this way are:—

The laying of the corner stone of the Supreme Court Building at Ottawa by the Queen (a broadcast that will include a record of her Majest's speeches in English and French), and the unveiling of the Canadian War Memorial by the King;

Canada's official observance, on May 20, of the King's birthday, when the Brigade of Canadian Guards will troop the King's colour;

Their Majesties' reception of the Dionne Quintuplet; the presentation to the King and Queen of gifts by the Hudson's Bay Company; the King's visit to the depot of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police; a rodeo at Calgary and the presentation at this city of Indian Chiefs and Indian Deputations; and the visits to Vancouver, Victoria, and Niagara.

Scenes From Antony and Cleopatra

The last of the current series of "Scenes from the Tragedies of William Shakespeare" will be broadcast from Daventry today, when John Richmond will produce excerpts from "Antony and Cleopatra." In the part of Cleopatra listeners will hear the well-known actress, Gwen Ffrangcon-Davies, whom London audiences have seen in many of Shakespeare's plays since, aged fifteen, she made her professional début by walking on in a production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Mr. Chamberlain Regrets German Allegations
Do Not Contribute to People's Confidence

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, June 9.

Lt.-Comdr. R.T.H. Fletcher, Labour Member for the Nuneaton Division of Warwickshire, drew the attention of the Government to recent official declarations in Germany that Britain was planning the destruction of German trade and all bases of German existence, with the view of achieving political and physical extinction of the German people.

In a written reply in the House of Commons today, the Prime Minister, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, said he observed with great regret that such allegations continued to be made despite many positive declarations to the contrary made by himself and the Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax.

He referred to his speeches of May 12 and May 19, and in this connection, said that he had then insisted that discussion of some adjustment of the existing state of things could only take place in an atmosphere of mutual confidence.

"I can only repeat the regret," Mr. Chamberlain stated, "that declarations, official or otherwise, should be made by Germany which do nothing to assists the creating of such an atmosphere."—Reuter.

German Subs During War

H.M.S. Roxburgh Rams U 89 ; Spectacular Raid Of U 19 and Sinking of the Calgarian

By Capt. H. G. Kendall (In the "Sunday Express")

My adventures in the armed merchant cruiser Calgarian, which did such great service with the Atlantic convoys, was brought to an end by the submarine U 19, whose career in the North and Irish Seas, the English Channel, the Baltic and Atlantic was just one record of tightly packed thrills.

Her skipper for many successful trips was Lieut.-Cmdr. (German) Spiess, an officer of considerable experience, unusual technical skill, and consummate enterprise. At one time he was promoted to U 52, a bigger and faster boat. Yet, by some extraordinary perversity, she appeared to be dogged by ill-luck.

Not surprisingly, Spiess went back to his old command U 19, which, during 1917, had an experience which happened to both British and enemy submarines during the war. It was known to Germany that British submarines lay in wait off the Norwegian island Udsire, and one day Spiess believed the opportunity had come to torpedo such a craft—evidently one of Britain's biggest types. He stalked her, made ready took a final look through his periscope—but then hesitated. Several familiar characteristics about the stranger created a doubt in his mind.

He therefore rose to the surface, made the challenging signal, which was promptly answered. She turned out to be not British but the large German submarine U 155. Spiess and U 19 had barely been prevented from destroying one of Germany's crack units.

By February of the following year he had developed an expert knowledge of the seas round Ireland, and he and his boat sank no fewer than 36,000 tons of our shipping. I have mentioned previously that narrow bottle-neck known as the North Channel, separating Ireland from Scotland, with Rathlin Island subdividing the space.

Ambushed a Liner

During the early part of 1918 the German U-boats were making the most determined attacks on convoys passing through here, for it offered opportunities nowhere else possible. Even the Straits of Dover—apart from minefields and other artificial obstructions—could not compare with the temptation which the North Channel held out.

While British destroyers maintained a ceaseless vigil, they could not be everywhere, though the invisible U-boats had the advantage of keeping a wary eye on all shipping movements.

On February 5, 1918, UB 77 reached the North Channel and, despite the attentions of destroyers, took up her ambush seven miles north of Rathlin Island lighthouse, where U 97 also was waiting. The two stopped and excharged conversation, but half an hour later UB 77 sighted an eastbound convoy approaching at twelve knots powerfully guarded by destroyers.

Lieut.-Cmdr. Meyer, in charge of UB 77, realized that unless he acted promptly darkness would rob him of his opportunity.

That immense cavalcade with the lively destroyers provided many difficulties, but he manœuvred skilfully, and ultimately managed to single out the largest of the targets, the two-funnelled 14,348 tons Anchor liner Tuscania. It meant trying a long shot—1,300 yards—but his torpedo hit Tuscania just abaft the second funnel. Low in the water dropped the liner's stern, and down she went with the loss of 44 lives.

Cruiser Sinks Submarine

The following week U 89, further to the westward, though on a course that would intercept vessels bound for the North Channel, was hanging about. Again it was dusk. Another convoy approached, escorted by H.M.S. Roxburgh (an armoured cruiser), at eight knots. The weather had been foggy, but ten minutes earlier it had cleared.

Suddenly Lieut.-Cmdr. A. R. Smithwick, R.N., officer of the watch on Roxburgh's bridge, sighted U 89 lying on the surface 150 yards off. Without wasting a moment he wheeled to starboard, then steadied his ship and went straight for the enemy.

The cruiser's 10,850 tons crashed into the submarine's 1,000 tons like a train into a motor-car. Something flashed and exploded, and one part of the submarine floated along the port side of the cruiser before sinking, while two pieces of metal were afterwards found on her stem.

The enemy now sent their star turn, Lieut.-Cmdr. Spiess, to see what he could do with his successful U 19.

On March 1 the Calgarian, escorting ships, was coming in from the Atlantic heading towards the North Channel at about eight, to ten knots. We had been met by destroyers, and as it seemed that a valuable armed merchant cruiser of 17,515 tons steaming at that slow pace through such a confined passage would be inviting trouble, we requested permission to proceed independently, which was granted. The Calgarian increased her speed to 20 knots as she approached Rathlin Island. The weather was fine and clear. I was walking up and down the look-out bridge while the ship kept up its zigzas. A couple of destroyers protected us.

In these circumstances all danger—to me at least—seemed beyond possibility. In fact, I recollect remarking to the watch-keeping lieutenant alongside me that I should be quite pleased to shake hands with any German submarine officer who could "plant" us under the prevailing conditions.

Calgarian Heels Over

Scarcely had I uttered these words when the first explosion took place, a torpedo striking Calgarian between the two funnels. Within a moment the other officer and myself had become black as sweeps. The for'ard stokehold had been struck, and 29 men on watch killed. The inrush of water made the ship heel over to an angle of about 40 degrees to port. The after-stokehold was not affected as the watertight doors were closed. So, with any luck, we hoped to struggle on.

Volunteers were called for to go below, and it was not long before they were toiling magnificently to assist the engineers. Meanwhile seven destroyers, eleven trawlers, and three sloops rushed forward to surround us, one destroyer steaming round us and making a smoke screen as additional protection.

Nevertheless, U 19 was resolved on a desperate gamble. Spiess's first torpedo had been sent at close range—about 550 yards—and now that he perceived Calgarian still afloat he dived below all the vessels to fire two more torpedoes.

No liner ever built could endure so much. Steel-work and boats were blown to atoms. When I reached the deck after going below to close watertight doors with the help of some ratings, I looked round and could see scarcely a dozen men. Some had been blown overboard by explosions, while others had dived into the sea and were swimming about. Just then a trawler came round Calgarian's stern. On her deck were dozens of our men who had been saved. Sliding down a ship's rope I was able to reach the trawler.

The sight of men maimed and bleeding did not lighten one's feelings. This trawler was not permitted to survive for long, for the enemy got her too, though we meanwhile had been taken off by another patrol vessel. Spiess continued his amazing career, eluded all escorts and patrols, got back to Germany, refitted U 19, and often returned to the North Channel area.

During the war stories were spread about that submarine personnel from Germany occasionally landed on certain parts of the British Isles. Not one of these yarns has any truth—except that concerning U 19. She ran short of food once while passing up the west coast of Scotland, and Spiess sent some of his people ashore at St. Kilda to shoot a few sheep.

Tribute to Commander

Some time after the war I was on a visit to Germany and was dining with a party of men who during hostilities had occupied important positions. Among them was one who had been responsible for building 25 per cent. of the U-boats, so I related my account of how the Calgarian met her doom.

I stressed the fact that, notwithstanding our 20 knots speed, our zigzagging, and the protection of a destroyer on either bow, the first attack had been a success. Then I referred to the subsequent smoke screen and the flotilla of craft which came along to lend their protection.

"Yet despite all this," I added, "the U-boat got through and finished the job. A damn smart bit of work! And if that submarine commander is alive today I should like to shake hands with him."

The effect of these words, spoken in all sincerity, was remarkable. Every one of those Germans rose to his feet by the table, bowed, and then followed a significant acknowledgment:—

"Thank you, sir. Only an Englishman would have made such a generous statement, and we greatly appreciate it."

At the time I did not know—nor, indeed, till years afterwards—that U 19 had been my enemy. Spiess survived the war and the revolution which followed, but I have not yet run across him. I should be interested to know what he felt like among all those steel-stems and revolving propellers.

SPECIAL TO THE "N.C.D.N."

London, June 9.

Looking very fit and happy, Queen Mary, who was confined to her bed recently as the result of a car accident, smiled and bowed to cheering crowds today when she left Marlborough House to see the Trooping of the Colour at the Horse Guards Parade.—Reuter.

CONTRACT

By Albert H. Morehead

(In the New York "Times")

Swing hands in the Vanderbilt finals (New York) apparently centred round bidding rather than play. The winners gained 450 points when they reached game in the following deal.

	♠ Q J 7 3 ♡ 10 7 4 2 ◇ J 10 6 4 ♣ 8
♠ K 8 ♡ K Q J 9 5 ◇ 7 2 ♣ J 9 6 4	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ A 10 6 4 2 ♡ – ◇ A 9 ♣ A 10 7 5 3
	♠ 9 5 ♡ A 8 6 3 ◇ K Q 8 5 3 ♣ K Q

With both sides vulnerable, South was the dealer. At the table where the Regency Club team held the East-West cards, the bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1 Diamond	1 Heart	2 Diamonds	3 Clubs
Pass	Pass	Pass

At the other table, however, the bidding was:

South	West	North	East
1 Diamond	1 Heart	Pass	2 Clubs
Pass	3 Clubs	3 Diamonds	3 Hearts
Pass	4 Clubs	Pass	5 Clubs
Pass	Pass	Pass

Apparently the key bid was West's decision in one case to pass and in the other to raise the clubs. Yet actually the slight difference in the previous bidding affected West's decision. Where North had bid two diamonds, West felt it most unlikely a game could be made against a vulnerable opening bid and a free raise. Actually he did not have sufficient values to carry the bidding to the four-level. At the other table West had the opportunity to raise the clubs while the bidding was still at a low level.

Both declarers made six-odd in the play, winning the opening lead with the diamond ace, cashing the club ace and then leading spades. South was powerless to prevent the establishment of the fifth spade and the discard of West's losing diamond whenever South chose to ruff.

Showing Ace for Slam

The New York Bridge Whist Club team used an interesting variation of the ace-showing responses to two bids to reach a slam on the following cards:

	♠ 10 7 3 ♡ J 8 ◇ Q J 9 5 3 2 ♣ 10 7
♠ 9 5 2 ♡ Q 6 4 2 ◇ 7 ♣ K Q 9 6 4	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ K Q J ♡ A K 10 7 ◇ A K 10 8 ♣ A J
	♠ A 8 6 4 ♡ 9 5 3 ◇ 6 4 ♣ 8 5 3 2

Neither side was vulnerable. With the players seated as in the preceding hand, at Table 1 the bidding went:

East	South	West	North
2 No trump	Pass	3 No trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

At the second table, however, the bidding was:

East	South	West	North
2 Hearts	Pass	3 No trump	Pass
4 Diamonds	Pass	4 Hearts	Pass
5 Clubs	Pass	6 Clubs	Pass
6 Hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

Most players not using ace-showing responses would bid three clubs with the West hand and later raise the hearts. In playing ace-showing responses, however, West's jump to three no trump indicated possession of one trick plus, made up, however, of kings and queens. East's four-diamond rebid showed a legitimate suit, but when West raised the hearts, the five-club bid was an asking bid. Since West had already denied aces, his six-club response showed the club king. Twelve tricks were made at both tables, but bidding the slam netted the victors a gain of 490 points.

When Plan Is Changed

The declarer should usually plan his method of playing a hand well in advance, but if he is versatile he should keep some alternate method in reserve in case the first one fails. The following hand, required a quick change of plan:—

	♠ K 10 9 ♡ A 8 6 2 ◇ K Q 8 ♣ 8 7 5
♠ 8 6 3 2 ♡ Q J 10 ◇ 7 6 ♣ K Q J 6	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ 5 ♡ K 9 7 5 4 ◇ J 9 4 2 ♣ A 9 2
	♠ A Q J 7 4 ♡ 3 ◇ A 10 5 3 ♣ 10 4 3

South dealt in a rubber bridge game, with neither side vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1 Spade	Pass	2 Hearts	Pass
2 Spades	Pass	3 Spades	Pass
4 Spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the club king. East playing the nine. West then played the club queen and a low club, which East won with the ace. East then led the five of hearts and dummy won.

South now planned the best method mathematically making his contract. He would ruff all three of dummy's little hearts in his own hand and draw trumps with the three high spades in dummy. This would give him six trump tricks in addition to one heart and three sure diamonds. South therefore led a low heart from dummy and ruffed with the spade jack. But since his first plan depended upon a 3-2 division of the adverse spades, South next led a spade and drew two rounds with the spade 10-9 in dummy. This revealed the fact that the spades would not drop and that South's first plan must fail.

So he therefore overtook the spade king with his ace and drew the last trump with the spade queen. He then took the king and queen of diamonds. Basing his next play on a thorough analysis which took into consideration the fact that West had held four spades, undoubtedly four clubs and probably three hearts (since the heart king and queen were still missing and East if he had held both of them would not have led a low heart at the fourth trick). South realized that West could have held only two diamonds originally. He therefore finessed for the diamond jack and made his contract.

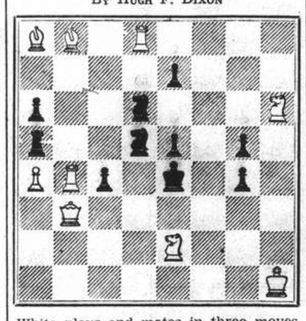
PROBLEM No. 164

By Hugh F. Dixon



White plays and mates in three moves. (No special analysis is required.)

Answer to Problem No. 163

White: K on QR4; Q on QB4; B's on KB6, KR5; Kt on K8; P's on K7, KKt3. Black: K on KB4; R on K7; Kt's on KB7, KR7; P's on QR6, QB3, Q6, KKt4, KR2. Two moves. Key Q — B7. Threat 2. Kt — Q6.

Black	White
1. K — K5	2. Q — K6
1. R — K5ch	2. B — Q4
1. Kt — K5	2. Kt — Kt7
1. R — K3	2. Q × P

A nice little problem, with a key that gives Black a flight for his K and a check for his R. There are three self-block variations.

The following submitted correct solutions to Prob. 163:—J. Lawrence Rozario, L. de Sa, Philotea, A. R. Ross and C.R.D.

Petroff Defence

The following game has a peculiar interest being played by two prominent Netherlands problemists at Rotterdam, one of whom, Mr. Koetsheid, is blind. The score reached me from my Java correspondent, Dr. A. Meurs.

White P. A. Koetsheid	Black T. C. L. Kok
1. P — K4	P — K4
2. Kt — KB3	Kt — KB3
3. Kt × P	P — Q3
4. Kt — KB3	Kt × P
5. Q — K2 (a)	Q — K2
6. P — Q4 (b)	B — Kt5
7. B — K3	Kt — QB3
8. P — KR3	B — R4 (c)
9. Q — Kt5	Kt — Kt6
10. Q × P	B × Kt
11. P × B (d)	Kt × P
12. Q × Rch	K — Q2
13. Q — Q5 (e)	Kt × QBPch
14. K — Q2	P — QB3
15. B — QKt5 (f)	Kt — Kt5
16. B × BPch	K — B1
17. B — Q7ch	K × B (g)
18. Q — Kt7ch	Resigns

(a) Dr. Lasker's variation, retaining the slight advantage expected by White against this defence.

(b) P — Q3 is normal, leading to the exchange of Q's. But dyed-in-the-wool problemists consider it bad form to drive the ladies off the board so early in the game.

(c) B × Kt is correct. After White's forking reply, Mr. Kok has to try a funny variation.

(d) Best, retaining the option of Q × Ktch.

(e) He has several good key moves, such as K — Q1, but intends to win in his own way.

(f) Neat; if P × B, 16. Q — Kt7ch, exchanging Q's and capturing a Kt.

(g) Or Q × B, 18. Q — R8ch, K — K2, 19. Q × Pch, etc.

11. Q — R5	Kt × Kt (e)
12. B × Kt	Q — K1
13. B — KB6!	P — KR3 (f)
14. Q — Kt6	Resigns

(a) For quick Castling; but Kt × P is better.

(b) If Kt × P, 7. B × Pch would do nicely.

(c) The only move is P — Q4, for air.

(d) White threatens exchanges on KB7, followed by Q — Q5ch, winning a piece; or, if P — Q3, 11. Q — R5.

(e) Or P — KR3, 12. Kt — K4, threatening B × RP, P × B, Q × RP, certainly a win.

(f) If P × B or K — R1, 14. B — K4, and mate follows. Meanwhile, White's threat is Q — Kt5, P — KKt3, Q — R6.—"Observer."

Fisher Body Plant Closed

Detroit, June 9.

The Fisher Body plant was closed yesterday when the faction of the United Automobile Workers union headed by Mr. Homer Martin called a strike.

Mr. Martin said the union members, affiliated with the American Federation of Labour, walked out because General Motors Corp. had recognized "minority groups" including the faction of the U.A.W. affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations.—United Press.

If we compare a picture of a snow scene with almost any summer picture, we observe a marked difference in the shadows. In the summer picture, shadows tend to be strong and black. In the winter picture, shadows possess beautiful clearness and transparency, and the effect tends to be quite pleasing.

The reason for this difference is that snow on the ground is a fine reflector, which casts light into all shadow areas, and brightens them. In summer, green grass does not have this same reflecting power, and therefore, shadows are darker.

Even in summer, however we can brighten the shadows of a subject if we use some sort of improvized reflector. A book or newspaper held in a person's lap will often serve as such a reflector, helping illuminate the face and soften shadows there. If a subject is placed near a wall of a white house, and stands so that the wall reflects light to the shadow side of his face, a more pleasing picture may be obtained. The baby's blanket on the lawn is an excellent reflector, which softens shadows in the child's face and clothing.

Soft, transparent shadows are generally desirable in an informal portrait, especially if we want a truthful likeness of our subject. Open shade—as on the shady side of a house—often provides a suitable lighting. The subject in open shade is illuminated by light reflected from the sky, instead of direct sunlight. Naturally, since this light is weaker, exposure should be increased to about twice normal. A very short "time" or "bulb" exposure may be necessary with a box camera or inexpensive folding camera.

Form the habit of observing shadows when you take a picture. Be on guard against abroad hat brims that shade features too much, and beware of lighting that is too harsh or "contrasty" for good effect. Usually a simple reflecting device will solve such problems, and help you get a better picture.

Aims of Terrorist Campaign Outlined

London, June 9.

For the first time since the various trials regarding the series of explosions taking place in Great Britain recently the aims of the terrorist campaign were outlined today.

Terence MacSherry, charged with having stolen a quantity of explosives, announced in the courtroom.

"I think I am entitled to give an explanation as to what has taken place in Scotland and England. In January this year, the Army Council of the Irish Republican Army sent to the British Foreign Secretary a note demanding the withdrawal of all British troops from Northern Ireland. All the representations failed. A series of explosions took place throughout England. I hold the British Government responsible for those explosions that will continue to take place until the demands set out in the note are granted."

MacSherry was sentenced to 10 years hard labour, has three accomplices receiving seven years, five years, and eighteen months.—Havas.

Foreign "Y" Retains Title

Fonseca Outstanding Athlete Leading "Y" Team to Championship; Lt. Funk Creates Three Records

ACCUMULATING a grand total of 65 points in the second and final day of the second annual Shanghai Open Track and Field Meeting on the Shanghai American School grounds yesterday, the Foreign Y.M.C.A. successfully retained the championship and was never in the danger of losing, although the Fourth U.S. Marines, who finished second, improved their position appreciably half way through the competition.

The "Leathernecks" were given a big scare near the close of the meeting when the Lido Recreation Association started to stage an uphill fight for runner-up honours. Had the Chinese won the half mile relay, the service team would have been overtaken as the margin between the two teams at the conclusion was 37 to 36.

A close tussle was fought between the Russian Regiment and Hua Lien when the former just managed to get third place in the half mile relay and tie with Hua Lien for fourth honours, each bagging 25 points. The Shanghai Inter-Schools came in sixth with 10 points when the team missed the services of the Edwards brothers. Betar was seventh, the French Army eighth and the Clube Lusitano last without making any tally at all.

Summarized scoring follows:—

	Track	Field	Total
Foreign Y.M.C.A.	33	32	65
U.S. Marines	31	6	37
Lido	33	3	36
Russian Regiment	7	18	25
Hua Lien	12	13	25
Schools	9	1	10
Betar	6	0	6
French Army	1	4	5

Tony Fonseca was unanimously acclaimed the outstanding athlete. He won four firsts, besides running in the anchor position in the relay races, in wihch he took his team from second place to first on both occasions. Fonseca scored 20 individual points and also assisted his team to garner 20 more in the two relay races. The fleet-footed "Y" star shattered two records, the running broad jump and the 220 yards.

Funk Breaks Three Records

The highest individual points, however, were chalked up by L. Glenn C. Funk of the marines who gained four firsts and one fourth to outshine Fonseca from the standpoint of performance. Funk was responsible for three new records which will be hard to beat in the future, since he is leaving for America next month, these marks being for the 440 yards, 880 yards and the 440 yards low hurdles.

Fonseca was almost beaten by W. F. Chen of Lido in the 100 yards dash, the first event yesterday. The "Y" speedster had a poor start but succeeded in putting on pressure in the last ten yards to break the tape winner by a scant foot. He won the 220 yards from Kotzmann of Betar quite handily.

Lt. Funk scored easy victories in both the quarter and half mile events, beating Mironoff of the Russian Regiment in the former race by more than ten yards and Yanus of the "Y" in the latter by no fewer than 20 yards. He did not run in the two miles race. "Rabbit Face" T. L. Wong, captain of Lido, romped home winner, beating Y. S. Liu of Hua Lien by 15 yards.

The 120 yards high hurdles provided another fine contest in which T. T. Lee, noted basketball player, beat Hale of the American School with a final spurt of 15 yards from the tapes. The schoolboy was the first to get away at the starting gun but he was gradually caught up by the Chinese.

Complete results were as follows:—

POLO was confined mostly to practice matches among the Army Cup Tournament teams on the Race Course yesterday and five teams were seen in action. The conditions for the Army Cup and the Tyro Cup for the current season will be decided upon on Tuesday when a Committee meeting will be held.

It was learned with regret yesterday of the untimely death of the popular officer of the Durham Light Infantry, Lt. Peter Luard, who was a keen polo player during his stay in this city. Many will remember him as the aggressive forward who captained the Durham's Army Cup team to victory last year, and whose standard of play improved so rapidly that he was chosen to play No. 1 for Great Britain in the Sir Peter Grain Cup, in which they put up a magnificent fight against a stronger American team, only going down in defeat after a close and thrilling game.

The first of yesterday's two chukker practice games started at 3.40 p.m., according to schedule, and not even the present excitement of the exchange prevented the Ewo Taipans from turning up in full force and on time!

Ewo (A. A. White, John Keswick, W. J. Keswick and Pollock) was matched against the Braves (E. B. Moller, Lutey, Siemssen and Heyn) to whom they administered a beating of three goals to one.

They were the first to attack, but Siemssen did well to stop the ball at the goalmouth to clear. White put the ball through for the first goal a moment later. White was in unusually good form, and was quite a handful for Heyn, who played back for the opposition.

Ewo continued to press and had most of the play, coming within inches of scoring several times.

Braves Bombard Ewo Goal

John Keswick led Ewo to an aggressive start in the second chukker and scored almost immediately from the throw in. The Braves then reversed the position and settled down to bombard the Ewo goal. Heyn first took a long shot which went behind, then Moller took a crack at it and also sent the ball out of bounds.

But their reward came when Siemssen back-handed to Moller who rushed the ball down the field to score. The Braves pressed again and John Keswick cleared with a long shot to send W. J. Keswick away to score.

The next game was between Mixed Grill (Hornby, Krikoriantz, Elles and Riggio) and Whites (Dr. Johnston, Lacks, Browne and Henry White) which resulted in a tie at one all. The Whites did exceptionally well in holding the powerful Mixed Grill a sixteen goal team, to a draw, and they were, perhaps, the more aggressive of the two. Mixed Grill lost no time in pressing in the first chukker and scored their only goal almost immediately from the throw-in.

They continued to press after the throw-in but Krikoriantz hit wide. From the hit-in, Johnston and Henry White combined beautifully to score. The Whites were again on the Mixed Grill goal after the throw-in and although coming within inches of scoring, could not find the correct mark. Just before the bell, Mixed Grill pressed but Riggio hit wide.

The second chukker was scoreless but there was a lot of fast galloping and hard hitting which kept the ball moving up and down the field. The Whites had most of the play, but could not score, and hit wide time and time again.

Ewo Beaten By Whites

In the third game, Ewo (John Keswick, W. J. Keswick, Gordon and Pollock) played and lost to Whites (Clark, C. B. Moller, W. H. Allman and Fritz) by the score of one goal to three. Whites pressed first but Pollock cleared. Allman got onto the ball again and missed it when he was about to shoot at the goal but luckily Fritz was behind and galloped up to score with a hard drive.

Whites scored again early in the chukker through Moller. From then on, Ewo had thing under control and kept the ball in the Whites territory but could not score, although coming within inches of doing so several times. W. J. Keswick miss a grand opportunity to score when he was left alone with the ball, but hit behind.

The next game was between Mixed Grill (Hornby, Liggio, Krikoriantz and Elles) and Braves (Lutey, Siemssen, E. B. Moller and Heyn). The Mixed Grill team seemed to have an off-day and could not get going, taking another beating, losing by five goals to two.

The last game was between Reds (Dr. Johnston, Lacks, Henry White and Browne) and Whites (C. B. Moller, W. H. Allman, Fritz and Du Rivau). The Reds won by three goals to two.

Nova Seeks Bout with Louis or Galento

Manager Hurls Challenge on His Behalf Through Press

New York, June 9.

Ray Carlen, manager of Lou Nova, the youthful Californian who hammered out a technical knockout over Max Baer, former world heavyweight champion, in the eleventh round on June 1, today bluntly hurled a challenge on behalf of his fighter at Joe Louis, present title holder, and Tony Galento, leading contender.

Carlen told newspapermen that his fighter wants to fight either Louis or Galento as soon as possible.

Nova, who fought the best fight of his short but spectacular career against Baer, earned the right to meet the winner of the Louis-Galento bout for the world title. The Louis-Galento clash is set for June 28. Louis will risk his title again on September 21 or 28, if he beats Galento, which practically every boxing expert takes for granted he will.

Carlen apparently is anxious that his man fight once more before clashing for the world title in September.

His announcement, however, was taken with a grain of salt by sports scribes who can't figure how Nova can fight either Galento or Louis at present.

Louis and Galento are all set for their June 28 battle and therefore will not be available.

And the sports scribes fail to see how a bout can be arranged between Galento and Nova with only seven or eight weeks on hand before the title clash set for the latter part of September.

Carlen's challenge was taken as an indication that Nova is not afraid of any opponent, and apparently was aimed at Galento, who has time and again howled that firstclass heavyweights were purposely dodging him. —United Press.

London Awarded 1944 Olympic Games By International Olympic Committee

Winter Games of 1940 to Be Held at German Resort As St. Moritz Refuses Inclusion of Skiing

London, June 9.

The International Olympic Committee has decided to allot the 1940 Winter Olympics to Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, instead of St. Moritz, because the latter refused the I.O.C. demands to organize skiing exhibitions.

The Committee has decided to allot the 1944 summer Olympics to London and the 1944 winter Olympics to Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy.

The International Olympic Committee vote recorded for London, in the ballot for the choice of a venue for the 1944 Olympics, was 20. Other cities competing for selection were Lausanne, Rome and Detroit. Both Athens and Budapest, who had been candidates, had dropped out.

Cortina d'Ampezzo, a holiday resort in Italy, received 16 votes for the Winter Olympics.

The Swiss Olympic Committee having informed the International Olympic Committee that they found it impossible to organize the 1940 Winter Olympics to conform with the agreed programme, the I.O.C. found itself reluctantly compelled to alter the venue.

Having considered all offers, and taking into consideration the fact that there are only eight months before the Olympics will be held, it was decided that only Garmisch-Partenkirchen, in Germany, was ready to hold them in February of next year.

The Coupe Olympiade, awarded annually for the outstanding achievement in the development of sport and physical education, was awarded to the Union Des Federations Sudoises de Sports Athletiques.

The International Olympic Committee awarded a special Olympic diploma to Franlein Leni Riefenstahl for producing a film of the 11th Olympiad in Berlin. The Committee considered the film an outstanding sporting film which helped enormously to spread the ideals of modern Olympism throughout the world.

After conveying congratulations to the cities of London and Cortina d'Ampezzo, the Chairman, M. Baillet-Latour, emphasized once again that every decision taken was outside political consideration, having in view only the interests of sport and the Olympic movement.—Reuter.

Committee Issues Communique

London, June 10.

The International Olympic Committee issued last night a communique reading as follows:

"The Swiss Olympic Committee having informed the International Olympic Committee that it would be impossible for Switzerland to organize the fifth Olympic Winter Games in 1940 according to the official programme to which she had formerly agreed, the International Olympic Committee to its deep regret found itself obliged to entrust the Winter Games in 1940 to some other place.

"After a careful study of the possibility of organizing the Winter Games in the short period of eight months and considering all offers received, it came to the conclusion that Garmisch-Partenkirchen alone could be ready in time to hold the Olympic Winter Games in February, 1940."

The Olympic winter games of 1940 have been allotted to Germany and will take place at Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

Italy's request that the summer games be held in Rome was rejected, but the Italian prospects of obtaining the games in 1948 are regarded as being good.—Trans-Ocean.

Season's First Hit a Homer

First Battalion, League Champions, Show Fine Form in Opening Game, Beating Amateurs 11-4

A LARGE crowd of spectators gathered at the Race Course to witness the opening game of the 1939 City Baseball League yesterday afternoon when the First Battalion, defending champions, met and vanquished the Shanghai Amateurs by 11 runs to 4 in nine innings. The Marines were heavy sluggers, pounding out no less than 11 hits against three civilian moundsmen.

Joe Honeycutt, who was the first to fly the mound flag for the Amateurs, was knocked out of the box before the third inning was over. He was touched for half a dozen hits. Al Huebner succeeded him and twirled a grand game until his arm weakened near the end of the eighth. George Adams finished up to trail on the short end of an 11-4 score.

The winning team used two pitchers, starting off with Lefty Houston. The southpaw cracked up before the sixth inning was over and retired in favour of Davis. The latter hurled capably by allowing only one hit in three and a half innings.

The league opened auspiciously when Colonel J. S. Fagan, Commanding Officer of the Fourth Marines, pitched the first ball with J. C. Williams, president of the Shanghai American Amateur Athletic Association, receiving.

King, first man up, took Honeycutt by complete surprise as the left-handed batsman slugged a fast shot between left and centre. The ball rolled onto the Parsee cricket ground for King to reap a four-bagger. The civilian hurler was at once stunned, giving Ashley, the second opponent up the plate, a bingle toward centre and Pasko a base on balls.

Honeycutt buckled down but could not quite get in stride, for he yielded four hits and three runs in the first part of the third frame. Pasko was the first to sock him for a three-base hit towards right field. The next batters, Olsen, Goush and Mudry, each singled to account for three tallies.

Manager Deegan immediately sent Jack Riley out to left field, shifting Huebner to the box in the place of Honeycutt. Huebner stemmed the tide and came out of the tight corner without conceding any more runs.

While the Marines were doing well with the bat, Houston did a fine job on the mound with Pasko behind the plate. The southpaw held the Amateurs at bay until he got into hot water in the sixth inning.

Houston walked the first two batters, Lawler and Bernard. Fielden was safe on a fielder's choice to third. The Marine pitcher went wrong again, issuing Kabbert a free ticket which automatically pushed Lawler home. Riley came to bat and could have been a hero if he had not struck out but socked the ball far and wide.

Huebner Weakens in Eighth

Nevertheless, Huebner slackened as soon as the eighth inning commenced. Davis lined a hot grounder past third. King reached first on a fielder's choice to Fielden, the bagged the ball but threw wild to Lamneck in an attempt to retire Davis, who was on his way to second. Ashley fired away to centre-field.

The civilians' bases were loaded with opponents. At this juncture Adams relieved Huebner, but while the new hurler forced out the next batters, Pasko and Olsen, the "Leathernecks" had succeeded in putting the game on ice by netting two more runs through King and Ashley.

Dodgers Make Big Gain in League

Climb to Third Place as Rivals are Beaten; Two Home Runs Hit by Foxx

New York, June 9.

Brooklyn's "Daffy" Dodgers today sneaked from nowhere to a respectable perch in the National League standings by pummelling the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-4, while the Cubs and the Pirates were getting a trimming in the hands of second division clubs.

The Dodgers, with a five hit attack, netted four markers and put the game in the bag.

"Big Babe" Phelps, catcher for the Dodgers, had a perfect day at bat, banging four hits in four attempts.

Late inning rallies by the New York Giants and Claude Passeau's streak of wildness enabled the local lads to nose out the Chicago Cubs in ten innings, 4-3.

The Giants tied the count at three-all in the eighth frame and received the winning tally on a silver platter when the ex-Philly hurler Passeau walked Bob Seeds in the tenth with the bases loaded.

At Boston, the Bees trimmed the Pittsbrugh Pirates, 4-1. Boston clinched the game in the third inning when three hits a walk and a stolen base netted three runs. Bill Posedel held the Pirates to three hits.

The Boston Red Sox pushed the lowly St. Louis Browns deeper into the American League cellar by winning both ends of today's only twin bill.

The Sox won the first game, 4 to 3, with Fred Ostermueller's single in the eighth inning which drove in manager Joe Cronin proving the deciding blow.

Foxx Hits Two Homers

Jimmy Foxx banged a homer for Boston while Harlond Clift smashed another for the Browns.

The Red Sox walked away with the second game, 18 to 7. The visitors 17-hit attack included home runs by Ted Williams with one on base in the third and Jimmy Foxx's second circuit smash of the day in the sixth.

The Cleveland Indians' last inning rally enabled them to nose out the Washington Senators, 3 to 2.

Hal Trosky tied the count at two-all with a homer and Frank Pytlak pinch hit and drove in the winning run.

At Detroit the Tigers crushed the Philadelphia Athletics under a 14 to 4 score.

The Tigers made 17 hits off three A's pitchers including home runs each by Hank Greenberg, Erwin Fox and Barney McCosky.

The game between the New York Yankees and the Chicago White Sox was postponed on account of rain.

Cincinnati and Philadelphia in the National League were not scheduled.

Loss of Courage Pays

London (By Mail).

For the loss of his courage, a 25-year-old boxer was awarded £1,075 at Liverpool Assizes. Bernard Sidney Leigh was once—according to his counsel—in the front rank of British lightweights and now "condemned to a living death."

Leigh, who was awarded damages for injuries through being knocked off his bicycle, sat alone outside the court. Since the accident he has lost the courage which carried him through 100 ring battles; he did not even smile when told the verdict.

He shook his head when Mr. Justice Hallett suggested that psychological treatment might help him: "I will never face an opponent in the ring again," he said. "I could never overcome the fear that a heavy blow might kill me."—Reuter.

Stragglers Score Handy Win by Five Wickets Over Police

Poor Fielding Costs Lawmen League Match as Club Bats Celebrate Escapes with Long Innings

PROFITING considerably by the innumerable fielding errors of their opponents, the S.C.C. Stragglers were able to defeat the Police on their own ground yesterday afternoon by the easy margin of five wickets, after the Police had threatened in the early part of the Stragglers' innings to make an extremely close match of the encounter.

Both missed badly behind the wicket before they had scored five apiece; Duckitt and Sinclair took advantage of their lives and laid the foundation for a really good win. They had other lives during the course of their knocks and should, if the Police fielding had been up to standard, have been retired with less than ten between them.

Still, such are the fortunes of the game, and unless the lawmen can improve their all round fielding and rely less on their feet and more on their hands, they will continue to drop catches and lose plenty of runs and wickets.

The Police won the toss and took first knock on an easy wicket although a cross-wind assisted the attack a little. Pitts quickly got his eye in and was soon severe on Anstice, hitting him for two good sixes. Fairbairn left at 34, being completely beaten by a ball that came back from Duckitt.

Pitts and Gash carried the total to 82 at a fast rate before the former was sent back by Read, Sayle making a spectacular catch near the boundry in the direction of mid-wicket. The outgoing batsman had scored a chanceless 59 in 50 minutes and in addition to two sixes, reached the boundary on four other occasions, most of his runs coming from shots in front of the wicket.

Sevenoaks' Courageous Innings

Gash left at 94, being finely caught in the slips, while Dudley was bowled neck and crop first ball. Sevenoaks, going in fourth wicket down, played a courageous innings, his leg glides and cuts being reminiscent of that period three years ago when he was Shanghai's opening bat. He was eventually last out after scoring a chanceless 28.

Booth, coming on late in the innings returned the best bowling analysis, but Duckitt was about the most difficult bowler to play, while three or four chances were dropped off his trundling.

With 2½ hours in which to get the runs for victory, the Stragglers started poorly, Anstice being out behind the wicket with only four on the board. Hutchison and Elliott soon retrieved this state of affairs, although the former should have been caught off Boddy at short mid-on when but six. Both, however, left within a few minutes of one another, two good catches by Peasgood and Boddy retiring them.

Sluis slashed the first ball he received to the boundary but was out a few balls later, being well held by Baker at mid-off. Duckitt was then joined by Sinclair and both were missed by Pitts and Peasgood off Abbott in the same over before they had their eye in. They took advantage of their escape, however, and scored consistently, most of their strokes being directed through the covers.

Duckitt was missed twice more before Sinclair was sent back following a misunderstanding with his partner in which he was run out. They had added no less than 65 for the fifth wicket when the Stragglers captain was retired and the match well within their grasp.

Booth joined Duckitt and slowly but surely the two of them knocked off the runs necessary for victory, the winning hit being made by Booth with a beautiful six to the square leg boundary, Duckitt being 51 not out.

Peasgood bowled well, but chances were missed off his bowling by Pitts that might have made a big difference to the final result. Abbott looked the most dangerous attacker and neither Duckitt nor Sinclair ever mastered him, but dropped catches told their tale.

Hammond in Race Against Clock

Becomes First to Score 1,000 Runs; Brilliant Batting by Sutcliffe

London, June 9.

A series of accidents marred the first-class cricket matches concluded today, one of the outstanding features of which was a magnificent undefeated double century by the Yorkshire veteran Sutcliffe, who carried his bat for 234 against Leicester.

Three players who have represented England in Tests were injured in different parts of the country—Mitchell, the Derbyshire leg-break bowler, who broke a finger in his left hand; Nichols, the Essex all-rounder, who broke a toe in his right foot, and R.E.S. Wyatt, the former Warwick captain.

Wyatt got a blow over his heart while batting and took treatment for a clot of blood which had formed. Afterwards, he insisted on batting against his doctor's orders, but the next day was immediately forced to retire when he received a severe blow on the thumb of his right hand.

Hammond Reaches 1,000 Mark

Hammond, the Gloucester and England skipper, gained the distinction of being the first player to reach 1,000 runs this season when he scored 135 against Surrey.

Notts gave one of the brightest displays this season at Nottingham in defeating Essex by eight wickets.

Set the task of making 238 for victory in about two hours, Heane and his men obtained the runs in just 100 minutes, or more than two runs a minute.

Details:—

At Frome—Middlesex beat Somerset by five wickets. Somerset 354 (Lee 151, Sims six for 113) and 139 (Sims six for 53). Middlesex 312 and 184 for five (Copson 103 not out, Edrich 71 after scoring a "duck" in first innings).

Recs Colts Only Just Able to Force Draw Against Parsees

Captain's Innings by Divecha Alters Course of Match; Recs Saved by Marcal, Madar

AN excellent stand of 87 between Marcal and Pat Madar after four Colts wickets had fallen for only 15 runs on the Recs' ground yesterday afternoon, enabled the Recs' side to force a draw with the Parsees in a game that at one period seemed a certain three points for the visitors.

Taking first knock, the Parsees were soon in difficulties, the first three bats being sent back with a paltry 19 recorded, Kliene's fastish ball being too much for the defenders. Viccajee kept his end up while F. R. Kermani played another delightful innings, but the former was retired for a very patient six when the total was 32. Kermani continued to bat quite well but was finally caught by Harry Madar in the country after an enterprising knock of 36 which included four boundaries.

Half the side were out for only 55 when Divecha came in. His appearance altered the entire course of the proceedings and settling down, he proved a most difficult man to get rid of.

He received very useful help from the tailenders and was able to change what was thought earlier on to be a losing cause into a definite winning one. He was as steady as a rock and was equally at home against all the bowlers facing him.

He was finally out for a splendid 57, which came at just the correct time. He played a typical captain's innings, his chief scoring strokes being six fours.

The Colts' supporters were treated to one shock after another when the Recs' side went into bat facing a total of 163, Quincey, Allan, Anderson and Cumine all being in and out for the ridiculously low score of 16. Marcal and Pat Malar then became associated and between them they gradually pulled the game out of the fire to add 87 for the partnership before the former was caught by Tata.

They played very methodically and gradually wore the bowling down although Marcal was given two or three lives earlier on. Had any of them been accepted, the course of the encounter might have been completely changed.

As it was, with Marcal retired for a really fine 57, which included eight fours, there appeared little chance of the game being finished either way, especially as Gomes batted well from the time he reached the crease. Stumps were eventually drawn when the Colts had amassed 127 for the loss of only five wickets, still 36 short of their opponents' figure.

Cole Knocks Up 90 As Shaforce Wins

Recs Tyros Beaten by 74 Runs in League Match; Major Eynon Hits Out

A splendid innings of 90 by Capt. J. R. Cole dominated the proceedings on the Police ground yesterday afternoon when Shaforce comfortably accounted for the Recs Tyros, gaining the day by 74 runs.

Batting first on the matting wicket, Shaforce's opening bats, Hamlen and Cole, began rather slowly, the first wicket falling after an hour's play for 44, of which Hamlen had collected only five. Sadler improved the rate of scoring and mustered 20 out of 22 during his short stay at the crease before being bowled by a ball that never rose from the carpet.

Eatwell failed, but plenty of fireworks were seen when Major Eynon arrived. Clouting the deliveries of the various bowlers all over the field, he hit three sixes and three fours in a knock of 37 that helped to put up 61 for the fourth partnership; he finally being held by Hart-Baker off Wilson when the board read 128.

Capt. Cole then came into his own and with some delightful stroke play thoroughly mastered the attack. He was never in difficulties and offered no chances during his long tenure of the crease. He received good support from the tail, and going for the bowling upon the arrival of Plumb, the last man in, was finally well caught by Hart-Baker after making 90, the highest score of the season up to the present. His principal hits were nine fours. The board read 207 with his dismissal.

Hart-Baker bowled effectively, securing four wickets at just over ten runs apiece, while the same player held no fewer than three catches off his teammates' bowling, to assist in disposing of seven bats.

Madar batted very well for the Tyros, his knock of 41 being the result of patience and a good eye. He should have been caught by Cheney, however, before he had reached double figures, but nevertheless his effort was a very commendable one. He was sixth out when the board read 102.

Prior to this, "Torry" Wilson had opened his shoulders to good effect, rattling up 25 in short order, four boundary hits being his main shots.

Few of the other batsmen could cope with much degree of success with the attack and although Weidman and MacDonald did threaten to pull the game out of the fire at one period, the first named eventually had his stumps upset by Sadler to be last man out, 74 short of their opponents total.

Bowling honours were shared by the four attackers and although the fielding of Shaforce could do with a little improvement, the side as a whole still appears to be a little too strong for any other competing league team.

S.A.'s Cricket Tour

London (By Mail).

The possibility of the eight-ball over being used during the South African cricket tour of England next year was discussed by the South African Cricket Board of Control at Durban.

It was decided that all the test matches should be of four days duration, irrespective of the state of the rubber.

The team will sail for England from Cape Town by mail steamer on the first Friday of April, 1940.

The selection committee for the tour will be appointed by the incoming board, which will be elected at the annual meeting in September.—Reuter.

Policewomen for Games

Helsinki, (By Mail).

The formation of a special police force of women, to assist in countering undesirable elements during the Olympic Games here next year, has been proposed by various local women's organizations.

It has been suggested that in order to effectively realise such a scheme, a suitable lady should be sent to London with a view to undergoing a special course of training as an instructress of women police. On her return she would be entrusted with the training of a small force of women police.

The civic authorities are said to be in favour of the scheme and have promised to guarantee the cost of one-third of the expenses involved.—Reuter.

Snead Leading in U.S. Open Golf Tourney

Leader Equals Record for Contest with 139

Philadelphia, June 9.

Beating back the challenge of his rivals, Sammy Snead continued to lead in the National Open golf championship by turning in 71 for a total of 139 for 36 holes to head the field at the halfway mark today.

The long-hitting hill-billy, who came rollin' down the mountains of West Virginia two years ago unknown and unfeared and who last year finished the season with US$19,554.49 in prize money won, rallied after being on the verge of cracking up.

The weak-kneed and the faint of heart wilted under the burning sun as the nation's finest golfers fought to enter the magic circle of the last 60 who will continue to play tomorrow in the final 36 holes that will decide the championship.

In turning in a card of 139, Snead equalled the 36-hole national open record established in 1916 by Chick Evans.

1940 seems a long way off, but already the bonnet of Miss Dorothy Leonard is in the ring as a candidate for a place on the U.S. Olympic swimming team. Japan's Economic Strength

Golden Age Expected In Five Years Provided People Conserve and Export Surplus

By Percy Whiteing
"N.C.D.N." Special Correspondent in Japan

Tokyo, June 5.

THAT Japan will enter a golden age within about five years, becoming so strong that she will be able to cope with whatever unexpected situation may arise without any anxiety, is the belief of Mr. Ginjiro Fujihara, one of Japan's leading industrialists and chairman of the board of the Oji Paper Manufacturing Co., expressed in a new statement. His prediction that Japan will be able to finance her undertakings in China by herself if necessary, was reported by this correspondent recently in the "North-China Daily News."

Japan has a big margin in her economic strength, said Mr. Fujihara, and has many strong points peculiar to her. Her new system of controlled economy is now functioning pretty well. With a definite export-import control police already fixed, her foreign trade is making a fresh start.

I should like to express my opinion about some export commodities which have not attracted much public attention so far. I wish to draw the attention of both the government and the people to these goods. I want to discuss the export to foreign countries of foodstuffs whose production is most suitable to our country.

Canned salmon and sea-trout has been the main item of our foodstuff sales abroad in the past. The export value has, indeed, been large, as during last year Y.57,500,000 worth of these goods was exported, of which a little more than 80 per cent. was sold to England. The more we produce these goods, the more we can export them, of course.

From olden times the Japanese have been accustomed to eat such large quantities of fish as part of their daily meals that they seem to have become so familiar with this food as to overlook its valuable possibilities. Our sardines and herring are so plentiful that they are used for fertilizer. Japan's fishing grounds are filled with a great variety of fish besides those to which I have referred, particularly crab and tuna. These fish can be sold abroad for good money. So instead of eating so much of them ourselves we should pack and export more of them. This would assure us of income from abroad of a further Y.40,000,000 or Y.50,000,000 a year.

Export of Oranges

"Japan produces annually about Y.20,000,000 worth of oranges. Last year our exports of fresh oranges to the United States and Canada amounted to only Y.1,000,000. I observe that there is still much room to increase our orange exports. Canned oranges is a product peculiar to our country. It is much esteemed by people abroad, as it can be utilized quickly in making fruit salad. Last year we exported only about Y.6,000,000 worth of canned oranges.

This shows that there is much room to expand our canned orange exports. So our people should reduce their consumption of this fruit, while the production should be increased, in order to promote exports and thus obtain more money from abroad.

Canned pineapple is another noticeable item. Last year our empire produced Y.10,000,000 worth of this, but we exported only about Y.2,000,000 worth. The rest was consumed by our public at home, and the army. Japan's canned pineapple is just as good as what Hawaii or Malaya produces. Though consumption of part of our output of this commodity by the army is quite reasonable, it is desirable that the general public should stop eating it. Then we could easily raise its export to Y.5,000,000 or Y.6,000,000 worth.

Something that is not needed at all in the Japanese meal is asparagus, of which Japan produced about Y.1,000,000 worth last year, yet we are some Y.700,000 worth at home and exported only Y.300,000 worth. We should sell abroad all we raise of this vegetable.

Prospects of Apple Business

It may be news to most of our people to hear that last year we exported about Y.200,000 worth of apples to England, India and South America. Our country raises annually about Y.30,000,000 worth of apples. If improvements are made in methods of packing and transportation, I am convinced that we can increase the export value of this article to not only millions but tens of millions of yen a year.

Do our people know that in 1938 Japan produced Y.250,000,000 worth of eggs, of which only Y.300,000 worth was exported, to Britain, Hawaii and Germany? In contrast with this negligible amount, Britain imports annually about Y.170,000,000 worth of eggs and Germany more than Y.100,000,000.

I learn that even last year we could have sold about Y.4,000,000 worth of eggs abroad, if we had gone into the matter more carefully. If the government will encourage the raising of hens, specially by a subsidy for their food, and if systematic improvements are made in packing, inspection and transportation, especially refrigeration, I think we can increase our egg exports to tens of million yen worth a year.

Japanese butter is excellent and very popular among foreign people. Last year our empire produced between Y.5,000,000 and Y.6,000,000 worth of butter, but exported only Y.820,000, to Britain and other countries. Britain and Germany import annually about Y.800,000,000 and Y.150,000,000 worth of butter, respectively.

The staple food of the Japanese people is rice, with which butter is not needed, so I hope that in this period of emergency our people will not eat butter, thus releasing the whole of our output for export. If we increase our production of butter, we can sell large quantities abroad.

Conserving Milk

In this connection, I should like to mention that the eating of oatmeal, with milk, has come into vogue in recent years among many of our people. I hear, however, that in Hokkaido, one of our largest milk-producing regions, people nowadays are eating oatmeal with miso (bean-paste) soup, instead of milk, which is thus saved. Miso is highly nutritive, and for Japanese is better even than milk for use with oatmeal.

Another thing that probably very few people know about is that last year Japan exported to Germany, the land of sausages, Y.230,000 worth of sausage casings, produced from hog-gut. This is only one innovation in our activities to increase our exports. I believe that our output of sausage casings, along with the development of our production of ham and bacon, will increase rapidly in future.

An interesting fact is that the livers of tuna and other fish, which we used to throw away, are now being sold. Vitamin D is derived from them. Our export of these fish livers, refrigerated, was valued at between Y.200,000 and Y.300,000 last year. This trade is sure to increase.

Experts are now studying methods of treating such valuable by-products of whales (large quantities of which are caught by Japanese whaling-ships in the Antarctic, as well as in Japanese waters. Many other similar valuable products will be found as the result of investigation and experiment.

Among many other things, notably starch can be exported in valuable quantities, if the the government will guide and encourage the farmers in its production. It can be plentifully grown in Hokkaido.

Export, Rather Than Consume

I want to stress that our people consume much of such commodities themselves, rather extravagantly, instead of selling them abroad. We should certainly export all we can, to obtain the resulting revenue. The former may be all right in time of peace, but not of war.

As an illustration, very fine ayu (a species of river trout) are caught in the Nagara River, in Gifu prefecture. The whole catch of the better quality is shipped to Tokyo, and only the poorer grades can be obtained or eaten in Gifu. This is the established rule of business. To a businessman like me it is strange indeed that our people do not apply this rule to their export trade and increase their revenue from abroad, instead of freely consuming their best goods themselves, at a time like the present.

It is true that, politically, Britain, the United States and France are not very amicably inclined toward Japan at present, but the people of all those countries are willing to buy from Japan whatever foodstuffs they need in their daily life.

All other countries entertain friendly feelings toward Japan. To them, the sale of our foodstuffs is much easier than of our industrial manufactures. Unlike for instance, our fibre industries, which depend on foreign raw materials, our foodstuff industry needs only metal for the containers as the sole material that may have to be imported.

All the chief materials required by the foodstuffs industry are produced at home. Therefore, practically all the money obtained from the export of foodstuffs is net profit to our country. This is the reason why it should be encouraged.

Gold Currency Needed

I consider that our most urgent necessity of the time is for our businessmen to study how our country can obtain from foreign countries more gold currency, as quickly as possible. If our people will exert themselves in this spirit, I think it is not impossible for Japan to increase her exports of commodities such as I have mentioned of Y.100,000,000 in a year, and by at least Y.500,000,000 within five years.

It would seem that only weak points of Japan, such as lack of some natural resources, or low level of wealth, are known to the world, and that neither foreign peoples nor even our own people have adequate knowledge of the many strong points of Japan. A case in point is our resources of gold ore. Marco Polo introduced Japan to the world, for the first time, as the island of "Jipeng," teeming with limitless gold. Apart from this story, it is an obvious fact that Japan's production of gold was very large between the Genpei era and the age of Toyotomi.

"Annals of the ceremonial tea cult relate that Hideyoshi Toyotomi, for his tea functions, had the pillars of rooms in his palace, as well as shelves, tables, and teacups, made of solid gold. After the fall of the Osaka castle of Toyotomi into the hands of the first Tokugawa Shogun, Ieyasu, the Nagoya castle was built, and on top of it were placed two dolphins made of solid gold found in the Osaka castle, each 8½ feet in height, astounding the people.

Japan in those days possessed much gold, and it is said that the gold stored in the Osaka castle alone was so great in quantity as to defy conjecture. It is a fact that subsequently the Dutch and Portuguese carried off a great deal of our gold, which we gave them in exchange for their commodities. Much of what was left of our enormous gold reserve was paid out to foreign countries for stuff that we took into our heads to import after the Meiji Restoration.

Increased Gold Production

The point is that Japan abounds in gold ore. Now that the country needs gold, our output of the yellow metal is increasing fast. I am not at liberty to give definite figures regarding our present gold production, but I expect that it will be doubled in two or three years.

A foreign friend, on hearing this in conversation with me, remarked that Japan then would become the world's foremost gold producer, but that people abroad could not imagine that Japan possesses such deposits of gold. This typically illustrates how the average foreigner cannot realize what resources Japan has.

It Japan can obtain Y.1,000,000,000 yearly from increasing the export of gold and of the commodities I have enumerated, it will mean great new strength for us. When this becomes a reality Japan will have a big margin with which to develop her plans for expansion of industrial productivity and for the economic development of Manchoukuo and China.

When our productivity expansion plan bears tangible fruit, our country may well become self-sufficient as far as raw materials are concerned. This in turn will bring a corresponding increase in the production of commodities and greater income.

Japan's Golden Age

Consequently it is my belief that in five years or so Japan will enter a golden age and become so strong as to be able to cope with whatever unexpected situations arise, without any fear. Naturally we must not be conservative but positive in letting the world know the real economic strength and the strong points of our country. Our people must redouble their efforts in this direction, so that the world will be informed of what we are able to do.

The ignorance about Japan, throughout the world, is astonishing. Recently I have talked with foreign visitors to Japan, some of whom came here with the idea that all our able-bodied men had been sent to the front, leaving at home only women, children, and aged people, while others had imagined that the Japanese are suffering from a serious shortage of food.

Great was their amazement, on arriving, to find the country still filled with strong young men engaged in peaceful occupations, and a great abundance of all sorts of food and drink. Others had heard that we have no gasolene, and therefore cannot use any motor cars, so they came prepared to walk, carrying their own baggage. They were surprised enough to find plenty of taxis at the piers and rushing about in the streets of the cities, contrary to the false reports spread abroad.

Even, I hear, one American visitor who stayed for a few days at the Imperial Hotel, Tokyo, appears to have been told that owing to the control of the use of gasolene in Japan, the number of taxis available was not so great as formerly. On returning to America he exaggerated this into the ridiculous story that Japan has no more gasolene, and that there is not a single taxi left in operation, even for hotel visitors.

Some foreigners seem to think that no money can be made available to pay for imports of gasolene and iron, unless the importers make 100 calls at the Finance Ministry to get governmental permits, that this is due to lack of exchange funds in the Treasury, and that these things prove the financial straits in which Japan finds herself.

Others refer to the Finance Ministry's announcement that savings last year amounted to Y.7,300,000,000 and that the estimated goal of savings for this year has been set at Y.10,000,000,000, but express the opinion that these figures are fabrications.

These seem to be typical superficial views taken by casual foreign visitors of the situation in Japan. Perhaps it is not unnatural, if their ears have been filled with false propaganda emanating from Chinese sources, for them to think they have made such observations of Japanese conditions.

Certainly it is true that taxis are not so abundantly convenient as in peace-time, but to say that Japan has no gasolene is a silly falsehood. Also it is true that owing to the Finance Ministry's careful control of foreign exchange, more time is needed for going through the procedure of obtaining the necessary exchange permits than formerly, but this does not mean that Japan has no hard cash.

But some foreigners, by their superficial observations, are too ready to assert that they have discovered that Japan is financially weak. Obviously, these false tales are responsible for the spread of rumours that Japan may collapse financially.

Hollywood's Best Cameramen

Important Collaborator Who Transfers Director's Ideas to Screen

Cameramen are proverbially the hardest workers among screen craftsmen. They are the first ones to arrive on the studio set in the morning and the last to leave at night. The cameramen are the fellows who cope with ponderous camera set-ups, the brainstorms of directors and the occasional indispositions of the stars. They don't even get a regulation-length lunch hour.

It is not uncommon for a camera man, after working as much as twelve hours on a difficult assignment, to spend the rest of the night doing retakes on his last picture because of the last-minute inspirations of the front office.

That the cameraman is one of the more important collaborators in the highly collaborative art of film production is readily attested to by his co-workers. One may never have heard of Karl Freund, Bill Daniels or Tony Gaudio, but they are names that frequently command more respect with directors and producers than those of top-flight stars.

Innumerable beautiful satellities of the screen insist upon being photographed only by cameramen of their own selection and often go out of their way to ingratiate themselves with the cinematographer, knowing only too well that the point of view, particularly where the camera is concerned, is all-important.

A more valuable distinction than that extended to the cameramen by high-salaried clothes horses in quest of pictorial symmetry has been conferred by the director. Most top-notch directors prefer to work hand in hand with a cameraman of their own choice. Lee Garmes, for instance, was responsible for the camera work on such Hecht-MacArthur efforts as "Crime Without Passion," "Once in a Blue Moon" and "The Scoundrel."

Roland Totheroh and Jack Wilson have been photographing all of Charlie Chaplin's comedies since 1915. Billy Bitzer and Director D. W. Griffith were another famous team on many films, such as "Intolerance" and "The Birth of a Nation."

In his pre-Hollywood days Ernst Lubitsch always insisted that Theodore Sparkuhl (now an ace Hollywood cameraman) do the lens work on such productions as "Madame DuBarry," "Anne Boleyn," "Sumurun" and "Loves of Pharaoh." Karl Freund and Director F. W. Murnau were another famous duo on "The Last Laugh," "Faust" and "Tartuffe" in the silent days of the German screen.

In each case the result of the collaboration was that the cameraman translated the director's general conceptions into precise pictorial terms. For no matter how detailed and technically elaborate a shooting script is, it is only a general approximation of exact camera values. The final camera set-up can usually be worked out only on the set.

The director tells the cameraman what effect or idea he desires and then steps out of the picture while the cinematographer fills in these verbal outlines with detailed and exact shadings in the form of camera angles, distances, lens adjustments and lighting.

It is best, perhaps, to remark here that the cameraman—or chief cinematographer—does not operate the camera at all. He determines the distance and angles, supervizes the lighting, and then his two operative assistants merely follow the plans he has laid down for them. In brief, the cameraman is more artist than technician.

It is little wonder, then, that many cameramen with such creative experience have graduated into the ranks of directors. Lee Garmes, Robert Florey, Victor Fleming, Ernest Schoedsack, George Hill and Mervyn Le Roy, among others, began their careers as cameramen. Hal Mohr, Paul Strand, Karl Freund and Edward Tissé alternate between photography and direction. Josef von Sternberg still handles the camera work on his films.

It is sometimes well to remember the axiomatic fact that the screen is primarily a pictorial medium and that its greatest single technical weapon is the scope and freedom of movement of the camera. In the early days of the screen the camera was almost always rooted to one spot for each scene at a height of four and one-half feet. Today the camera moves, assumes different points of view and shifts its gaze constantly to tell the story more effectively.

It is the adaptation of this characteristic freedom of movement and ability to record details that differentiates such camera-minded directors as Alfred Hitchcock and Lewis Milestone from the director who merely photographs scenes in a static and rather stagey fashion. It is with such directors that the cameraman finds fullest freedom of expression.

Verandah Cafe

During the summer months the Gaiety Night Club will not be forced to resort to artificial means of cooling but will have available its cool, comfortable and specious verandah, immediately adjoining the ballroom proper. Plans for the formal opening of the verandah will shortly be announced. Patrons of the Gaiety are enthusiastic in their praise of Bob and his five bandstars which boasts some of the best and most versatile musicians in the city, including Pete Wood, bass player. Foreign waiters serve guests and a foreign chef presides over the kitchen. In addition, there is a comfortable cocktail bar with charming attendants.

Novels as Pictures Unsatisfactory

"Wuthering Heights" Held Disappointing

London, May 15.

The past few weeks have given London two notable examples in "Wuthering Heights" and "Jamaica Inn." In both instances no care or expense have been spared. The directors are the most expert procurable and the casts of quite unusual brilliance. But in neither instance is the result satisfactory.

It seems to be fairly clear that in attacking such a well known literary classic as "Wuthering Heights" producer and director have been hampered by a sort of awe-struck and apologetic consciousness. They feel that they must do the novel justice although they are not deterred from taking liberties with the plot. The consequent result is a rather heavy slowness. The director cannot move easily and let his technical imagination loose, as he can in dealing with an orginal scenario or a provided plot which does not seem to matter very much.

No Literary Classic

Although no one could regard "Jamaica Inn" as a literary classic, the film version affords an even better example of this hampering than "Wuthering Heights." Only the other day Alfred Hitchcock made "The Lady Vanishes," in many people's opinion his best picture so far. "The Lady Vanishes" is first class cinematography. It moves quickly and easily; the dialogue never hampers the action; the spectator enjoys himself all the time.

But, in spite of the fact that the wicked parson has been changed to a wicked squire to satisfy certain susceptibilities, it is clear that the director has been hindered by a feeling that he must include as much of the novel as possible. The result is slowness in the action and a general atmosphere of heavy, conventional melodrama. Mr. Charles Laughton's performance is outstandingly good and the cast reads almost like a complete list of English stage stars.

Farrens Air-Cooled

The air-cooled and air-conditioned premises at Farrens are conducive to relaxation and at the same time to hearty enjoyment of Alex Kahn's orchestra, which at the moment is stressing nightly the "Palais Glide." Patrons are taking to this number enthusiastically and with the emphatic over trides, one sometimes wonders that the springs under the floor do not give way.

The Kulpa Sisters are proving a distinct hit with their interpretations of varied motifs. As a trio the sisters are highly competent in several striking adagio turns, a Hawaiian ensemble, rhumbas and tangos. Handsomely-costumed their doubles are well received and usually they are brought back for a repetition. Katharine, as a soloist, is an excellent contortionist and is versatile in other turns. It is understood that they shortly are leaving on a tour, but their return, it is hoped, will be speedy.

Lantzoff and Svetlanova still dominate in their particular sphere of terpsichorean endeavour.

Russian Light Opera

In honour of their prima donna, Orlovskaya, the Russian Light Opera will render "Mlle Nitouche" in the nature of a gala performance on Wednesday, with the star in the name role. The music of the French composer, F. Harve, is light and airy and suited to the talents of the organization.

Playing opposite Orlovskaya is Kudimoff, baritone of years standing with the troupe, while Valin, recognized as the best comedian in Shanghai, has a dual role. Among others in the cast are Rosen, Yanovskaya, Vargina, Muravieff and Tomsky, as well as lesser lights of the Russian Light Opera.

The performances are to be repeated on Friday and Sunday, after which they close their 1938/39 season.

At the Hungaria

"The Place of Continental Atmosphere" is the slogan of the Hungaria Night Club and restaurant, which true to the management's aim, provides Continental cuisine, specializing in Hungarian and Viennese dishes. Other indications of the same style are the fittings and, above all the orchestra who, dressed in the manner, render in addition to European melodies, the latest American jazz hits. Stella Szirmay, with her violin and accordeon, leads the band. A trio of wandering accordeonists stop at various tables during the night and play requests of patrons.

Summer Garden

The management of the Arcadia intimate that, weather permitting, the spacious garden will be opened midweek. An entirely different seating arrangement is being provided and the stage at the far end has been enlarged to accommodate the entire ballet ensemble, which, it is said, will be augmented in the near future. Meanwhile Serge Ermoll and his music masters entice diners to the polished ballroom floor, accompanying the artistes as well.

"Jesse James"

Coming soon to the Grand Theatre are Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda and Nancy Kelly in a "tops" picture.

New Decorative Scheme

The Del Monte will have completed their re-decorations on Thursday at which time a special programme of entertainment and an unveiling will take place. Entirely done over in blue shades, the ballroom presents a striking change from the former motif. The orchestra now is housed in a shell specially built in on the long wall, opposite the main entrance, while their former place is being adapted to cozy corners.

Meanwhile the Three Largos and Nick and Nora head a fine entertainment programme.

Bill Brady, Magician

As an addition to their floorshow, the management of L'Eventail announce the engagement of Bill Brady, magician, to their staff. He is being featured nightly. With several tricks "up his sleeve," he is said to mystify guests.

G. Neumann and his band have prepared some new dance numbers and will present some novelty selections tonight. The à la carte menus are in keeping with the demands of the summer weather.

Pelican Festivities

The festivities of the opening night (Friday) of the Pelican, situated in the Cathay Hotel, continued last night with renewed vigour. The spacious night club, air-cooled and decorated by F. Schiff, leaves nothing to be desired, specially when it is noted that Geza and Gino presided at two pianos, assisted by Bocharoff (drums) and Schlittner (violin) Raya Bershadskaya entertains with soprano solos.

Four Musicians

The Maskee boasts of a complement of four excellent musicians, two at the pianos and a drummer-violinist and an accordeon player, respectively, Jones, and Winner, Mike and Ignatieff. Air-conditioned, the premises are appreciated by dancers and by those who like to lounge round on the over-stuffed furniture. The orchestra's melodies are hard to resist, nevertheless.

Sleight-of-Hand

Jani Ballin, European magician and sleight-of-hand artiste, has opened an engagement at the Casanova Ballroom and is reported to be a strong drawing card. Ballin is an artist of years of experience and is well known in Europe. He is also a ventriloquist and plays piano, violin and accordeon. The Casanova dance music is furnished by Apollo's Gauchos.

No Women Wanted

Paramount's stage 8 was closed to women visitors recently by specific order of William A. Wellman, producer-director of "Beau Geste," but all men having legitimate business on the set were still welcome.

Wellman hastily disclaimed the suggestion that he'd turned woman hater, and explained he was shooting an important scene that would not emotionally affect men, but might frighten women into screaming in the middle of a take.

The scene features Gary Cooper, Robert Preston and a mouse.

Wilkins, Accordeonist

The Renaissance, it will have been noted from the advertising columns of the "North-China Daily News," have opened their summer garden and, in addition to their excellent orchestra, have added Wilkins, accordeonist of 29 years standing, to their staff of entertainers. The garden is connected with the dance floor and is particularly appealing to those who care to dine in the open and dance under cover. Russian and Caucasian dishes are served.

THIS WATER can give you back the HEALTH & VIGOUR of YOUTH

The little tube in the water jug you see illustrated here emanates a powerful radio-active energy which is absorbed by ordinary drinking water. When drunk regularly, this activated water definitely arrests the advance of old age and gradually restores youthful vigour and power.

Read what well-known doctors say

Many eminent doctors and scientists endorse the value of radio-active water in overcoming the onset of failing powers caused by advancing age. Here are a few opinions.

DR. HOLLANDER of London says: It undoubtedly retards the processes leading to old age and the signs of premature old age disappear. The movements of the patient get firm and confident, there is great elasticity and freedom from fatigue and it seems to stir up the fires of life throughout the system. Poisons and waste matter from diseases are rapidly neutralised.

PREMATURE OLD AGE REPULSED!

DR. F. SCHMIDT in his book "The Conquest of Old Age" writes: In practice this method has been found of great value in the treatment of senility.

Definite Relief For RHEUMATISM, NERVOUS TROUBLES BRAIN FAG, DYSPEPSIA ETC., ETC.

Water made radio active by the Radigam Emanator (the little tube in the picture) not only restores the vigour of youth, it also banishes the disabilities and diseases which attack the middle-aged and elderly. Radio-active water dissolves uric acid crystals and gives relief from the tortures of Rheumatism and like complaints. It purifies the blood, aids digestion, soothes jangled nerves, relieves insomnia, relieves blood pressure and tones up the whole system in the most amazing manner.

GILLETTE ARISTOCRAT No. 15 Set

The Gillette No. 15 Set illustrated here, which contains the latest Gillette one-piece razor, 10 Blue Gillette blades and one blade holder in a new type of Rhodium-plated case, has these definite advantages:

The razor is made in one piece instead of two or three, as formerly, thus making it easier and quicker to clean, and to use.

The blades are made by the new electrical-tempering process. They give not only closer, cleaner shaves than you have ever had before, but also more shaves per blade.

The case, as well as the razor and bladeholder, is plated with Rhodium, an untarnishable precious metal, not affected by climatic conditions.

Ask your dealer to show you a No. 15 Set—one of the most popular that Gillette have ever made.

DRAIN and REFILL Your Sump Every 2,000 Miles!

Decay "germs" are not limited to teeth. Your engine is subject to them, too. They are little atoms of road dust, tiny particles of carbon, minute metal scrapings from cylinder walls and bearings. They get into your engine oil. In sufficient quantity they make the oil into an abrasive substance . . . creating friction instead of cushioning it, wearing engines instead of preserving them. That's why you should drain and refill your sump regularly. Consult your garage.

TIBETAN EDUCATION

BY TIBETAN

For some years now two very flourishing normal schools in the city have turned out something like 50 trained teachers each year and these young teachers, men and women, are now taking their places in the scholastic world throughout the new province. Many of them are quite keen and desire to do their bit in the enlightenment of the children of Sikang. And the children, specially in the larger centres seem quite prepared to pack in all the learning their little minds will hold.

In semi-Chinese centres like Daofu, Kanze, Luho, Tailing, Yakiang, Lihua and Batang, where there are Chinese magistrates and a certain amount of Chinese influence, the schools are quite a success and well attended. There the scholars are, however, largely half-caste, and can to some extent appreciate Chinese culture. The Chinese magistrate with his yamen and retinue, stands, amid Tibetan surroundings, more or less for law and order.

The Chinese official may have a young Tibetan wife; the Chinese school teacher may have married a Tibetan girl; the Chinese merchants, as a rule, have Tibetan wives. These Tibetan women wash themselves, keep themselves clean and dress themselves as becomes the wives of educated Chinese. The reaction from this is, that all the Tibetan girls in the above named places, see and appreciate the benefits of civilization, and see themselves, one day, also occupying an official position. But the first step towards this goal is school, the second is a daily wash and the third is a nice well-cut dress.

* * *

The Sikang boy sees the Chinese magistrate; the Sikang girl sees the official's wife; ambition and Chinese characters accomplish great things, and the school for another year makes some progress. In many places west of Tachienlu the local school is the biggest thing on the programme and when a Big Man arrives on the confines of the district the first thing to meet his eye is a long line of school children drawn up on each side of the road. The children are all dressed in neat, military uniform, presenting a very smart appearance.

On one occasion a high official arrived in the interior and was surprised to find such a fine turnout; and what surprised him more was to find such a large number of scholars in a comparatively small place. The official arriving had prestige and he had money; both of which the school and the school teacher lacked. The enterprising teacher, knowing the big man was coming scoured the whole district for "probable starters" and lined them up in the school military uniform. Of course they washed their faces as not to have done so would have given the show away. The official recognized the good work done by the school and the teachers and everyone was suitably rewarded. In Batang, Litang, Daofu and Kanze, the government schools have been established for many years and are doing good work.

With the establishment of the new province of Sikang on January 1, a programme of schools occupied an important place. Schools are now being opened in practically every Tibetan village throughout Sikang and young graduates, men and women, from the two normal schools in town are going forth to the task. These young teachers were trained in the normal schools at government expense and part of their agreement was to teach for some years in the interior after their graduation. This they are quite prepared to do but it means hard work.

* * *

In many instances this is what happens: The Sikang Government gives the young teachers authority to proceed to the interior and open a school. A small salary may or may not be given or promised. Full of hope the young man goes forth to serve and help his country. He arrives at a small Tibetan village, interviews the headmen and makes known his plans. With authority behind him his position is recognized and the headmen promise to do what they can.

Each scholar is encouraged to make a contribution of dzamba, butter, tea or firewood (cow manure) and with a room in some large house provided by the headmen, the school begins. From the very commencement an attempt is made to make the young institution self-supporting; and in some cases and places this has been possible. This form of school organization is almost entirely confined to small Tibetan villages, with nomadic encampments in the distance. The young Chinese may strike oil; he may, however, hit a snag as several have already done and found themselves with an empty school house and empty stomach.

* * *

A nomadic school will always be a problem to the new Sikang Government. The nomad has no difficulty escaping taxes, rent, water rates and school rates. So when the young Chinese graduate comes into the district and announces his desire to establish a school, if the nomad dosn't follow the idea all he has to do to show his lack of appreciation, is move 20 or 30 miles up or down the valley. The young normad may devise ways and means of overcoming some of his difficulties, but he can't spend his life chasing after a nomad caravan.

The lamasery has to some extent overcome the problem: they ask that one boy from each tent be sent to the temple, and while there he is carefully instructed in the Tibetan alphabet. A nomadic tent, however, may have five or ten children, and it is the education of these with which the Sikang administration is concerned. There are three roads open to the nomadic boy: he may become a lama, a farmer or a nomad. If a lama, he enters the lamasery; if a farmer, he marries in some settlement; if a nomad, he stays at home.

* * *

The young Chinese school teacher begins his task in the interior under, extreme difficulties. All he has is a letter of introduction, his graduation certificate, his obligation to return some of his indebtedness to the normal school, and an open field. He has to overcome prejudice, superstition, ignorance and laziness. He has to convince the Tibetan parents that the dzamba or yak butter expended in the enlightenment of their offspring is worth while, and that the Republic wants each one of its subjects to become enlightened citizens. And all this and much more has to be put over in the Tibetan language, and done sweetly and smoothly and kindly.

In Tachienlu school life has begun with great gusto. The education given in Tachienlu is of a high standard. Among the refugees now seeking the shelter and quiet of this border town are many teachers from Nanking, Peiping, Shanghai, Hankow, Wuchang and educational centres in other parts of China. Arriving here they soon found their services in demand by the Sikang Educational Board. A young fellow all the way from Chahar is now principal of a school with some 300 boys at the north gate. The principal of the government normal school is from Nanking, and among the teachers are numerous young men and women with quite high scholastic attainments. English is being taught by young men who know how to teach it—this also applies to every other subject.

* * *

And not only has a new standard of education been attained; discipline has made decided progress. In both normal schools the principals are men who will stand no nonsense from the students. Last year the students in the government normal school ran the institution and turned the principal out. This year the principal is a man of quite different calibre and already the school has made a new name for itself. Other schools are following the lead given by the normal schools.

But education and discipline are not everything: the children are being turned into young Spartans. During cold and snowy days very early in the morning, the children, in crocodile formation can be seen marching along the mountain paths surrounding Tachienlu. And as they go they sing. Sometimes their voices can be heard singing patriotic songs. Apparently each school has its own particular early morning walk. That all this is decided scholastic progress along the Tibetan border of China no one can doubt. Even the children themselves are appreciating the different changes that have been introduced. To them the early morning walk shows them that after all life is worth living, and there are few things better than an early morning stroll.

Wisdom from the Weeklies

A Shock to The System It will be a surprise to many people to learn that the British Cabinet is not a legal body. Its existence has never been sanctioned by law, so writes a legal foxhunter in "Horse and Hound." It is not once mentioned in the country's statues. It could have no locus standi in any English court. Its very name was orginally an epithet, a term of reproach. Add to this the fact that its present supreme position in the scheme of government arose from a pure accident, and you have a series of facts sufficiently remarkable when it is remembered that they concern the Administration of the most powerful Empire in the world. From earliest times there has always been one Minister or prime favourite on whom the King leaned for relief above his follows. But the position of control and influence over his colleagues which the Prime Minister now possesses began about the time of Queen Anne. The Lord Chancellor, or, to give him his full name and style, the Lord High Chancellor of England, holds an office of extraordinary dignity and of impressive antiquity. As long ago as the Saxon King Edward the Elder, A.D. 920, we find his name mentioned, and even before that there existed an official who discharged the duties of the post, and whose classic cognomen of Referendarius sufficiently indicates the influences of Roman tradition. The Lord Chancellor of England is now the supreme law officer of the Crown.

Finances For a War The reports from Washington say there is no longer much chance of the Pittman amendment being incorporated in the Neutrality Act, and that is a blow to French and British hopes of being able to buy war planes, guns, tanks and shells from America in the event of war, observes "Time and Tide." But there remains a large number of essential commodities that will be obtainable, and nothing in the present situation alters that is above all the most important factor from the British viewpoint. If war comes, Britain will have to finance not only its own but its allies' participation, and Britain's ability to do so will depend upon America. British gold and British security holdings will have to be liquidated to pay the bill, and the liquidating will have to be done in America. How much gold the United States will buy and how much of Britain's securities cache America will consent to take—and at what prices—will depend on the direction of American sympathies. That they are overwhelmingly anti-German is undeniable. It remains true, of course, that the Johnson Act, unless washed away by the flow of anti-German emotion in America, will bar any British borrowings from America. But it will not prevent the liquidation for Britain's account in New York of the British public's holdings in oversea investments, which are estimated to total £3,500,000,000 and pay Britain a return sufficient, say, for all the food and raw materials this country imports. These savings accumulated by the nation and invested abroad ought to liquidate enough to see this country and its allies through at least a year of war on the modern scale. The British Government's outlay in the last year of the last war was only £3,146,000,000.

Pigeons in Warfare Pigeons in modern warfare? "The answer is," said Major W. H. Osman in the "National," "that we shall undoubtedly use them. The pigeon is often the last means of communication: in the firing line, when all the wires are down, when the wireless aerials are smashed, then it is upon the pigeon that we still must fall back. It is with some amazement that I reflect that despite all modern inventions, we must still use one of the oldest means of communication in the world. Assyrian bas-reliefs have been found showing that pigeons were used for message work more than three thousand years ago. In 1908 the Army and Navy decided that with the advent of wireless, pigeons were no longer necessary. The result was that at the end of 1914, largely because of suggestions by Colonel Hankey, a pigeon service for trawlers and drifters had to be extemporized. This was followed in 1915 by the Army Pigeon Service; and out of the Naval Pigeon Service the Royal Air Force Pigeon Service grew. Eventually all machines reconnoitring over the sea were ordered to carry pigeons. Pigeons during the Great War saved many lives and brought in many valuable messages. The whole of the American Lost Battalion on the Argonne was saved by a British pigeon. This bird, after the War, was taken back to the United States and kept in honourable retirement until he died, when he was stuffed and put in the Washington Museum. Even Lawrence of Arabia had to use pigeons for message work. It was decided in 1921 that pigeons were no longer necessary in the British Services. But events have shown (for instance in the war in Spain, and in China) that pigeons have still a great part to play in modern warfare. Aircraft forced to land in the sea may have some difficulty in sending signals of sufficient strength to report their position. All the European Powers and the United States have a pigeon service. It was with a view to avoiding the time-lag that occurred during the Great War that some time ago I suggested to the authorities that a nucleus pigeon service should be founded, and a register taken of all owners of homing pigeons, so that in the event of hostilities we should be able to expand immediately. The result is that pigeon fanciers can now enrol, stating what they are prepared to do; and at certain air station pigeon owners will be asked to supply pigeons for use in peace and war. The pigeons employed in this work at sea will need special training: they will have to be trained along the coast in both directions, so that wherever they strike land they will know the way. They will need several training releases at sea. A special technique will have to be evolved to enable the pigeons to be released from the modern fast-flying aeroplane in fight, if necessary.

Submarine Chaser Down on the Thames, at Chiswick, there's a whole fleet of small vessels moored, now being used as house boats and holiday accommodation of different sorts; these actually were once submarine-chasers, and in the "Listener" J. Sturge-Whiting has recalled some of his memories when serving with the submarine-chasers during the Great War. Life on an M. L. was about as vivid and as varied as anything the Navy could offer, he said. I saw it all from the point of view of the engine-room, though actually the vessels were so small and intimate that rank or station made very little difference. We were all amateurs, from the Skipper downwards, and most of the chief engineers were connected with the motor industry in peacetime, "Harry Tate's Navy" they called us, and we were actually a complete navy in ourselves, 650 identical vessels operating in an almost incredible number of capacities wherever we happened to be wanted. An M. L. is a particularly uncomfortable boat in anything like bad weather; and the engine-room was a little Hades of its own. There was only just room to walk between the two huge petrol engines, which were uncomfortably noisy even at ordinary cruising speeds, and like inferno let loose when opened up to full throttle. We carried a twelve-pounder gun, but the din in the engine-room was so terrific that we engineers hardly noticed the extra noise when it was fired. It is the common lot of all naval engineers to watch the battle, so to speak, at second hand. We had no way of knowing what was happening on deck, and had to guess. "Full speed ahead" rung down on the telegraph, after the order to close all hatches, meant usually a pretty desperate situation, and the nerve strain was considerable. We knew only too well that at best full speed could only be maintained for half-an-hour or so before the somewhat primitive but amazingly lively engines would give trouble, and I admit that on many such occasions our Skipper thought he was getting full speed when in fact he was getting something considerably less. One night stands out in memory; the Skipper decided to attempt to creep through the Samos Straights. The Straights are only three-quarters of a mile wide and one coast was Turkish. To attempt it in daylight would have been suicide, and our only hope was to get through unseen. On a moonless night we started, running only on one engine so that the exhaust on the enemy side of the ship should not be heard. Halfway through we were heard, and a fusillade of rifle and machine-gun fire opened on our starboard side. I started up the second engine and increased to full speed. Not even the usual red light was allowed and we had to handle the roaring engines in black darkness. Bullets and then shells. Suddenly both engines stopped. I had forgotten to open the emergency tank taps, which were in the after cabin. The boat for a few minutes lay dead, an almost point blank target. To divert the gunners we fired at the coast at point blank range with our twelve-pounder gun, which lessened the rifle and machine gun fire for the time being. I dashed down aft to the precious petrol taps, and turned them on. A few coughs and splutters, and the engines were restarted just as the Turks had begun to use star shells which lighted us up as though it was day. Zigzagging, we managed to clear the narrow northern entrance without being hit by anything more serious than one rifle bullet, which penetrated both sides of the engine room—"Harry Tate's Navy."

New York Thronged To Welcome King

Enormous Crowds Hold Greatest Celebration Since 1919; "Flying Fortresses" Overhead While Guns Thunder in Salute

New York, June 10.

THE British Sovereigns arrived on board the destroyer Warrington at 11.45 a.m. (11.45 p.m. Shanghai Time). They were greeted by a deafening chorus of sirens from ships in the harbour, while the batteries of the fort on Governor Island thundered forth in a 21-gun salute. Ten planes of the "Flying Fortress" type flew overhead in perfect formation. Detectives from Scotland Yard, who had come especially from London, formed a human wall on West Street, through which the royal cortege passed. Three open cars and eight sedans formed the official cortege. The car in which His Majesty drove through the city was a seven-seater open vehicle with unbreakable glass. Opposite the dock is the Whitehall building, in which are the offices of the German Consulate. From the 16th floor, a uge Swastika flag fluttered and was probably one of the first things seen by Their Majesties upon landing.—Havas.

New York, June 10.

The skies were fairly clear and a warm sun was making a determined effort to dispel a slight fog as New York prepared to receive King George and Queen Elizabeth of England today in what probably will be the biggest celebration since a vast throng saw the American troops march down Broadway after their return from France in 1919. Approximately 3,000,000 persons are expected to turn out and honour the King and Queen as they ride down to the World's Fair. Never in the history of New York have such extreme precautions been taken as those enforced last night and today. All traffic from Redbank and Sandy Hook, fourteen miles distant, has been halted since midnight. Anti-aircraft batteries were fully manned. Aeroplane detectors were in place to spot and bring down any unauthorized plane.

A dozen coast guard cutters patrolled New York harbour throughout the night. One of the cutters checked all life buoys to make certain none was shifted.

As early as dawn, crowds started forming from the Battery and there was every indication that all available space would be filled long before Their Majesties arrive.

Although the King and Queen will miss the traditional ride down Broadway as well as the splendour of Fifth Avenue, they will see nearly every phase of New York's physical character, including the slums and part of Harlem, which is inhabited by Negroes.

Japanese Invasion Of Shensi Planned

Three Columns Pushing Towards Yellow River; Chinese Confident

Chungking, June 10.

Severe fighting is at present progressing in West Shansi province, according to Chinese reports which state that the Japanese forces, in three columns, are pushing towards three important Yellow River crossings.

The main body of the Japanese forces is said to be attacking Chuntu, apparently with the intention of crossing the Yellow River, and invading Shensi province.

On the other hand, well-informed Chinese military circles here are sceptical whether the Japanese really intend to make a drive in the direction of Sian, the capital of Shensi.

They declare that the Japanese forces at present in Shansi must remain there, owing to the activities of the Chinese troops in various parts of the province; and that the Japanese must bring an army of a considerable size into Shansi in order to make a drive into Shensi possible. —Reuter.

Tsinan, June 10.

In a swift 24-kilometre drive from Ishui, placer gold mining centre in south-eastern Shantung, Japanese forces at 8 o'clock last night captured Chuhsien, an important highway junction, 170 kilometres southwest of Tsingtao, a field dispatch reaching here today said. Ishui was before its capture by the Japanese an important base of the Chinese troops operating in the Shantung-Kiangsu war zone.—Domei.

Chinese Bases Taken

Yuncheng, June 10.

Japanese forces today had wound-up two whirlwind operations against Chinese infiltrations in western and southern Shansi with the Chinese bases of operation, in both sectors, in Japanese hands.

Pinglu in southern Shansi was captured on Thursday, three days after a Japanese attack upon a Chinese force estimated at 30,000 men had been launched. Of the 30,000 Chinese, only 13,600 were estimated by Japanese officers to have fought the Japanese troops, the others having fallen back before coming into contact with the Japanese.

Chinese dead found abandoned in the path of the Japanese advance up to the fall of Pinglu numbered 2,343, including one regimental commander.

The Japanese forces, in this sector, took 484 prisoners, three trench mortars, 16 heavy machine guns, 28 light machine guns, 579 rifles, 46 trench mortar bombs, 30,000 rounds of heavy machine gun ammunition, 34,500 rounds of rifle ammunition in addition to a large quantity of other weapons.

In western Shansi, the Japanese continued localized mopping-up operations in the Liulinchen area up to Thursday, when most of the Chinese had been driven north of Lichiakwan pass.

Losses inflicted upon the Chinese up to Thursday, reports from Taiyuan said, were given by Japanese officers as 2,420 dead found abandoned; in addition to 991 prisoners taken.

Nine mountain guns with 193 shells, nine trench mortars, 29 heavy machine-guns, 37 light machine-guns, 149 automatic rifles, 439 rifles, in addition to 13,000 rounds of heavy machine-gun ammunition, 27,590 rounds of Bren gun ammunition, 31,090 rounds of automatic rifle ammunition, 31,920 rounds of rifle ammunition in addition to other arms and ammunition.

The western Shansi operations were launched on June 3.—Domei.

An interesting and successful performance was held yesterday at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium of the Shanghai American School when 18 students of the Class of 1939 of the school staged a play entitled "You can't take it with you" in the presence of an appreciative audience. Another performance of the same play will be given on Wednesday, June 14, at 8.30 p.m.

Sheldon Dyson did well in playing the part of grandfather collecting stamps, snakes, commencement exercises in a relaxed manner, while Penny was played by Louise Wiley who writes plays because a typewriter was once delivered at the house by mistake. Essie was played by Sidney Thomson, with vain aspirations to be a ballet dancer, and her Russian dancing teacher was successfully played by John Thomson.

The dignified Mr. Kirby was played by Cyrus Brown while Donald, boy friend of the coloured cook, on relief, was played by Donald Whitener.

Local Japanese Hit By Epidemics

Among the 96 persons suffering from typhoid fever in the Settlement and Concession in the week from May 28 to June 3 inclusive, there were 21 Japanese, according to figures released by the Shanghai Epidemic Prevention Office of the Ministry of Public Welfare, the "Shanghai Mainichi" said Friday evening.

There were five cases of paratyphoid fever and four cases of dysentery among Japanese, making a total of 30 cases of contagious diseases in the Japanese community, the paper stated.

A RAILWAY bridge between Chinkiang and Nanking, and large sections of the railway tracks have been torn up by Chinese units operating along the Nanking-Shanghai Railway areas, says a Kwangteh Chinese message to the "Shun Pao." Nanking-Shanghai train services, as a result, have now been interrupted, the report adds. Skirmishes are said to have broken out between the contending forces in the areas lying to the south-west of Tangsuichen.

New York Thronged to Welcome King

gent and Mrs. Roosevelt and sailed on the President's yacht, U.S.S. Potmac, for Mount Vernon, the former home and burial place of George Washington.

Another 21-gun salute was sounded as the yacht sailed to the cheers of a crowd estimated to number 250,000.

The King placed the wreath on the tomb of the first President of the United States with quiet reverence. The moment contrasted strikingly with the hubbub of the crowds the Royal party had temporarily left behind in Washington.

The King and Queen, with the Roosevelts, then toured the Washington family home. The Queen and Mrs. Roosevelt chatted with the caretakers as they noted the various points of interest.

Later in the day their Majesties went to Fort Hunt, Va., to inspect a model Civilian Conservation Corps camp in conformance with the King's expressed desire.

World Situation Discussed

The President revealed at his press conference that he and the King had reviewed the international situation in general terms the previous night after the state banquet at the White House, just as any two persons would discuss the situation in such strenuous days.

The King and Queen will arrive at the New York World's Fair grounds at 11 a.m. today and will receive Military Honours in the square in front of the Federal Building in which they later will have luncheon.

After luncheon they will tour the Canadian, Irish and British pavilions and view the Australian, New Zealand and colonial exhibits.

Leaving the Fair at 2.40 p.m., Their Majesties will drive to Columbia University, one of the oldest educational institutions in the United States and known as King's College prior to the Revolutionary War.

The King and Queen will sail up the Hudson from New York at 5.15 p.m. Saturday to be overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt in their family home at Hyde Park.

Their Majesties' stay at Hyde Park Sunday will probably be one of the most restful periods of their entire visit to North America. There will be no crowds, no ceremonies and no banquets. They will not be bothered by the necessity for hurried changes of clothes to keep up with their rapidly-changing social schedule.

"Hot Dog" Picnic

The King and Queen will be able to linger in the rambling two-story frame house overlooking the 1000 acres Roosevelt estate on the majestic Hudson River.

Mrs. Roosevelt plans a "hot dog" picnic in the President's "dream cottage," atop Duchess Hill, a cottage the President himself designed as a place of refuge from strenuous affairs of state. The cottage has no telephone.

Their Majesties, Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and eighty others will attend services Sunday at St. James Episcopal Church in Hyde Park. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Frank R. Wilson. Later they will return to the Roosevelt estate.

The British Ambassador said recently that Their Majesties had eaten 'hot dogs" before, but "in different circumstances." He said they never had enjoyed the frankfurter and bun concoction "under your name for it." —United Press.

Purple Carpets

Washington D.C., June 10.

Their Britannic Majesties left the Nation's capital this morning at 9.46 a.m. (local time), on their way to New York.

They were seen off at the Union Station by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay and many personalities of the diplomatic world. They will leave their train at Redbank, Maryland and board the U.S.S. Warrington, a destroyer, which will bring them to Battery Place, New York City.

Splendid arrangements have been made in New York for the arrival of the Sovereigns. Battery Place has been decorated with purple carpets and huge masts flying flags with the British Lion and the American Eagle. All along Fifth Avenue and Broadway—i.e. on the way the Sovereigns will take to go to the World's Fair—every shop has been dressed in gay colours, with reminiscences of British and American history being seen everywhere.

Three hours before the arrival of the Sovereigns, all traffic will be stopped along Broadway, in which more than 13,000 policemen will be lined, controlling a crowd which is expected to number more than two millions.

The Sovereigns will be officially greeted on Battery Place by Mayor of New York Fiorello La Guardia and will visit the World's Fair. Later on, they will attend a reception in their honour in Columbia University.—Havas.

"Very Charming"

Washington, June 9.

"King George and Queen Elizabeth are charming, very charming," President Roosevelt declared today at his usual Friday morning press conference when speaking of his royal guests.

He added that they were strongly impressed by all that they saw in the United States.

Everywhere they went, the King and Queen were met with great shows of enthusiasm and loud cheering, especially from school children who crowded on the roads they traversed.

En route from the British Embassy to the Capitol, the Sovereigns took the road leading through Rock Creek Park.

The King was dressed in a black formal coat, while the Queen had on a tasteful white dress.—Havas.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Opinion

New York, June 10.

Senator Key Pittman, President pro tempore of the Senate, stated later that the King had expressed his appreciation to Congress in the words of Her Majesty: "I am unable to express our appreciation of the universal friendship we have received."

Mrs. Roosevelt, at a press conference today, paid tribute to the Queen as a "social-minded young Sovereign with a keen sense of the difficulties under which a great many people live and labour."—Reuter.

China Protests to Britain

Handing Over of Tientsin Suspects Tantamount to Recognition of Peiping

London, June 9.

Extradition from the Tientsin British Concession of the four Chinese accused by Japan of murdering Chen Shi-ken, "Provisional Government" official, would be tantamount to British recognition of the Peiping authorities, the Chinese Ambassador, Mr. Quo Tai-chi, told the Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax, today.

He protested against any such eventual action by the Tientsin British Municipal Council, disclosing that he was making the representations upon receipt of a telegram of instructions from Chungking.

In the course of the meeting with Lord Halifax, which took place this morning, he also introduced Mr. C. T. Wang, former Foreign Minister and Ambassador to Washington, now Chinese delegate to the International Olympic Committee.

Chinese quarters stated this evening that the call "afforded an opportunity for discussion of the international situation."

Resistance Praised

They also said that Lord Halifax "praised the enery of the Chinese Government and people in resisting aggression."

Some political quarters stated that Britain was contemplating the grant of further credits to China to permit her to buy supplies and war materials.

Credits already extended have not yet been exhausted. Half of the total, amounting to £250,000, has been spent, however, on purchases of American trucks and cars, which are less expensive than British-manufactured vehicles.

Despite this placement of orders in the United States, Britain was held likely to grant more credits because the development of car factories in the British Isles would place them in a better competitive position in future.

The same quarters added that credits would be extended quicker "should there be a recurrence of incidents such as the recent Tinkler case in Shanghai.—Havas.

Foreign Sympathy Sought

Tokyo, June 10.

The Japanese Consulate at Tientsin is seeking an understanding with the various foreign consuls there regarding the Japanese decision to take free action to maintain peace and order in Tientsin, according to a press message from that city.

The message states that the Japanese Consulate has approached the French, American, German and Italian consulates regarding free action to be taken by the Japanese in maintaining peace and order in Tientsin.

This action is stated to have been taken following the refusal of the British authorities to comply with the Japanese demand for the handing over to the local Chinese authorities of the four alleged assassins of Mr. Cheng Shi-kang, the Customs Commissioner who was murdered on April 9 in a theatre in the British Concession.—Reuter.

Dicussions in Tokyo

Tokyo, June 10.

With Anglo-Japanese relations in China rapidly deteriorating, Sir Robert Craigie, British Ambassador, this morning spent one hour in conference with Mr. Hachiro Arita, Foreign Minister, at the Gaimusho. Discussed at the meeting, it was reliably understood, were:

1. The question of the British Concession in Tientsin, now faced with the prospect of a Japanese blockade, and

2. The detention of Lieut.-Col. C. R. Spear, British Military Attaché in Peiping, by the Japanese military police at Kalgan on charges of espionage.

While no concrete results were believed to have been achieved at the meeting, it was reliably learned that Sir Robert made a detailed exposition of the British standpoint in the two issues. Particularly exhaustively presented by the British envoy was the British stand in the matter of handing over to the "Provisional Government" four Chinese, held by the British Concession authorities in Tientsin, as the suspected assassins of Mr. Cheng Shi-kang, Commissioner of Customs.

Isolation of Concessions

"Isolation" of the British and French Concessions at Tientsin as "hotbeds" of anti-Japanese agitators within one week by the Japanese authorities on the spot was hinted in a press message this afternoon.

The dispatch stated that the refusal of the British Consul-General, Mr. E. G. Jamieson, to hand over the four suspects was regarded by the Japanese authorities as a definite manifestation of British unwillingness to co-operate with Japan in accordance with realities, but persistence in "countenancing anti-Japanese agitators using the British Concession as their base of operations."

Japanese authorities there had decided to "isolate the British Concession from the outside world" as a step in self-defence, the message declared.

Prior to the "isolation" of the Concession the Japanese authorities were likely to issue a statement describing the development of circumstances which compelled them to take drastic measures and declaring their "grim determination" to go ahead with the construction of a new order in East Asia by "overcoming all sorts of difficulties," according to the message.

At the same time the Japanese authorities in Tientsin will issue a proclamation to Japanese residents urging them to co-operate with the authorities in executing the new measures, which are designed to eradicate anti-Japanese malcontents, the message continued.

A similar proclamation, the dispatch stated, will be issued by the Chinese authorities to the Chinese people.

When the "isolation" starts, probably on June 14 or 15, all persons crossing the border between the Japanese Concession, the Chinese quarter, and the British and French Concessions will be examined and searched, irrespective of nationalities, at six places on the boundary, the message declared.—Domei.

Appeal to Home Governments

Tientsin, June 10.

The French and American Consul-General in Tientsin are stated to have cabled their respective Governments yesterday afternoon regarding the tense situation in here.

A Japanese report states that they requested their Governments to ask the British Government to reconsider its attitude "as further complications in the situation will adversely affect not only British residents, but those of other nationalities as well."—Reuter.

British Trade Prospects

Recovery Not Entirely Due to Increasing of Armaments

London, June 9.

Trade Outlook was debated in the House of Commons today when the President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Oliver Stanley, gave an encouraging account of prospects. The last few months, he said, had shown a very marked recovery, and the index of industrial production for the first quarter of this year had now practically reached the level of the first quarter of 1938.

While giving full weight to the effect of the re-armament programme on the recovery, we should not exaggerate it. There were a good many signs that the recovery was not so greatly due to re-armament expenditure as some people believed.

British industry was still engaged in supplying normal requirements and there was as yet no general dislocation of industry.

Speaking of what would happen when it was possible to reduce armament expenditure, he said that if a reduction came as a result of a sudden and dramatic stroke, then that very stroke would immensely increase confidence and make possible revival of international and internal trade.

In Germany, there was an entirely new economy. It was hoped that Germans would see that it would lead to reduced standards of living and would themselves abandon it. Meanwhile we must try to meet the problems presented, he said.

Referring to the Anglo-Rumanian trade negotiations, Mr. Stanley said there was no desire to exclude Germany from the natural markets which she enjoyed in the Balkan countries. What we do say, he added, is that we are entitled to our fair share of trade there, and we are determined to maintain it. Only restoration of confidence would allow our trade negotiations with Berlin to be resumed.—Wireless through Reuter.

Complaints in Britain About German Goods

Increasing Delays in Delivery; Poor Quality

London, June 9.

Mr. R. S. Hudson, Secretary of Overseas Trade, said in the House of Commons today that reports recently received in London indicated that there was increasing delay in German deliveries and in complaints about the quality of German goods.

It was encouraging from the point of view of the Overseas Trade Department to learn that the methods adopted by Germany, which they considered unfair, might not be succeeding as well as previously.

His department worked for over a year trying to devise some means to bring back trade to purely economic considerations and get rid of politics. It was not their fault that negotiations to this end had broken down.

Referring to trade with near-Eastern countries, Mr. Hudson said that the main difficulties were not so much the reluctance on the part of these countries to buy British goods as the difficulty in securing payment for them.—Reuter.

Gold Movements In U.K.

London, June 9.

Gold movements in the United Kingdom during the week ended June 7 showed a surplus of imports over exports by £1,272,000, compared with net exports of £4,987,000 for the previous week.

Exports of the yellow metal during the period under review totalled £2,943,000 and included £2,902,000 to the United States. Exports during the previous week amounted to £9,637,000, of which £6,609,000 was sent to the United States and £2,998,000 to Canada.

Imports of gold for the same period aggregated £4,215,000, including £1,305,000 from the Netherlands; £72,000 from Southern Rhodesia; £2,474,000 from British Africa; £165,000 from Egypt; £119,000 from Peru; £33,000 from Belgium and £28,000 from New Zealand. Last week's imports were given as £4,650,000 and included £1,555,000 from the Netherlands; £143,000 from Southern Rhodesia; £2,556,000 from British Africa; £279,000 from British India; £70,000 from Switzerland and £30,000 from Australia.—Reuter.

Yokohama Bank Withdraws Deposits

Tientsin, June 10.

The Yokohama Specie Bank notified all foreign banks here today that it was withdrawing its accounts with those banks next Monday.

The notification was regarded as another indication that Japanese authorities are planning to isolate the British and French Concessions in an attempt to obtain acceptance of the recent Japanese ultimatum to Britain demanding custody of the alleged assassins of a Japanese-appointed Chinese customs superintendent. —United Press.

Big Fine Imposed On Kladno

Commenting on the incident, the press bureau of the organisation states that this act is a crime against the entire Czech nation. Every Czech, it is declared, is obliged to assist in apprehending the culprits.—Trans-Ocean.

New Incident

Kladno, June 10.

Adding to the present tension here in connection with the measures by German authorities as a result of the murder in the night of June 7 of a German police sergeant, a new incident, involving a Czech and Germans took place today.

The Czech, who was driving in a car, failed to take off his hat when passing the funeral cortege. He was dragged out of the vehicle, thrown to the ground after having been severely beaten upon. Still not satisfied the Germans confiscated his car.

The casket containing the body of the police sergeant was draped with a Swastika flag and was saluted when passing the Wilson Square by the 500 Germans who watched the funeral, out of a total population of 20,000. The Czechs refused to come out of doors.

Meanwhile, no results have been obtained in the police investigation into the murder, although 150 persons, including the local editor of the paper "Ceske Slovo," several lawyers, doctors, and financiers were arrested.

The population is anxiously waiting to see what is going to happen after the 8 p.m. deadline set by the German authorities as the limit within which the murderer must be found.

Hats Removed

The inhabitants refrain from approaching the spot on which the man was killed, which is covered by a huge wreath and guarded by two soldiers standing at attention. Yesterday the German soldiers compelled residents passing by to take off their hats.

During the night several shots were fired at windows left open despite the measure banning the opening of windows between 8 p.m. and 5 a.m.

The German leader of the Kladno district has decided that the fine of Crowns 500,000 imposed upon the population will be paid by Jews and Benes supporters the former accounting for 80 per cent. of the amount, and the latter paying the remaining 20 per cent.

He stated that the population does not realize the gravity of the situation, and pointed out that workers were singing Czech songs in cafes and cabarets. Therefore, he added, he was compelled to order that all restaurants, cafes and cabarets be closed, and to ban the use of alcohol.

The local Czech authorities have offered a reward of Crowns 50,000 for the arrest of the murderer, the total reward now amounting to Crowns 150,000.—Havas.

Washington, June 9.

The House today defeated a proposal to quadruple the ratio of Federal contributions to state old age assistance plans.

The proposal by Congressman William M. Colmer of Mississippi would require the Government to contribute US$4 to each dollar provided by the state. The Federal Government now matches state funds dollar for dollar up to US$15 monthly.—United Press.

That Pain is Nature's Warning

And It Can be Cured in 48 Hours

You can be free from all pain within 48 hours. This statement seems almost unbelievable, yet it is true. A famous British Scientist has found the way to treat Rheumatic Pains, Gout, Sciatica, Neuritis, Lumbago, Nerve Pains, Neuralgia, Backache, Tightness in Chest, Bronchial Pains, Indigestion, Stomach Pains and Women's Ailments by a new method of application of Mild Radium Therapy.

The new treatment is the RADIGAM Radium Pad. This neat little pad, measuring 9in. by 6in., contains just exactly the amount of radium necessary to kill your pain and give back health to the tissues. Each pad is certified and individually signed by the eminent British Scientist responsible for its careful handmaking in his laboratory. Radium keeps its healing properties for 2,000 years. During all this time it is radiating what science calls the BETA and GAMMA rays, but sufferers who have been cured by the RADIGRAM pad call them the Miracle rays. These rays penetrate the skin, check the growth of diseased cells and drive out pain and the causes of pain. The action is rapid. You put the RADIGAM pad on to-night and to-morrow morning there is a great lessening of pain in all cases, and in most cases complete disappearance.

An interesting and fully informative booklet, completely describing this "Miracle" Pad can be obtained on request from the Sole Agents, Health-Rays Ltd., Flat 45, Denis Apartments, 770 Bubbling Well Road, Shanghai, Telephone 33837.—ADVT.

Australian Political Crisis

Swift Changes Follow Death of Prime Minister; New Government Lacks Majority

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

Melbourne, May 5.

SINCE the death of the former Prime Minister, Mr. Lyons, there have been swift and fundamental changes in the political situation. A Country Party leader has held office as Prime Minister for the first time. His Ministry created a record for brevity.

The coalition between the United Australia Party and the Country Party has ended, and the new Ministry, consisting entirely of members of the United Australia Party, has still to meet a House in which it seems unlikely to be able to command a majority.

During his three successive terms as Prime Minister he has carried a heavy burden of responsibility. In the last year his task had been aggravated by the rivalries and ambitions of certain of his own supporters, and he was continually harassed by the insidious propaganda of his own Party's newspapers. These organs have indulged in a campaign of detraction that had seriously impaired Mr. Lyons' prestige, and in a short time they would certainly have forced him out of office.

Actually both the Party and the Press have realized that the country now needed a leader of a different type. They failed to realize that only Mr. Lyons' gift of compromise had postponed the political disruption that so swiftly followed his death.

Fear of Instability

Whether that disruption can be checked remains to be seen. Many people fear a period of prolonged instability. Others consider that the stability of the Lyons' Government was degenerating into inertia, and maintain that a period of more vigorous politics will be a welcome and beneficial change.

When Mr. Lyons died the international outlook was disquieting. To avoid the possibility of the country being without a Government durng a crisis, the Governor-General, Lord Gowrie, commissioned Sir Earle Page to form a Ministry. Sir Earle was the Leader of the Country Party, and the Deputy Prime Minister in the Coalition Government.

Sir Earle accepted office, and requested all Ministers in the Lyons Government to retain their portfolios. He also gave an informal undertaking to resign as soon as a leader had been elected by the United Australia Party.

The reasons for this action were peculiar. The Country Party is numerically inferior to the United Australia Party, whose members would not have accepted a Prime Minister belonging to the minority Party. Sir Earle temporarily took office because Mr. Menzies, who had been Deputy Leader of the United Australia Party, had recently resigned from this position and from the Ministry because of a dispute over the National Insurance Bill.

All-Party Ministry Unpracticable

Efforts were made to induce the High Commissioner in London, Mr. Bruce, who is a former Prime Minister, to return to Australia. Mr. Bruce, however, stated that he would return only to form a national Ministry of all Parties. This was not practicable, and a Party meeting elected Mr. Menzies Leader of the United Australia Party, and prospective Prime Minister.

When the House met, Sir Earle Page, who was then Prime Minister, caused a sensation by announcing that his Party would not support a Government led by Mr. Menzies. Among the reasons he gave for this was the fact that Mr. Menzies had resigned from the Military Forces at the beginning of the Great War. This has been a constant embarrassment to Mr. Menzies throughout his political career.

While many Australians share Sir Earle Page's opinion that Mr. Menzies is not a suitable leader for the nation at the present time, despite his undoubted ability, Sir Earle's attack in the House was a tactical blunder. United Australia Party members regarded it as an attempt to dictate to the Party in the selection of its own leader, and it provided newspapers supporting Mr. Menzies with an opportunity to charge Sir Earle with personal rancour. Two back-bench members of the Country Party resigned from the Party as a protest, and pledged their support to Mr. Menzies.

Sir Earle Page then resigned, and Mr. Menzies has been obliged to form a Ministry composed wholly of members of the United Australia Party. The new Ministry is in a minority in the House. If Country Party support is withdrawn, Mr. Menzies will be forced out of office. This is unlikely, because it would involve an election, and by-elections have indicated a definite swing towards Labour, already the largest Party in the House. An election is consequently no more attractive to the Country Party than it is to the Government.

Present indications are that the Country Party will support the Government so long as it pays tribute to Country interests. A renewal of the coalition is also considered possible when tempers have had time to cool.

Labour Cautious

Meanwhile the uncompromising Mr. Menzies is placed in a position where compromise is unavoidable. If an opportunity occurs, or can be created, for holding an election on a popular issue, he can be relied upon to take advantage of it. The prospects of such a development do not seem bright.

The Labour Party is playing a cautious waiting game, and reaping the benefit of dissensions in and between the other Parties. Public opinion is divided and has been obscured by the barrage of Party publicity in the Press. Much depends on the attitude of the Country Party as a whole when the new Ministry meets the House, when a clarification may be expected both of political aligments and of the sympathies of the man in the street, who, in the final analysis, holds the balance of power.

Rice Shortage in Kwangtung

Hongkong Ships 100,000 Quintals to Coast Ports

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

Hongkong, June 4.

Hongkong rice merchants are benefited by the ruling of the Central Authorities to permit the import of foreign rice into Swatow, Chungshan and Taishan area duty free, and already about 100,000 quintals imported have been shipped to those places under special exempt permits granted by the Customs. The quotas for these points are not yet enough for the famine-stricken people. Prices of rice in the interior have gone up owing to big demand and scanty supply. The shortage is due entirely to the war in South China. Japanese occupation of Canton has cut off railway shipments via the Canton-Hankow Railway from Hunan, Kiangsi and points north.

Another cause arising from the war is that Japanese planes often machine-gun and bomb farmers in the field. At first, Japanese propaganda claimed that their bombers strafed and bombed only soldiers and military establishments, but many farmers were killed in the rice field while at work. For these reason peasants have to run for their lines when Japanese bombers are overhead. In this way the cultivation of the soil is affected by frequent air-raids in many villages and countries in Kuangtung.

New Kind of Bombs

The raids have more devastating effect now than before for, as reported by the International News Agency, Japanese bomb are more destructive than before. They explode horizontally and vertically, so that person who lie flat on the ground during the bombing are also killed. Even chicken, ducks and pigs are killed by the new bombs. Finally the blockade of the China coast has rendered it impossible for Chinese ships to convey rice among ports such as Swatow, Swabue, Pahkoi, Hoihow and Kongmoon.

Gen. Li Han-yun, chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, is drawing up a concrete plan to end the rice famine and soaring prices of this commodity. For years Kwangtung had to depend on rice from Burma, Indo-China and Siam to feed the 30,000,000 people. One way to relieve the situation, according to the scheme of General Li, is to improve the output in Kwangtung by scientific means. This means that better irrigation and fertilizers will be used, while every effort will be made to ship the heavy accumulation of rice from Hunan, Kiangsi and Kwangsi to this province. In view of the unfavourable rate of exchange between Hongkong currency and the Chinese dollar, the price of imported rice is high and will be still higher if it is subject to the usual import tariff.

Newer Education In Manchoukuo

Harbin Alters Scholastic Regulations; Introduces Modern Curriculum

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

Harbin, June 1.

Harbin educationalists are seeing the error of their ways. They have discovered that an intense knowledge of cosmography, a physicians's acquaintanceship with psychology, a friendly understanding with logic and a real intimacy with the geographical details of the world form poor padding for the youth who has to brave the icy blasts of life in search for positions which will keep the equivalent of the Siberian wolf from the door. Now practical training is the word from the time the youngsters enter the lowest of what is at present known as the folk schools.

Until recently masses of inedible information was literally thrust into the children, exactly the same form of learning which was dispensed in Russia of Czarist times. Even the uniforms were the same. Stately ceremonials and solemn rituals featured graduation day with the highlight being the White Ball, almost ecclesiastically dignified in its bearing.

Forth then stepped these sprightly youths to take the places in the world they had been led to believe was awaiting them. Dour disappointment, drastic disillusionment had to be met. Disgruntled, they learned bitterly that they had almost nothing to offer to induce employees to try them out.

Old Courses Disappear

Luckily this has now all disappeared. Many of the old courses, found entirely unsuitable, have disappeared. A modicum remains of others. First in the new kind of Russian schools introduced in north Manchoukuo are the folk schools. The course is of four years. Next follow the higher folk schools, of two years. Lastly are the high folk schools with a four-year course.

Boys and girls are taught together until they reach the high folk schools when education is separate and the girls receive instruction in how to become good wives and mothers by lessons in housekeeping and needlework.

In the primary folk schools the greatest change that occurs is in the teaching of Japanese and various forms of gymnastics. These continue and the higher the student goes the more comprehensive do they become. In the high folk schools sports, track and field, are there in abundance for all.

The inculcation of loyalty to the country they live in, respect and obedience to parents and friendliness towards others are the basic ideas underlying this new form of education which is for turning out strong people, both physically and mentally, and all armed with a practical method for making their living.

Practical Training

Practical training indeed is very much in evidence from start to finish. Carpentry, the locksmith's trade, electricity, agriculture, languages, navigation and railway work have their place in the courses which are given. The idea behind this is to give the youths the background for becoming specialists in various kinds of work and in all these subjects the theoretical part is allowed only to intrude so far as is absolutely necessary for them to grasp the practical end.

In Harbin at the present time there are one high folk school specializing in carpentry, two for foreign languages, particularly English, Japanese and German, one ecclesiastical and two for girls in which practical knowledge is stressed.

Ethics and morals, more or less absent in the old form of Russian school in north Manchoukuo, now make their appearance. There is no religious instruction except in schools run by religious organizations. It is believed that thorough tuition in ethics and morals will more than take the place of religion in the schools.

The new form of education is expected to be in full swing within the next two years and Harbin people are happy at the change for they think that this culling out of indigestible subjects with the inclusion of those which will make for success when school days are over will mean the end of the lean years they have so unhappily seen.

Important Social Event In Washington

British Embassy Becomes "Next Thing to Heaven"

Washington, June 9.

The gates of the British Embassy, now known as "The Next Thing to Heaven," were swung open at 5 p.m. yesterday and closed with a polite but distinct bang 45 minutes later as guests were admitted for the Royal garden party honouring King George and Queen Elizabeth.

As 1,400 Americans and Britons jostled into the Embassy grounds for the most-discussed garden party in American history, their talk centred on the new nickname acquired by the Embassy.

Reference to the Embassy as "Heaven" was strictly realistic in view of the limited number of garden party invitations issued. The British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, first coined the name "Heaven" for the Embassy when he explained "Some are taken and some are not."

The list of those attending the party included dowagers, debutantes, ambassadors, congressmen, senators, justices, bankers, lawyers, industrialists, administration leaders, social leaders and high Army and Navy officials.—United Press.

Another Panda Mystery Solved in America

Interesting Situation in Connection with Gender

BY ARTHUR DE CARLE SOWERBY

A most interesting situation has developed in connection with the gender of the young giant pandas which have been taken to America and placed on exhibition in the Brookfield Zoo in Chicago and the Bronx Zoo in New York. It will be remembered that the first live baby giant panda taken to America by Mrs. Ruth Harkness was named Su-lin and was said to be a female. About a year ago Su-lin, who had become a general favourite with the great American public, died. Her stuffed skin, exceedingly well mounted, was in due course placed on exhibition in the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, where she has continued to be a great drawing card.

In the meanwhile a very careful study has been made by the well-known anatomist, Dr. D. Dwight Davis, of the animal's body and skeletal remains, with the remarkable result that Su-lin, instead of being a female as was believed, has turned out to be male.

So far no details have been published regarding the anatomical structure of the sex-organs of the giant panda based on Dr. Davis' examination of Su-lin's body, but a report is being prepared for scientific purposes.

Grave Doubts About Sex

This extraordinary discovery, however, has thrown grave doubts upon the gender of the other young giant pandas at present in the United States. Recently, it will be remembered, one of these little animals that had already crashed into newspaper headlines because it was reported to have attacked and bitten the pilot of the aeroplane on which it was being transported from San Francisco to New York, again made world news when it determinedly resisted all efforts on the part of the Bronx Zoo authorities to ascertain its sex, for which it could hardly be blamed.

But the interesting point is that apparently in the immature stage it is difficult, not to say impossible, to determine the sex of the giant panda. This of course, explains the reason why so many females were reported to have been captured, which suggested that the sex-ratio amongst giant pandas was something like five to one, worse, even, than the deplorable state of affairs said to have existed in England in the late Victorian era, which led to the well known song "Three Women to every Man."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has purchased "Thunder Afloat," an original story for the screen by Ralph Wheelwright and Cmdr. Harvey Haislip, as a starring vehicle for Wallace Beery.

Federal Regime Being Planned

To Be Founded in Autumn, Say Chinese Reports ; Wang Arrest Order Popular

Efforts are being made by the Japanese and pro-Japanese politicians to establish what is termed the "Federal Central Government of China" on September 1 of this year, according to a special report published by the "Shun Pao" yesterday. They are trying to make General Wu Pei-fu, retired northern warlord who lives in Tientsin, president of the new government-in-the-making and Mr. Wang Ching-wei, the premier.

When Mr. Wang Ching-wei first arrived here he lived in the Kiangwan residence of General Doihara but later he moved to his own Shanghai residence in Amherst Avenue. In addition to a group of Japanese gendarmes Mr. Wang has more than 100 bodyguards. He would go to Kiangwan whenever he wanted to discuss questions with the Japanese, but when questions concerning the Chinese needed discussion he would hold a conference in his own residence.

There will not be any "Yuans" under the new government in the making. Mr. Liang Hung-chi, president of the Executive Yuan of the "Reformed Government" at Nanking, may be made president of the parliament, while other Yuan heads and ministers of the Nanking régime will hold ministerial portfolios in the future central administration.

The new government will make peace with Japan by signing a treaty, and by making Chinese fight Chinese, Japan will be able to make China her protectorate, it is stated. The new government will be assisted in the peace movement by the "East Asia Anti-communist League."

In April, representatives of both General Wu and Mr. Wang went to Tokyo to discuss the new central government project, but Mr. Wang has deemed it necessary for him to go there himself to discuss the steps to be taken in connection with the inauguration of the new government. Mr. Wang is said to be still insisting that the Kuomintang and the Chinese national flag should be preserved.

Arrest Order Welcomed

Chungking, June 10.

With regard to the decision of the Chinese government to issue a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Wang Ching-wei, former Deputy Executive of the Kuomintang, following the receipt of reports confirming Mr. Wang Ching-wei's second trip to Japan on June 2. the Chinese press here supports the government's decision, declaring that it will strengthen the determination of armed resistance throughout the country.

This present disciplinary action against Mr. Wang Ching-wei, the papers state, has not come as a surprise, as it was expected immediately after his departure. It had in fact always been under consideration. The Chungking government had hoped that Mr. Wang Ching-wei would in the meantime realize his mistake, repent and return to Chungking. Unfortunately he had not done so and his recent activities and speeches indicated that he was continuing on the old course.

The papers point out that Mr. Wang Ching-wei lost his prestige and influence when he left Chungking and that therefore his future actions would have no bearing on the continuance of Chinese armed resistance and the reconstruction of a free China.

It is expected that similar steps would be taken against Mr. Chow Fu-hai, who accompanied Mr. Wang Ching-wei to Tokyo.—Trans-Ocean.

Count Ciano Will Visit Spain

Third Frontier on France Predicted at Rome

Rome, June 10.

The Italian Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano will pay an official visit to Madrid about June 21, reliable Fascist quarters reported last night.

Fascist circles forecast that Count Ciano's talks with Generalissimo Francisco Franco, head of Nationalist Spain, will lead to a political and military pact involving Madrid, Rome and Berlin, giving the Rome-Berlin axis a third frontier on France.—United Press.

Man Accused of Death Of Infant

Valdemar Dorf, an unrecognized Danish accountant employed by a foreign firm at 681 Szechuen Road who has been detained by the police in connection with the death of his son in circumstances that have given rise to suspicion of negligence causing death, will hear his fate on Tuesday. A hearing of the case was held yesterday in the First Special District Court and after studying the case the judge reserved his decision.

The man's arrest was effected as a sequel to the discovery of a dead infant aged four months on a grass spot off Keswick Road, where, it was alleged, he had been abandoned. At first the police could not find the body but it has now been found. The infant was alleged to have been abandoned on May 27 after being fed by his father alone. The unfortunate infant was not given a name.

Polish Armed Might on Display

Some of the reasons why Poland is confident of her ability to resist aggression are shown in the picture, which was taken on the anniversary of the Polish Constitution of 1791, which shortly preceded the partition of the country between Prussia, Austria, and Russia. Polish children in Warsaw are seen saluting the march past of tanks, which was part of the celebration.

Vicissitudes of A Consul

Life of Mr. T. T. Meadows Recounted Before Royal Asiatic Society

Dr. Harley Farnsworth Macnair, formerly of St. John's University, Shanghai, and now of the University of Chicago, delivered an interesting lecture before the Royal Asiatic Society on Thursday on "Some Vicissitudes of a Mid-Victorian Consul." The subject of his lecture was Mr. T. T. Meadows, who was twenty-five years in the British Consular Service in China during the middle of the 19th century, first as interpreter in Canton, then as Vice-Consul in Shanghai, and finally as Consul in Newchwang (or Ying-kow), which treaty port in South Manchuria at the mouth of the Liao River he opened to trade.

The lecturer gave somewhat lengthy excerpts from letters in the Consular Archives at Newchwang written by Mr. Meadows on a number of subjects to his superiors in Peking or in England, which gave an illuminating picture, not only of the man himself, but also of prevailing conditions in China in those days, and relations between Chinese and foreign officialdom. It appears that Mr. Meadows carried on a voluminous correspondence, seldom writing any letter or report of less than eighteen pages, on a wide range of subjects. His creed was that facts unsupported by interpretations, deductions and general comments were of little value.

Zeal Brings Trouble

His zeal for seeing that treaty obligations were strictly carried out by the Chinese authorities at times led him into serious trouble, and he received more than one sharp reprimand from the British Minister in Peking on this account, to which, however, he appears to have paid little attention. A fine student of the Chinese language and the customs of these people, he was in many ways a remarkable man, but his outspokenness did not conduce to his popularity with the British merchants he ruled, his colleagues in the Consular Service, or his superiors. Nevertheless he was a valuable servant of the British Crown in a foreign land.

Apparently altogether serious and without the least spark of the saving grace of humour himself, his letters make extremely amusing reading. Undoubtedly he was a sore trial to those above him and a thorn in the flesh of the Chinese officials with whom his duties brought him into contact.

Two Published Works

He published two very valuable works, namely, "Desultory Notes on the Government and People of China" (1847) and "The Chinese and Their Rebellions" (1856), while his many reports, especially on economic subjects, were of the greatest value in helping to open up trade between Great Britain and China. He died suddenly in the midst of his work and was buried at Newchwang with as much pomp and ceremony as his second in command could muster. His funeral cost the British Crown twenty dollars and some odd cents, the payment of which led to a curt statement from the British Foreign Office that in future no such expenditures would be tolerated.

To his dying day it was a sore point with him that his Government refused to refund him the cost of a set of books on law which he deemed it necessary to have in connection with his duties as a Consul dispensing justice to Her Britannic Majesty's subjects. It was maintained by the British Treasury that such books were not likely to be used by his successors, hence the item in his expense account was not allowed. Those were hard days for the pioneers of Empire.

Five Chinese Planes Shot Down

Japanese Give Version of Chungking Raid

Five Chinese combat planes were shot down in a 15-minute combat near Chungking on Friday night as Japanese naval aircraft carried out their fifth raid against the second provisional capital of the Chinese National régime, the Japanese China Seas Fleet claimed in a communiqué issued at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. All Japanese aircraft engaged in the operation, numbering "about 30," returned to their base safely, the announcement stated.

The operation was described in the communiqué as "a huge success."

The Japanese aircraft, led by Commander Kusutaro Asano, reached Chungking, after several hours of difficult flying among dense clouds, at about 9.30 o'clock (Japan time), according to the announcement. A rain of heavy bombs, the communiqué declared, was released upon the headquarters of the Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, anti-aircraft batteries near Central Park, and other important military establishments.

Five Chinese aircraft, that rose to give combat to the Japanese machines, were "promptly shot down," the communiqué declared.

Few Casualties Reported

Chungking, June 10.

People who stayed outside the dugouts to watch the aerial combat between Chinese and Japanese planes during the raid on Chungking last night, saw two Japanese bombers crash in flames.

Comparatively few casualties were reported as a result of the raid.

Many people had already been evacuated, while a majority of those remaining in the city took no chances and sheltered in dugouts.

The local authorities are now planning to permit only 83,000 civilians and 27,000 servicemen to remain in the city. This will necessitate the evacuation of a further 110,000 people from Chungking.

The roofs of many buildings in the downtown district were damaged in the raid last night. As it was raining, the staffs of many business houses had to work this morning with umbrellas in their hands.—Reuter.

Copper Shortage In Shanghai

Poorer Class of Chinese Hard Hit ; Smuggling to Japan Blamed

The Shanghai Bankers Association will petition the Chinese government in Chungking for more five-cent and 10-cent nickel coins to be sent to Shanghai in order to settle the problem of the acute small money shortage here. The shortage has become so serious that in numerous cases Chinese shops pay change with postal stamps.

It is generally believed in Chinese circles that the shortage is due to the fact that many merchants have been buying coppers for the Japanese, who are alleged to have shipped them to their country from Hongkew in large quantities. It is admittedly hard to control the situation here, as the Chinese government can not exercise influence over Shanghai. The order issued long ago by the Ministry of Finance forbidding people to smuggle out coppers under severe penalties has been ignored in Shanghai but it is strictly carried out in districts under Chungking's control.

Disappeared Off Market

The Central Bank of China sent many new coppers to Shanghai long ago to relieve the shortage then, but seeing that the coppers quickly disappeared from the market, no further efforts have been made to obtain coppers from the Government mint, it is stated by a Chinese evening report.

The shortage has seriously affected the middle and poor classes of people here, since they have been forced to pay more than unecessary for large quantities of goods they actually need. When a man wants to buy 15 cents of melon seeds he is advised to buy 20 cents worth of them, because there is no change. By paying change in postage stamps many shops have so far settled the problems smoothly. Beggars in Shanghai have suffered because fewer people care to give them coppers.

Apart from the Chinese bankers' wish for more nickel coins it is also reported that the Chinese government may print copper notes for circulation in Shanghai in order to prevent copper smuggling here, but no confirmation can be obtained locally.

Hongkong Suspect Arrested Here

Detectives Get Their Man Within Few Hours of Colony's Notification

Peter Sheung, Cantonese employee of Messrs Millington, Ltd., in Hongkong, was arrested in the billiard rooms of the Sun Sun Hotel, Nanking Road, late on Friday afternoon, after a cable had been received by the S. M. P. from the Hongkong police, requesting the immediate arrest of the man, who reportedly had been in Shanghai for the past four months.

With nothing but a bare description of the man to go by, detectives from Headquarters brought their crime-detection machine into motion and a few hours later, the wanted man was behind the bars of Central station, where he is being detained pending further instructions from the Colony.

Sheung, it is alleged, acted as a collector for Millington, Ltd., in Hongkong and is said to have misappropriated about $4,500 during the few months prior to his swift departure for Shanghai. Hongkong police were on the look-out for him and intensive investigations were made in the Colony without bearing fruit Information was forthcoming, however, that he had fled to Shanghai four months ago and, as a result of the excellent work done by the detectives from Crime Branch Headquarters here, the Hongkong police were informed on Friday evening, a few hours after they had cabled the S. M. P., that their man was in custody.

Moscow, June 9.

When asked by the Chief Justice, M. Vosnev, if she had anything to say, Mrs. Ruth Rubins, American citizen, who is under trial on a charge of illegally entering the Soviet Union, replied :

The Judge replied that he would let her know later.

The trial lasted less than an hour and was very informal. No witnesses were called and the Court did not attempt to establish the motive for the alleged offence.

Mrs. Rubens looked well and was smartly dressed. She sat alone on the front row in court, smoking Soviet cigarettes.—Reuter.

THE schelly, a rare type of fish, has reappeared again in Ullswater for the first time since 1929. It is called the "mystery fish of Ullswater" because it has baffled the experts, who do not know how it comes to be there. Four of this fish weighing 2 lb. were taken from the lake on Sunday by Mr. Charles R. Harding, of Birkenhead who was angling for trout. The species is of Scandinavian origin, and no one knows how it comes to be found in Ullswater.

THE Ministry of Finance is considering the issuance of subsidiary bank-notes of the 1-cent, 2-cent and 3-cent denominations to relieve the shortage of copper and nickel coins in Shanghai, says a report to the "Sin Wan Pao." Such notes have been printed by the Chekiang Provincial Bank for circulation within the provincial areas, taking the place of copper and nickel coins, and it is expected that the new bank-notes for Shanghai will be of a similar nature, the report states.

A TEN-YEAR-OLD boy, James Gardiner, who had gone with friends from Motherwell, near Glasgow, to bathe at Lendalfoot Beach, Ayrshire, was on April 30 blown out to sea on a rubber raft and drowned. A squall caught the raft when it was only a few yards from the shore, and other bathers had to watch, helpless, as it was swept into deep water and overturned. Three men swam to it but could not catch up with it. Other bathers launched a boat, but were too late to save the child.

COACHMAN Ernest Lines who served the Royal Families during five reigns, retired at end of April after 48 years in the Royal Service. He is 66 years old. He drove coaches at the Coronations of Edward VII, George V. and George VI. Recently he was received by the King who presented him with the Victorian Gold Medal for meritorious service. Lines said he started as a stable hand in 1890 when he was 18 years old. As Royal coachmen they were liable for duty at any hour of the day and night and more than once he had been called out in the middle of the night during periods of national emergency.

RECENT endeavours by the Herring Industry Board to convince the War Office of the nutritive value of herring for the troops have apparently been successful. From a specimen weekly bill of fare for the Army issued by the Chief Inspector of Army catering it is noticed that fried herring figures on Sunday breakfast menu and soused herring on Thursday's supper list. You have very good meals in the service nowadays and the breakfast, dinner tea and supper menus are varied every day while the standard is such that it can safely be claimed that no army in the world is better fed than the modern British Army.

A PLEA that he drove a car from Piccadilly circus to Trafalgar Square while asleep was made at Bow Street on April 29, on behalf of John Angus McDonald Teacher, 27 an advertising agent, of Globe Place, Chelsea. He was fined £20 with £7. 7. costs for driving while under the influence of drink, and disqualified from driving for 12 months. Mr. W. B. Frampton, defending, said that Teacher had been with friends to a bottle party At 7 a.m. they went to a restaurant, but Teacher remained in the back of the car and from that moment he knew nothing until he suddenly found himself stationary at the traffic lights near Trafalgar Square. He was subject to sleep walking. Dr. Gorsky, police surgeon, agreed in cross examination that alcohol would aggravate the condition of a person given to sleep walking. He also agreed that such a person had been known to fly an aeroplane in his sleep—quite properly.

Rapid Growth of Concession

Population Trebled Since 1936 and Still More Residents Arrive

The population of the French Concession has approximately trebled since 1936, according to a recent survey made by the Concession authorities, with the population totalling about 1,300,000 persons, 28,000 of whom are foreigners, as against 478,400, including 23,400 foreigners in 1936. As is emphasized in the report, however, the figures are approximative, it being impossible to make an exact census, although it is believed that the number of residents living in the Concession at the present time, is even larger.

The reasons for this huge influx, are various. Whilst both the Settlement and the Concession have been steadily growing ever since they were first created, the large number of refugees who have moved into the Concession when hostilities broke out near Shanghai in 1937, are mainly responsible for this sharp increase. In the survey, an approximate census was taken of certain sections of various police districts and thus in the Foch sector for instance, an increase of 379.3 per cent. has taken place, the number of inhabitants being 2,636 as against 550 in 1936.

Housing Problems

Innumerable problems have been created, both in connection with the accommodation of the excess population and with regard to the food-supply. Whilst every vacant house —and there were quite a number in 1936—has been occupied, new constructions have gone up with lightning speed as have industrial enterprises, large and small, which moved from their previous locations in Japanese-occupied territory. It was for this reason, and for the purpose of safe-guarding the residential districts of the Concession, that a few months ago, industrial, semi-industrial and residential areas were created, whilst special consideration was taken of the matsheds which had to be built in order to accommodate destitute refugees from the Interior.

Whether or not the present population will be maintained in the Concession, after the conclusion of the Sino-Japanese hostilities, is difficult to say although it is significant that notwithstanding the fact that there has been no actual fighting since November, 1937, and that the Japanese authorities have encouraged Chinese farmers to return to their homes in Japanese-occupied territories, the Concession's population has increased steadily.

Precautions Against Cholera

The French Public Health Department has again taken unusual precautions to prevent the outbreak of any epidemics this summer and refugee camps as well as all other centres where a large number of people live under one common roof, are being regularly inspected, whilst mass innoculations against cholera and other diseases, have been given free of charge during the past number of months. Hospital accommodation is said to be sufficient to cope with any eventuality, whilst hygienic living methods are being taught by pamphlets, posters, story-tellers and various other methods.

Many Officers Shifted Following Promotions

S.M.P. Transfers Made Yesterday

In connection with the recent promotions made in the ranks of the Shanghai Municipal Police, Assistant Commissioner A. H. Samson will be temporarily in charge of "B" Division during the absence from Shanghai of Assistant Commissioner R. W. Yorke, according to police orders.

Superintendent J. B. Clissold, who until recently was in charge of Hongkew station, has been temporarily appointed Divisional Officer "C" Division, whilst Inspector J Swayn will be in charge of Hongkew station.

Superintendent J. His place will be taken by Chief-Inspector F. G. West, who until his promotion on Friday, was attached to West Hongkew Station.

Inspector S. V. Gash, who was attached to Louza until yesterday, has been put in charge of West Hongkew Station, whilst other officers promoted on Friday will remain at their present posts. Thus Chief-Inspector F. E. Dudley is in charge of Bubbling Well Station, Chief-Inspector E. J. Ling, remains in charge of the police court office, whilst Inspector J. C. Dickson, for many years already at the head of the S. M. P. fingerprint department will continue this work and Inspector F. Tetstall who for the past 18 months has been in charge of the training depot, has not been transferred.

Youth Sentenced for Seduction

Charged with seducing a young girl student, Chang Kyi was sentenced to three years' imprisonment yesterday by the First Special District Court. Only 17 years old, the accused was sentenced by Judge Hsiao who sought to discourage blissful young love.

The accused youth, said to be the son of a sweet shop manager, met the 15-year old Miss Ho Hui-tze about three weeks ago at the Wing On Skating Rink. They later went to a cabaret where they had a happy time together, but the boy was so adventurous as to take the girl to a hotel where they stayed for several days without the knowledge of their parents.

It so happened that on May 29 when he was walking in Avenue Joffre he was seen by one of the girl's friends who saw the youth making love to her friend on the rink and who knew that her friend had been absent from home and school for several days. She had him arrested.

Edwards of Hongkong, and Miss Emily Bahr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Bahr of Shanghai. The matron of honour was Mrs. J. Robinson, and the bridesmaid was Miss Ailsa Stuart-Murray. Mr. E. C. Kew was best man, the ushers being Messrs. A. L. Symons, Peter L. Bahr, and Francis J. Edwards.

Merchants Still Being Detained

An Accused Said to Be Relative of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek; Police Silent

Chen Kwong-tsung and a man by the name of Chiang, who, it will be recalled, were arrested by detectives from Crime Branch Headquarters, on Friday morning, were still being questioned yesterday and their release, which Chinese sources had forecast for yesterday, did not materialize. Whilst police quarters, approached for details on the affair yesterday, refused to make any statement, it was reliably learnt that the Japanese authorities requested the apprehension of the two men, on the basis of a document which the Japanese produced and which indicated that Cheng was Chief of Staff and Chiang Colonel-in-Chief of a guerilla unit operating in Kiangsu province. Cheng, it was learned yesterday, had been one of the chiefs of the Bureau of Public Safety of the City Government of Greater Shanghai, for five years prior to the outbreak of hostilities in 1937.

The authenticity of the document in which the two men are quoted as being high guerilla officers, is at present being checked, it was understood, whilst the men are being questioned and their past records investigated. According to one source, Chiang is said to be a distant cousin of the Generalissimo, but this could not be confirmed. It was nevertheless presumed that considerable importance is attached to the two arrests, the silence on the part of police officials seemingly confirming this.

The two men, it will be recalled, are the managing director and director respectively, of the Far Eastern Trading Co., at 150 Kiangse Road, where they were arrested by detectives from S. M. P. Headquarters.

The firm, which these two men head, is engaged in various lines of business and when it was first formed, in 1937, bought Wei Wah currency on the market. As far as could be learned from Chinese sources, the two men have had no political affiliations whatsoever since the outbreak of hostilities and were said to be prosperous businessmen who attend their office daily.

They are at present being detained at Police headquarters.

U.S. Underwriters Cut War Risk Insurance

WEDDING

Edwards-Bahr

The wedding took place yesterday afternoon at Holy Trinity Cathedral of Mr. Thomas Octavius Edwards, son of the late Mr. T. Edwards and of Mrs. A. C. Edwards of Hongkong, and Miss Emily Katherine Bahr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo J. Bahr of Shanghai. Dean Trivett officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a dress of white frosted organdie, made with a full, tucked and gathered skirt, shirred bodice with heart-shaped neckline, and puffed sleeves. Her veil, which was hand-embroidered by the Franciscan Sisters, was four yards long and held to the head by a cluster of orange blossoms shaped like an Elizabethan cap. She carried a sheaf of Madonna lilies.

Mrs. J. Robinson was matron of honour and the bridesmaid was Miss Ailsa Stuart-Murray. They were dressed alike in full-skirted frocks of white organdie made with heart-shaped, frilled necklines and worn with frilled boleros. Their short veils were of white dotted tulle held in place by wreaths of lilies of the valley and they carried posies of multicoloured flowers. Mr. E. C. Kew was best man and the ushers were messrs. A. L. Symons, Peter L. Bahr and Francis J. Edwards.

The bride's mother wore a dove grey embossed silk gown with a corsage of violets.

In the evening a Chinese dinner was held at the American Women's Club, 577 Bubbling Well Road, at which the guests were the wedding party and relatives and close friends. The bride's going-away dress was of multicoloured flowered silk crepe made with a full skirt and bodice, V-shaped neckline and short shirred sleeves and finished with a wide belt. She wore a green straw hat and white accessories. The honeymoon will be spent in Japan and the South Sea Islands.

Opium Seized on Russian Guard

Owner Escapes When Constable Arrests Foreigner

A cargo consisting of 36 lb. of opium, valued at $7,000 was seized yesterday morning and Ivan Roudchenko, chief guard aboard the Butterfield & Swire liner Shuntien which arrived from Tientsin yesterday morning, was arrested as a result of the alertness of a constable on point duty at the intersection of Rue Montauban and Rue du Consulat.

The constable, it appears, found the behaviour of a Chinese passenger in a public rickshaw suspicious and stopped the vehicle in an attempt to search the passenger. Roudchenko, who was also travelling in a rickshaw, close behind the first one, told his coolie not to stop, whereupon the constable, still more suspicious, requested him to accompany him to Poste Mallet. There the rickshaw was thoroughly searched and a parcel containing the drug was found.

On being asked to give explanations, Roudchenko told investigating detectives that a Chinese passenger aboard the Shuntien, had asked him to take the cargo ashore, promising him a reward of $200. Presumably under the impression that in view of his wearing a uniform, he would not be searched, Roudchenko agreed to the proposition, with the result that he now finds himself behind detention cell bars at Poste Mallet until he will appear before the Second Special District Court on Monday.

Concession detectives are at present searching for the Chinese passenger of the first rickshaw, who is believed to be the owner of the drug and who managed to escape whilst the constable was busy with the Russian.

Colonel Casseville Leaves Shanghai

Returning to Tientsin Aboard Shuntien

Colonel Casseville, Commanding Officer of French troops stationed in China, who arrived in Shanghai on May 26, on a routine inspection trip of the local garrison, left yesterday morning aboard the Butterfield & Swire liner Shuntien, on his way to Tientsin where he normally resides.

Prior to his departure, Col. Casseville inspected a guard of honour on the French Bund. Consular, Military and Council officials were at the French Mail pontoon to bid farewell to the popular officer.

Briton Decorated for Rescue Of Chinese at Kiukiang

H. M. Consul-General Presents Humane Society Medal; Best Western Traditions Maintained

STATING that the China incident has provided opportunity for the display of those qualities which are the foundation of Western influence in the East, Sir Herbert Phillips, British Consul-General, presented Mr. R. P. John, an employee of the Asiatic Petroleum Company, with the Royal Humane Society's silver medal for life saving at a reception held in the garden of Mr. T. S. Powell's residence, 1762 Ave. Joffre, at seven o'clock yesterday evening. A total of 183 guests, the majority of whom were employees of the A.P.C., attended the function.

In introducing Sir Herbert Phillips, Mr. Powell, who is general manager in Shanghai for the A.P.C., expressed his thanks to Sir Herbert for attending the presentation and also welcomed several out-port employees of the company who were present. Sir Herbert said in describing the conditions which gave rise to Mr. John's brave act :—

In the summer of 1938 the company's foreign staff at Kiukiang were not able to live on shore but were quartered in a steel pontoon. Those who know what Kiukiang summer conditions are like can imagine what life in a pontoon must have been. The pontoon was moored in a place where the current was strong, and there was a risk of floating mines coming down on it. Protection against such a risk was provided by a suitable device some distance away, but even so the explosion of a mine might have occurred at any time and must have added very considerably to the anxieties of those living in the pontoon. In order to provide some escape from the heat in the interior of the pontoon, the staff were able to build a "bird cage" on the deck from some mosquito screening that was salvaged from the shore. That their discomforts and inconveniences did not cause their morale to deteriorate is proved by the occasion now to be recalled.

John Rescues Chinese

The Royal Humane Society's medal for saving life has been awarded to Mr. Roy Powell John for a brave act performed at Kiukiang on July 20, 1938. One of the company's Chinese staff slipped overboard from the motor tug Kiangsi, and Mr. John promptly went in after him and succeeded in supporting the man until they were both picked up some 200 yards down-stream. At that time the Yangtze was running in spate, and those who are not strangers to the river know how dangerous it is to fall in and how extremely difficult in such conditions it would be to save a life. Furthermore the current was carrying the two men down towards a mine field that had been laid by the Chinese before they evacuated Kiukiang Bund.

Another member of the Kiukiang foreign staff, Mr. Frank Balderston Elliott, also performed a brave act a few days after Mr. John by saving the life of the 16-year old son of the laodah of one of the company's launches. The boy fell overboard and for a minute or two was submerged. As soon as he came to the surface Mr. Elliott jumped into the river and managed to put him on board a sampan. After applying artificial respiration for ten minutes Mr. Elliott managed to revive the boy.

Kiukiang One "Episode"

For the A.P.C. and for foreign interests in general Kiukiang has been but one "episode" in the protracted China incident. Nevertheless, it has provided opportunity for the display of those qualities that are the formation of Western influence in the East. Throughout the period of the hostilities the A.P.C. alone has retained the same personnel at the port right up to recent months. Their staff have worthily maintained the positions of "oldest inhabitants," and with the navy have provided leadership and initiative whenever occasion offered. The Kiukiang manager, Mr. Fretwell, has throughout been an excellent leader and a worthy successor to a father whose life was spent in distinguished service with the group companies.

Minor Incidents In Danzig

Poland Takes Precautions As Thousands of Brown Shirts Enter City

Danzig, June 10.

Several new incidents took place here yesterday, as the Free City Political Police arrested an employee of the Polish Postal Services. Also taken in custody were his wife and his son. No motives were given for the arrests.

Several other Polish civil servants on Danzig's territory had their premises searched by the local police. One of the searches was conducted in the residence of an employee of the Polish Commissariat General in the Free City.—Havas.

Nazis Pour Into Danzig

Danzig, June 10.

More than 6,000 German Nazi Storm Troopers, headed by their chieftain, Victor Lutze, arrived here yesterday in readiness for the annual Nazi rally here over the weekend.

German officials here denied that the arrival of the large number of Nazi Storm Troopers was connected with the delicate political situation between Danzig and Poland.—United Press.

Poland Takes Precautions

Warsaw, June 9.

The Polish Government decreed precautionary measures along the frontier of Danzig territory today following the concentration of a large number of Storm Troopers in the Free City for the impending huge sports competitions.

Several thousands of special German police agents arrived in Danzig during the past few days in "tourist" trains, some quarters reported.

Nevertheless, Polish political quarters and Germans here appeared convinced that this concentration of German forces was held only to try and intimidate Poland.

It was not the precursor of a drastic change in the Free City's political situation or status, they said.—Havas.

Poland's Aspiration Towards Danzig

Danzig, June 10.

The Polish aspirations were clearly expressed by two speeches yesterday, according to the "Danziger Vorposten." In the resort town of Ciechocinek near Thorn, the Polish Minister Koscialkowski declared in a speech that Poland would not only fight for her present frontiers but for the "complete victory" which includes the return of the "original Polish territory" to Poland.

The leader of the workers in the Pomerellen sugar factories referred in his speech to the historical battle of Tannenberg in 1410 and declared that a second Tannenberg must finally come. When the town of Schwetz was proposed for the next annual congress of the workers, the leader declared "the next congress will naturally take place in Polish Danzig."—Trans-Ocean.

"Danzig Will Return to Reich"

Danzig, June 10.

"When in foreign countries the fate of Danzig is discussed," said Regional Leader Albert Forster speaking here last night, "the impression created is that there is some dispute about the future of this German city at the mouth of the Vistula. For Danzig and its population ever since the National Socialist Party took over the political leadership of this independent German state created by Versailles, there has never been any doubt that the 400,000 Germans in Danzig who want to return to the Reich will one day see the wish of their hearts gratified."

Thereupon the chief of staff of the Brown Shirt S. A. detachments, Viktor Lutze, spoke on the significance of the sporting events today and tomorrow in Danzig and in concluding said "I know that here in the east stands a National Socialist manhood on which our Fuehrer can always rely."—Trans-Ocean.

8,000 Brown Shirts

Danzig, June 10.

At the demonstration of 8,000 Brown Shirt S. A. troopers from East Prussia and Danzig, held here yesterday evening and attended by about 10,000 men and women of Danzig, the attachment of Danzig to the Reich and the confidence in the return of the mouth of the Vistula to the Great Reich was strongly emphasized in speeches made by the chief of staff of the Brown Shirt S. A. detachments, Viktor Lutze, and the Regional Leader of Danzig, Albert Forster, and in a telegram sent to the Fuehrer.

The National Socialist Party authorities in Danzig declare that the 6,000 East Prussian Brown Shirt S. A. troopers came to Danzig merely for sporting contests. It was emphasized that there was no intention that these peaceful sporting activities should have any kind of effect on the Polish neighbours.—Trans-Ocean.

S.A. Chief Visits Danzig

Danzig, June 10.

The chief of staff of the Brown Shirt S. A. detachments, Viktor Lutze, arrived here from Berlin by aeroplane yesterday when he was met at the airport by the chief of the Danzig Government, Senate President Arthur Greiser, and the Danzig Regional Leader, Albert Forster.

Guards of honour of police, Brown Shirt S.A. detachments and Labour Corps were drawn up to give the guest an official welcome.—Trans-Ocean.

Anti-Nazi Attack In Argentine

Denunciation Made in Lower Chamber

Buenos Aires, June 9.

A strong denunciation of Nazism "the enemy of Christianity," was heard in the Lower Chamber here today when Socialist Deputy Dickmann spoke on the activities of foreign nationals in Argentina.

He asserted that many Germans had brought him proof that a large number of them had been discharged by their firms to be replaced by Nazis sent out from the Reich.

He read extracts from a Nazi catechism in which Germans living abroad are advised to try and sap the national institutions of their host countries.

He then denounced local organizations favouring Nazi and Fascist theories, such as the Italian Dopolavoro societies, and violently criticized publications campaigning against the interests of Argentina.—Havas.

China Repeats Charges Against Japan

Deliberate Fostering of Drug Habit Alleged

Geneva, June 9.

When the League of Nation's Opium Commission met today to consider its report to the Council, Dr. Victor Hoo, the Chinese delegate, insisted on the insertion of a paragraph recording his allegations against the Japanese authorities in the occupied areas in China.

The allegations, which Dr. Hoo declared were amply corroborated by neutral observers, were to the effect that the drug habit was deliberately encouraged among the Chinese people so as to increase the revenue and enfeeble the Chinese resistance to Japan.

M. Gavrilovic, the Yugoslav representative, objected strongly, but the majority of members decided it was impossible to refuse the request of a responsible member of the Commission.

M. Gavrilovic's attitude was severely criticized by several speakers.—Reuter.

American Woman in Russia Released

Espionage Charges Heard In Open Court

Moscow, June 10.

Miss Ruth Marie Rubens, Alias Mrs. Donald L. Robinson, will go free this week after being detained in Soviet prisons for almost two years on sensational charges of espionage.

The mysterious American woman, who had several times been reported executed as a spy in Soviet Russia, pleaded guilty in an open hearing in municipal court yesterday and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

But the charge brought against her was "illegal entry" rather than espionage, thereby averting a military trial and possible execution. The court also took into account the time Miss Rubens had already served in prison, thereby guaranteeing her freedom this week.

Miss Rubens testified that her husband, who has not been heard from since his arrest, offered to take her to Europe and Russia for her health. She said the only way they could get into the Soviet Union was through the use of false documents on which they adopted the name Robinson.

Husband Still Missing

Miss Rubens questioned the court concerning her husband's whereabouts and was told that information would be revealed later.

Questioned for a moment by the United Press, Miss Rubens said "I don't think there is anything I can say now." At that point her Soviet guard politely intervened since she is still in custody and probably will be escorted to the Soviet border.

The Department of State in Washington disclosed last year that the "Robinsons" obtained false passports in one of the most amazing frauds ever perpetrated on the American diplomatic service.

The passports were obtained in the names of two children who died almost a quarter of a century ago but whose ages, had they lived, would have approximated those of the mysterious couple.

After the detention of the Robinsons in Russia the United States Government made vigorous representations, but the case was dropped when the passport fraud was disclosed.—United Press.

Faces U.S. Charges

Moscow, June 10.

Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens, alias Mrs. Donald L. Robinson, was ready to be set free today after being detained in Soviet prisons for almost two years on sensational charges of espionage but she now faces charges in the United States of obtaining a false passport.

Since Mrs. Rubens lacks proper credentials, she is able to remain in Russia for only 24 hours. Consequently she must apply to the United States Embassy for a passport and travelling permit in order to return to the United States where she must reply to charges of obtaining a false passport. Her release from prison, however, may be delayed if the Soviet authorities want her as a material witness in her husband's case.—United Press.

Distrust in Germany Of British Speeches

Return of Colonies More Important than Words

Berlin, June 9.

The speeches made by Mr. Neville Chamberlain and Lord Halifax during the foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons yesterday, were received with deep distrust in official circles and by the press.

The speeches are interpreted as having been actuated by hitches in the Anglo-Soviet negotiations, and political circles declare "if Britain is willing to recognize Germany's share in the world, there is a clear way to showing it in the return of the German colonies, of which she was robbed at Versailles."—Reuter.

Maginot Line Troops Being Released

Paris, June 9.

The Prime Minister, M. Daladier, announced today that those conscripts who, in the recent crisis, had been kept with the colours after finishing the normal term of service, or who were recalled subsequently, would be demobilized within four months.

The "fortress troops" manning the Maginot line, he added, would be released on September 1 and the others a month later.—Reuter.

Identity of Kidnapper In U.S. Revealed

Also Stole Money to Help Pay for Mother's Farm

San Francisco, June 10.

Graham Gaylord, 19-year-old nurse who kidnapped frail little Krehe Osborne for U.S.$1600 ransom two days ago, identified herself last night as Margaret Weil, of Nassau, N.Y.

Earlier Miss Weil told police she would plead guilty to the kidnapping charge and go to prison for life rather than reveal her true name or the name of "one very dear" to her.

Disclosure of her identity last night brought reports from Nassau where Mrs. Catherine Weil disclosed she was the one "very dear" to Miss Weil. She said her daughter had braved life imprisonment to obtain money for a clear title on their farm.

She said the only news she had received of the case was a telegram from her daughter saying, "Held on serious charges. Need help badly."

Wanted for Theft

After revealing her identity here, Miss Weil admitted she was wanted for thefts in Chicago in January and in Los Angeles in May.

Police rescued the young Osborne boy yesterday and returned him unharmed to his distraught mother, Mrs. George Osborne, after he had been held by the nurse for 30 hours. Miss Weil was arrested when the boy was recovered near a San Jose hotel. They were returning to her hideout in the hotel after a short walk when police discovered them.

The unsuccessful kidnapping was California's first ransom kidnapping since two Kentucky fruit pickers seized Mrs. Norma Meeks, a rancher's wife, last autumn. They held her for U.S.$15,000 ransom which they failed to receive because she escaped. They were later captured and imprisoned.—United Press.

Yankee Clipper

Horta, June 9.

On the last lap of her second trans-Atlantic return mail flight, the Pan-American Airways giant seaplane, Yankee Clipper, took off at 5.30 p.m. today for Port Washington. She arrived in the Azores and landed here at 3.10 p.m., coming from Southampton and Lisbon.—Havas.

Parks and Open Spaces Report

Number of May Visitors Totals 326,123; Several Thousand Trees Planted

The Superintendent of parks and open spaces reports:—The construction of a series of mounds and the excavation of a small pond in the southeast corner of the Jessfield Park was completed, over 2,100 trees and shrubs being planted on the site. Wire fences were erected along pathways prior to the area being opened to Park visitors. Work on the reconstruction of Park boundary fences was continued, and general maintenance work was carried out.

In the greenhouses, displays of Fuchsias, Gloxinias and other pot plants were on view throughout the month. Seasonal work in this section included the potting of Dahlias, Marguerites, Nasturtiums, Streptocarpus and Grevillea and the insertion of cuttings of Coleus, Dieffenbachia, Lantana, Draceana and many other hardy plants and shrubs.

At the Zoological Garden, the erection of ten pheasant and animal cages was completed, and progress was made on the erection of new water fowl enclosures. A collection of small birds was presented by Mr. T. K. Kou, and twelve white-necked and two sacred cranes were loaned to the Garden.

Other Park Areas

Kiaochow Park and the Bund Garden were maintained in good condition during the month, floral displays of roses and hardy annuals being very attractive. In this connection, the display of hardy annuals in the Bund Garden is especially noteworthy.

Chrysanthemums were transplanted into tile pots at the Nurseries, the pruning of early-flowering shrubs was carried out and seed of summer-flowering annuals was sown. A sports meeting was held at Kiaochow Park on May 6.

German Press Criticism Of Royal Visit

Weary King Said Forced Through Long Programme

Berlin, June 10.

The Nazi controlled German press continued its vitriolic attack on the United States yesterday in describing the reception given King George and Queen Elizabeth in Washington.

"When the King was introduced to President Roosevelt," said a special report to the "Zwoelfuhrblatt," "he forced to his face a stereotyped broad smile."

"The King appeared tired after his long journey, but nevertheless the Americans subjected him to a long programme.

"For the diplomatic reception, President Roosevelt naturally took the opportunity of inviting the Albanian and Czech 'ministers'."—United Press.

Berlin Bourse

Berlin, June 9.

The Berlin bourse opened relatively firm today. At first quotations showed a slight improvement but generally speaking business was still quiet although a fair amount of buying orders from the Rhineland, particularly mining shares, tended to consolidate the market. In the course of the session the upward tendency continued and the best prices were maintained at the closing of the bourse.—Trans-Ocean.

Shanghai Stocks

Yesterday's Business

Another very active day was seen in the Stock Exchange, especially in Rubbers, many shares opening sharply higher and advancing further as trading proceeded.

With exchange still uncertain and inclined to easiness, and Raw Rubber creeping up day by day investment in the shares evidently appeals to many investors as a refuge for their money.

Later in the session prices receded from the highs but closing rates in general remained well above the day before, sellers predominating.

The Industrial section of the Board was also fairly active and prices ruled higher.

Dow-Jones Summary

By Courtesy of Swan, Culbertson & Fritz

Stock prices advanced from fractions to two points, with the Dow-Jones Industrial Average touching the highest level recorded since March 27. Best gains were witnessed late in the morning when the volume of trading increased sharply, but, thereafter, prices fluctuated narrowly around the day's highs in curtailed dealings. Reports of further improvement in the retail trade helped mercantiles and mail orders.

British Rubber Stocks

The average of market forecasts of this week's stocks of Rubber in London and Liverpool, compared with last week's official figures, indicates an increase of 300 tons in London and a decrease of 350 tons in Liverpool.—Reuter.

London Stocks

Friday's Closing Quotations

London, June 9.

Following the disappearance of yesterday's nervousness, the Stock Exchange opened steady today. However, the absence of demand, owing to weekend considerations, caused a further downdrift in prices.

Kaffirs were finally steadier on the latest dividends, which were well received. Oils moved narrowly; British gilt-edged securities were fractionally easier; and, international issues closed firm with useful gains. —Reuter.

Car Production In U.S.A. and Canada

New York, June 9.

The production of cars and trucks in the United States and Canada for the week ended June 9, showed a large increase, according to figures released by Ward today. This advance in production was principally due to the ending of Briggs strike.

During the period under review, the output of cars and trucks was listed at 65,265 units, showing an increase of 32,820 units from the previous week, and an increase of 25,090 units from the corresponding period last year.—Reuter.

Friday's Closing Quotations

New York, June 9.

Trading in the cotton market was fairly active today, with prices advancing on reports of overwet conditions prevailing in the Central belt and the comparative steadiness of the southern and spot markets. However, the continual delays in Washington over the Appropriations Bill and the easiness of foreign cables, on the whole, confined price fluctuations to a narrow range. Closing quotations ranged from 1 point down to 6 points up, compared with the previous final levels.

Trading in raw rubber futures continued to be featureless. However, some small buying was noticed here and there, and, on balance, the market closed on the upside, with gains of 5 to 9 recorded.

Traders in the Chicago Grain Pit were marking time. Reports of improving weather conditions and the larger Government estimate for Winter Wheat restricted operations. However, losses were only fractional, and the market closed from ½ to ⅝ cent down.

Masonry Is Not a Religion

Sermon Preached at Holy Trinity Cathedral By Rev. P. C. Matthews at Masonic Service

TEXT:—And upon the top of the pillars was lily work: so was the work finished. (1 Kings VII. 22).

WERE only masons present, there is much I would wish to say concerning Masonry and its purely religious implications, but I must, of course, bear in mind those here who are not Masons, and who, quite naturally, wonder what Masonry is—and why Masons guard their secrets so jealously, if they are of real value to mankind in general. I may, I think, at the outset, say that, so far as I have seen or heard in my 18 years of Masonry, there is no truth whatever in the oft-repeated idea that a goat or a donkey plays any part in our ceremonies.

The regalia you see this evening is not fancy dress: it has a definite meaning—not merely in so far that it distinguishes rank. There are essential degrees in Masonry: having attained these, a Mason, may, if he wishes, take office. Many wish to rise to high office; others do not—all alike are members of a great brotherhood which has spread to all parts of the world.

An Old Institution

Masonry is a very old institution, and its present consitution dates back over 200 years. Royalty, frequently in the past has been, and still is, well represented in Masonry—as are men of all sorts and stations in life. It is non-sectarian, not merely clergymen of the Church of England are to be found in its ranks, but also ministers of the Free churches. It is non-political, hence all political parties are well represented—and all alike are Masons on the essential condition that they believe in the Supreme Being—God, to whom we all must submit and whom we all ought humbly adore. As a constant reminder, the Bible, referred to by Freemasons as the Volume of the Sacred Law, is always open in the Lodges. Now, obedience to God necessarily involves adherence to the belief in and practice of, brotherhood.

Every Freemason is strictly forbidden to countenance any act which may have a tendency to subvert the peace and good order of society: he must pay due obedience to the laws of any state in which he resides, and he must never be remiss in the allegiance due to the Sovereign of his native land.

Non-Political

While Masonry thus inculcates loyalty and citizenship, it reserves to the individual the right to hold his own opinion with regard to public affairs. But neither in any Lodge, nor at any time in his capacity as a Freemason, is he permitted to discuss or to advance his views on the logical or political questions.

A Mason thus retains his freedom of thought in political and theological matters, provided that—as a Freemason he does not discuss them, lest unseemly disputes arise, and provided that he pays unswerving homage to the Almighty Father and Supreme Governor of the Universe. Now, as all Masons pay allegiance to one Almighty Father, it follows that they are brothers to one another, brothers bound by special ties. As such, a Mason must endeavour to be a worthy brother: hence he has a duty not only to God and to brother Freemasons, but also to himself—for he must be a true brother and a worthy, if silent, representative of the great brotherhood, even to those who are not members of it.

To God, each one of us Masons has a clear duty—not merely by never mentioning His name but with that awe and reverence which are due from the creature to his Creator, not merely imploring His aid and looking up to Him in every emergency for comfort and support.

Not a Religion

Masonry is not a religion—it does not pretend to be that: but it is a religious society—a fact that is, I fear, sometime overlooked. True, a Lodge need not have a Chaplain at all, but if it has, he takes precedence of both the Secretary and the Treasurer, since the V.S.L. is to hold a higher place among the brethren than either the minute book or the cash book. I hope it does—in reality.

The Chaplain's duties are not lengthy; in our daily lives, most of our time is spent in some forms of labour and refreshment, part of it in serving a friend or brother in time of need, and some part—it probably may be only a tiny part—in prayer to Almighty God: but this last is an essential part. Essential, for one thing because if our labours in life are to be conducted in peace, we must seek from God, who alone can give it, that peace of mind which enables us to perform our duty to our neighbour—by rendering him every kind office which justice or mercy may require; in fact, by doing to him as in similar cases we would wish he should do to us.

Brotherhood

For brotherhood involves practical duties to others—not merely by words, but by deeds, and often involves generosity as regards time and money. The Masonic Hospital and the Masonic Schools near London are examples of practical brotherhood: there are, of course, other institutions too, though less publicly known. 'Brotherly love' is merely a hypocritical expression unless supported by the relief of those who need help, and by truth in all our dealings—yes—in all our dealings. To get on in the world, the motto may be "business is business," which, being interpreted, is, "Do others before they do you." The law of brotherhood reads, "Do unto others as you would they should do unto you." Now do we, members of a great brotherhood, do we, in our daily lives, do unto others (not unto brother Masons only) as we would they should do unto us? Always, or only when it suits us?

Masonry impresses on us accuracy of word. I do not think too great stress should be laid on this, but it is important. Inaccuracy in word is the root of much evil, and it is symbolic of an inaccurate mind. No one can rely on us if we are inaccurate: and to be implicitly relied on is the greatest compliment I can think of. Where there is a lack of trust—as we see in the world today—peace, love, harmony do not and cannot exist. In our private lives we should do our best to be accurate in word: how much unhappiness is caused by mis-representing the truth—and hence in gossip and slander. Accuracy in word implies that what we say, what we promise, we mean. If we Masons are at all vague as to precisely what we have promised, our duty is to take very simple steps to abolish this vagueness—otherwse, how can we be filled with upright intentions; whereby we hope one day to ascend the eternal mansions above? A Mason, more than others, is to be upright—in thought, word, and deed. "And upon the top of the pillars was lily work: so was the work finished."

Not Conspicuous

You remember that King Solomon spent 20 years erecting a costly and magnificent pile of buildings—one of which was his renounced Temple. This took 6 years to build, yet it was quite small—only 40 yards long in all: but it was a gem of architecture, perfect in all its parts. It was not outstandingly conspicuous among the buildings around it: but neither is God outstandingly conspicuous in the world around us. As was customary in those days, in front of the Temple stood two isolated pillars—emblems of deity. The description of these pillars is rather obscure, as the text is clearly corrupt, but, including the base, each pillar was 35 cubits high (a cubit was 18 inches). These pillars were made of brass, with a smooth surface, except for the top 9 or 10 cubits: this top part was richly carved—with net-work, to symbolize unity, and with pomegranates, the usual emblem of plenty: "the 'chapiters,' (or 'capitals'), that were upon the top of the pillars, were of lily-work." Lilies represented, from their whiteness, peace and purity: both—you cannot have one without the other, in family or in national life.

Likeness of God

Now, though there may be other interpretations, it is quite unquestionable that such pillars in front of a temple were emblems of the deity worshipped in that temple. These two pillars, then, represented God. How? First, they were strong: secondly, they were upright, thirdly, they were beautiful to behold. Is not God strong and upright? Do we not feel that one so good and strong, must indeed be all glorious to behold? Now, in the very beginning of my Bible I read, "And God said, let us make man in our image, after our likeness. So God created man in His own image. God created man; in the likeness of God made He him." Brethren, it is a solemn thought: you and I are made in the image and likeness of God. How rarely do we realize that. Yet we, especially we who are Masons, cannot plead ignorance. The Sacred Writings are to rule and govern our faith. If we really, unostentatiously, yet none the less, sincerely, let them do so, we are on our way to being in the image and likeness of God. For the second part of the V.S.L. tells us how God came on earth to make clear to mankind what God is and what God wishes. You remember those pillars, emblems of God—upright, strong, beautiful: but it was only when the lily-work was added that they were completed. They, too, show us what God is and what God wishes us to be—us, who are in His image and likeness. It is a primary duty to be upright in thought, word and deed—to be true and just in all our dealings: there must be nothing superfluous: the force of conscience must be such as to keep unpolluted our words and actions. We must be strong. We have ideals—we have made promises; we feel pity for one who is weak in mind or body—we perhaps feel contempt for him who is weak in courage. And yet, brethren, have we always the strength to stand up for what we have learnt to be right—I did not say popular, or customary or even harmless—but what is right? Often we pass something over in silence, or with a laugh. 'Peace at any price'—'silence is golden'—no doubt—but do we not put our trust in God?—and let us remember that wherever we are and whatever we do, He is with us, and His all-seeing eye beholds us. Does He find us strong? He alone is our judge.

Third Essential

Lastly—those pillars, upright, strong, were beautiful. A man may be straight in all his dealings, and a pillar of strength on which others may lean; but he may lack the third essential: there may be nothing lovely in him—nothing inspiring in others any feeling connected with love. A brotherhood lacking love (I use the word in its wider sense of genuine affection and regard) is no brotherhood at all.

Our lives must be upright and strong: they also must not be lacking, in love and beauty. Now St. John tells us, God is love, therefore we cannot leave God out of our lives. Yet, I wonder, do we? Our ceremonies so frequently act as reminders—yet—on what do our thoughts dwell? Money, pleasure, popularity, influence—in fact, "these be thy Gods, O Israel," one is often tempted to feel.

Brethren, uprightness and strength do not make our lives complete: there is a third essential; over-ruling all, and above all, is the Almighty Father, in whose image and likeness each one of us is made—God.

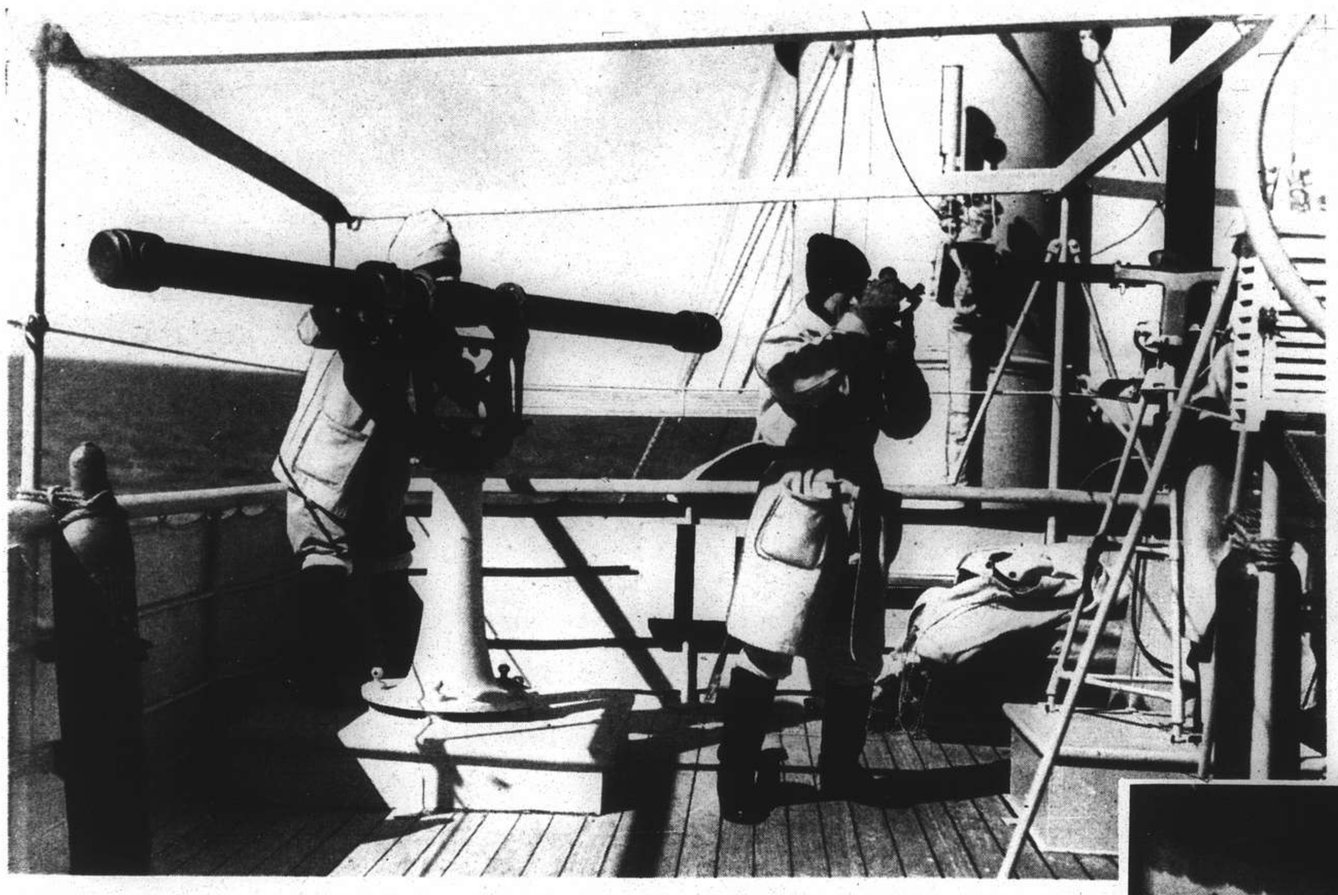
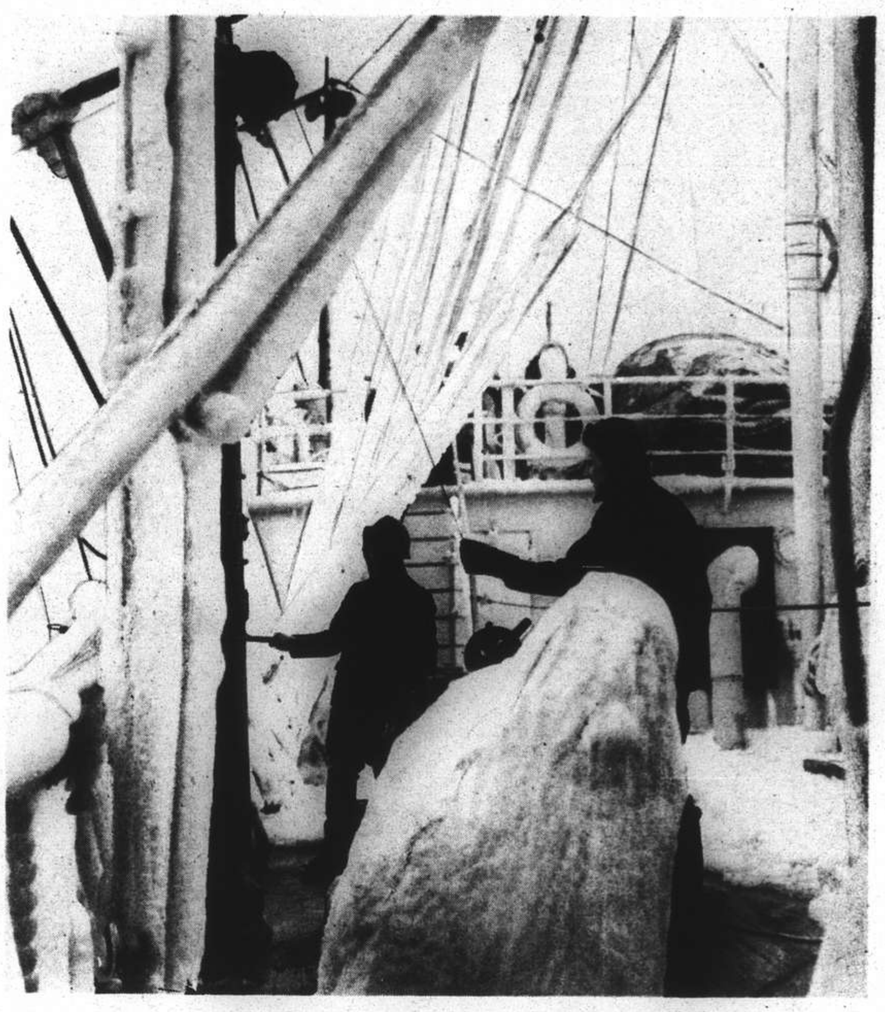
QUITE A CHANGE IN CHAMBERLAIN

Antarctic Ship Home Again

The R.R.S. Discovery II returned to London last month after covering 100,000 miles on her fifth commission to Antarctic waters. The purpose of the trip was a study of the great whales of the Southern Ocean, and in the course of it a circum-polar cruise occupied six months. At one stage a blizzard was encountered which lasted for 12 hours, during which period magnetic compasses were useless. The pictures appearing on this page are official Colonial Office photographs taken during the voyage.

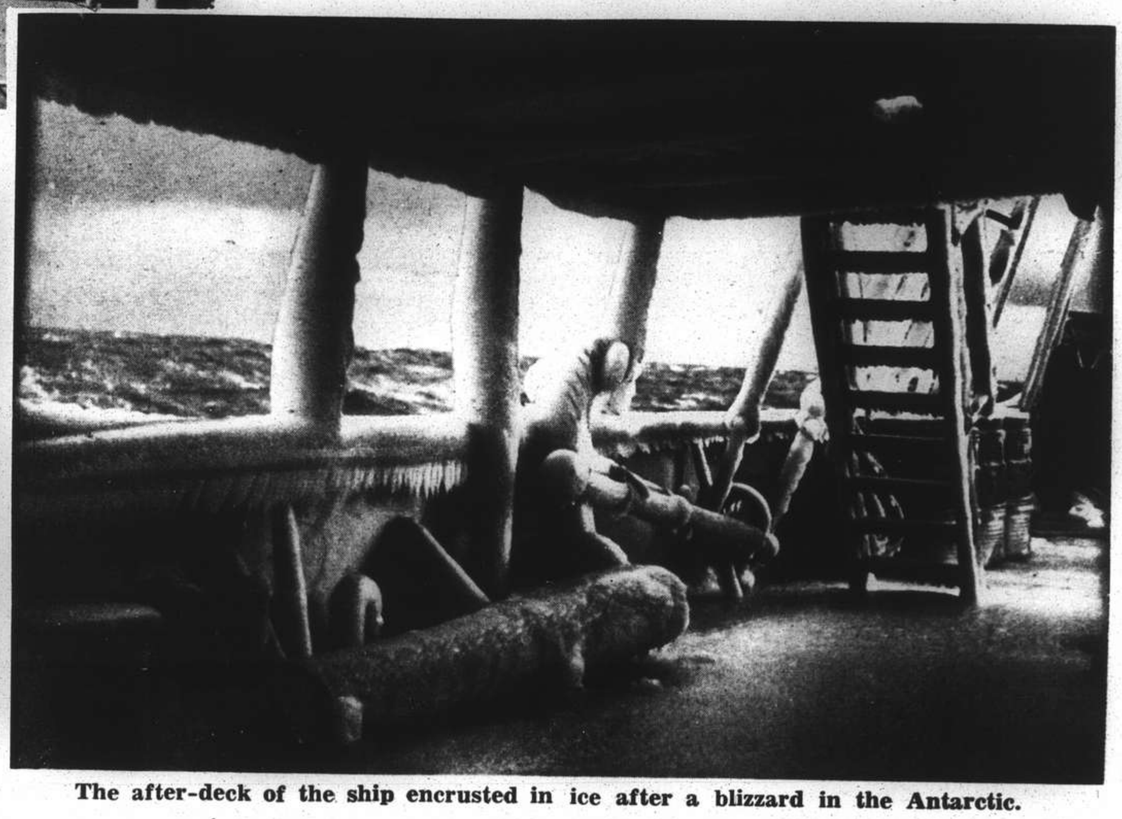


Taking a survey of Ballany Islands from the deck of the Discovery II.

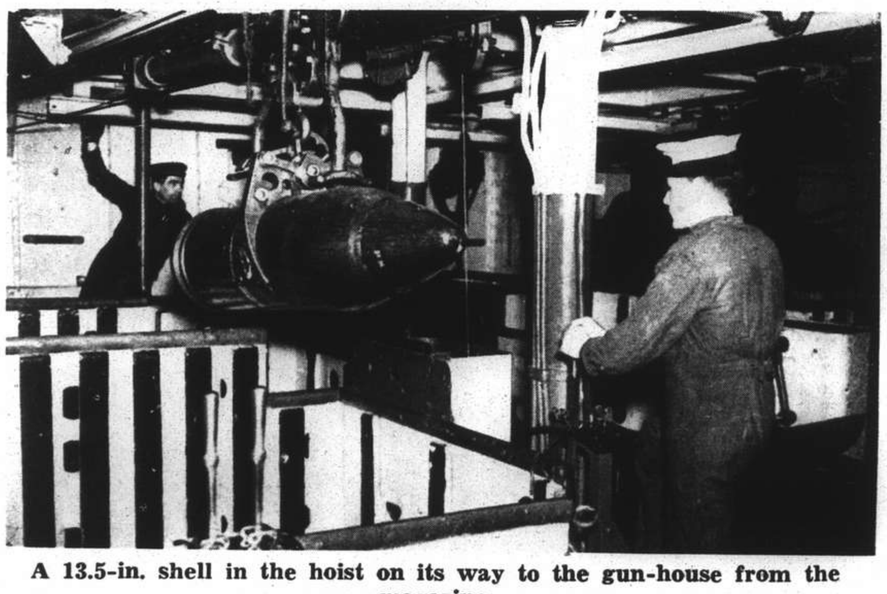


Everything was at times frozen solid.

Members of the crew, of whom there were fifty-two, all British, relax. A scene in the forecastle.



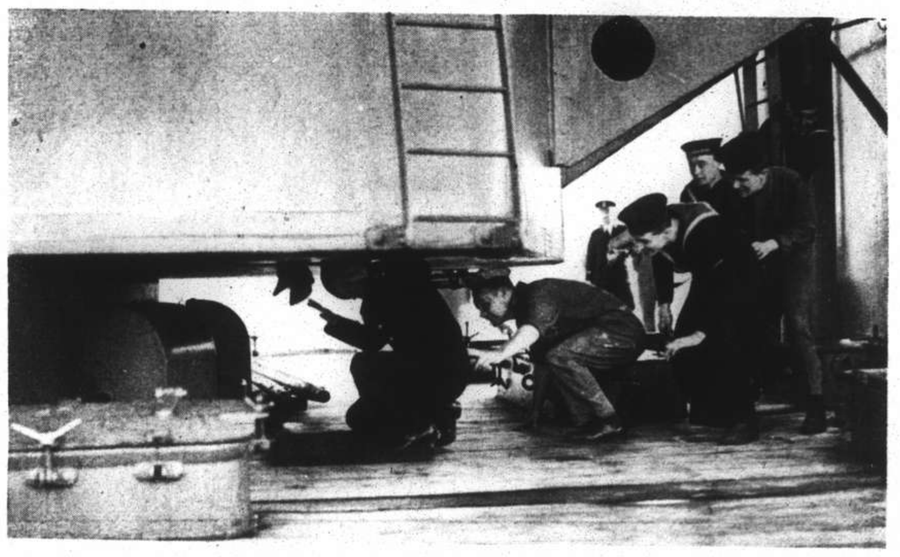
The after-deck of the ship encrusted in ice after a blizzard in the Antarctic.



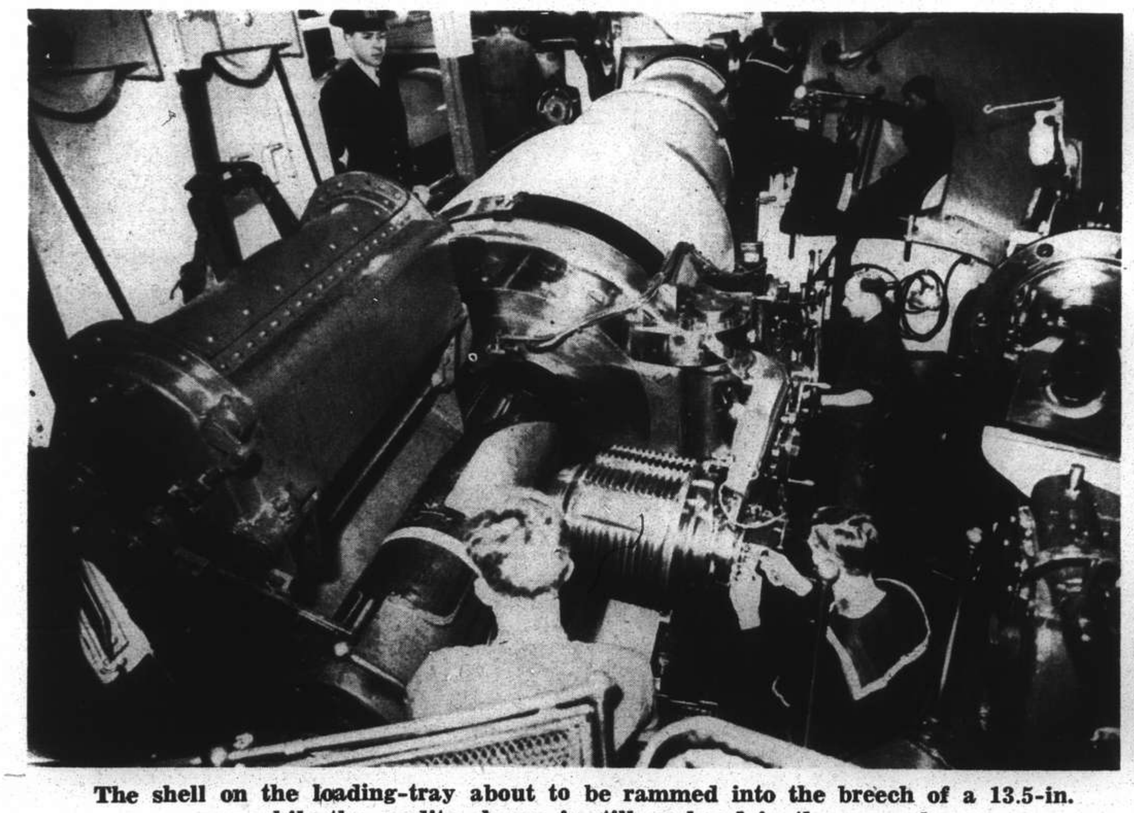
A 13.5-in. shell in the hoist on its way to the gun-house from the magazine.

GUNNERY PRACTICE

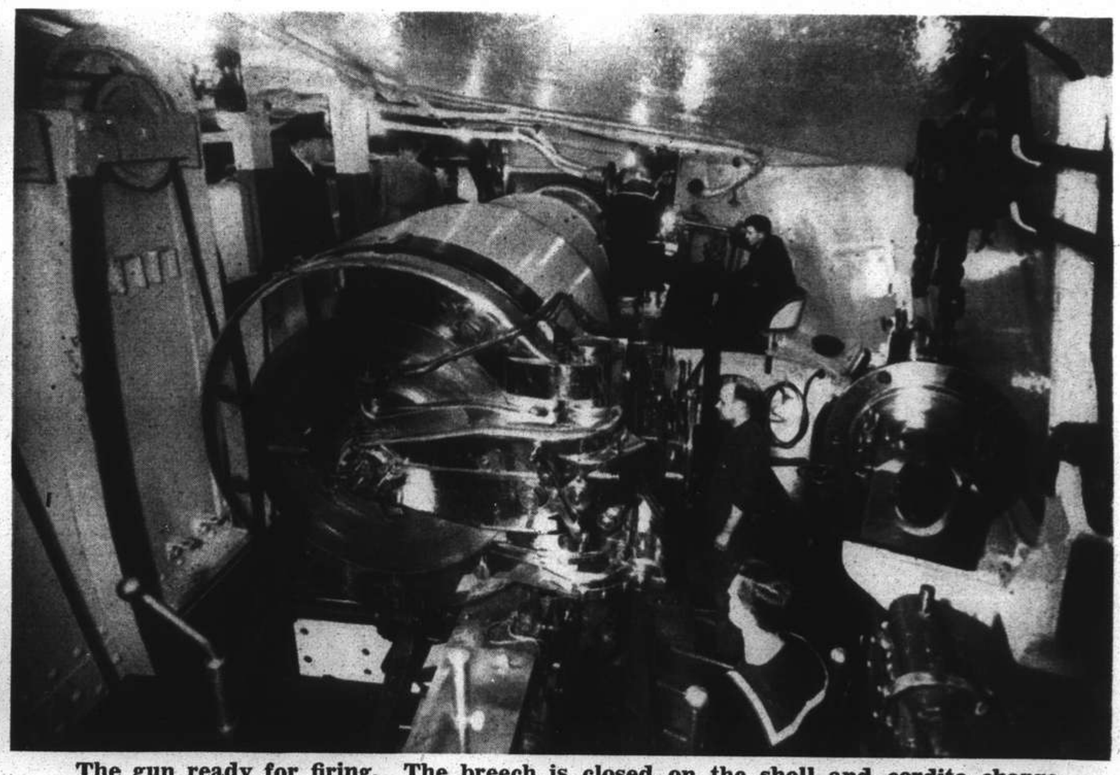
H.M.S. Iron Duke, famous as Lord Jellicoe's flagship in the Grand Fleet during the Great War, was nominated for scrapping under the London Naval Treaty of 1930. She was, however, spared for training purposes and is now stationed at Portsmouth, only putting out to sea for gunnery practice. Photographs show scenes aboard when the 13.5-in. guns, weighing 75 tons each and firing a shell over half-a-ton, with a range of about 12 miles, are used for practice purposes.



Entering the gun-turret by the lower hatch. There is an alternative means of access by the upper hatch.



The shell on the loading-tray about to be rammed into the breech of a 13.5-in. gun while the cordite charge is still enclosed in the cage above.



The gun ready for firing. The breech is closed on the shell and cordite charge, which is detonated by the firing-tube inserted in the breech-block by a member of the crew in the foreground on the right.

Weddings and Other Events

A particularly charming wedding ceremony took place on June 3 at Holy Trinity Cathedral when Miss Anthea Inch, younger daughter of Capt. and Mrs. J. T. Inch of Shanghai, became the bride of Mr. Hermann Aufwerber, son of the late Mr. Alfred Aufwerber and Mrs. Paula Aufwerber of Shanghai. The photograph above shows the newly-married couple after the ceremony.—N.C.D.N.

Primadonna Katherine Orlovskaya, in whose honour the Russian Light Opera Co. will produce "Mlle Nitouche" on June 14, 16 and 18. Mme Orlovskaya will take the leading role in this last production of the season.—Josepho.

Dr. Romolo Angelo (extreme right) was host at a dinner party at the Cathay Tower last Sunday evening. His guests were (l. to r.) Mr. Paul Hsu, Mrs. Connie Pun, the Marquis Taliani, Mrs. Grace Houamphou, Commdr. L. Neyrone. Mr. H. E. Morriss and Mme Conlon.—Lefevre.

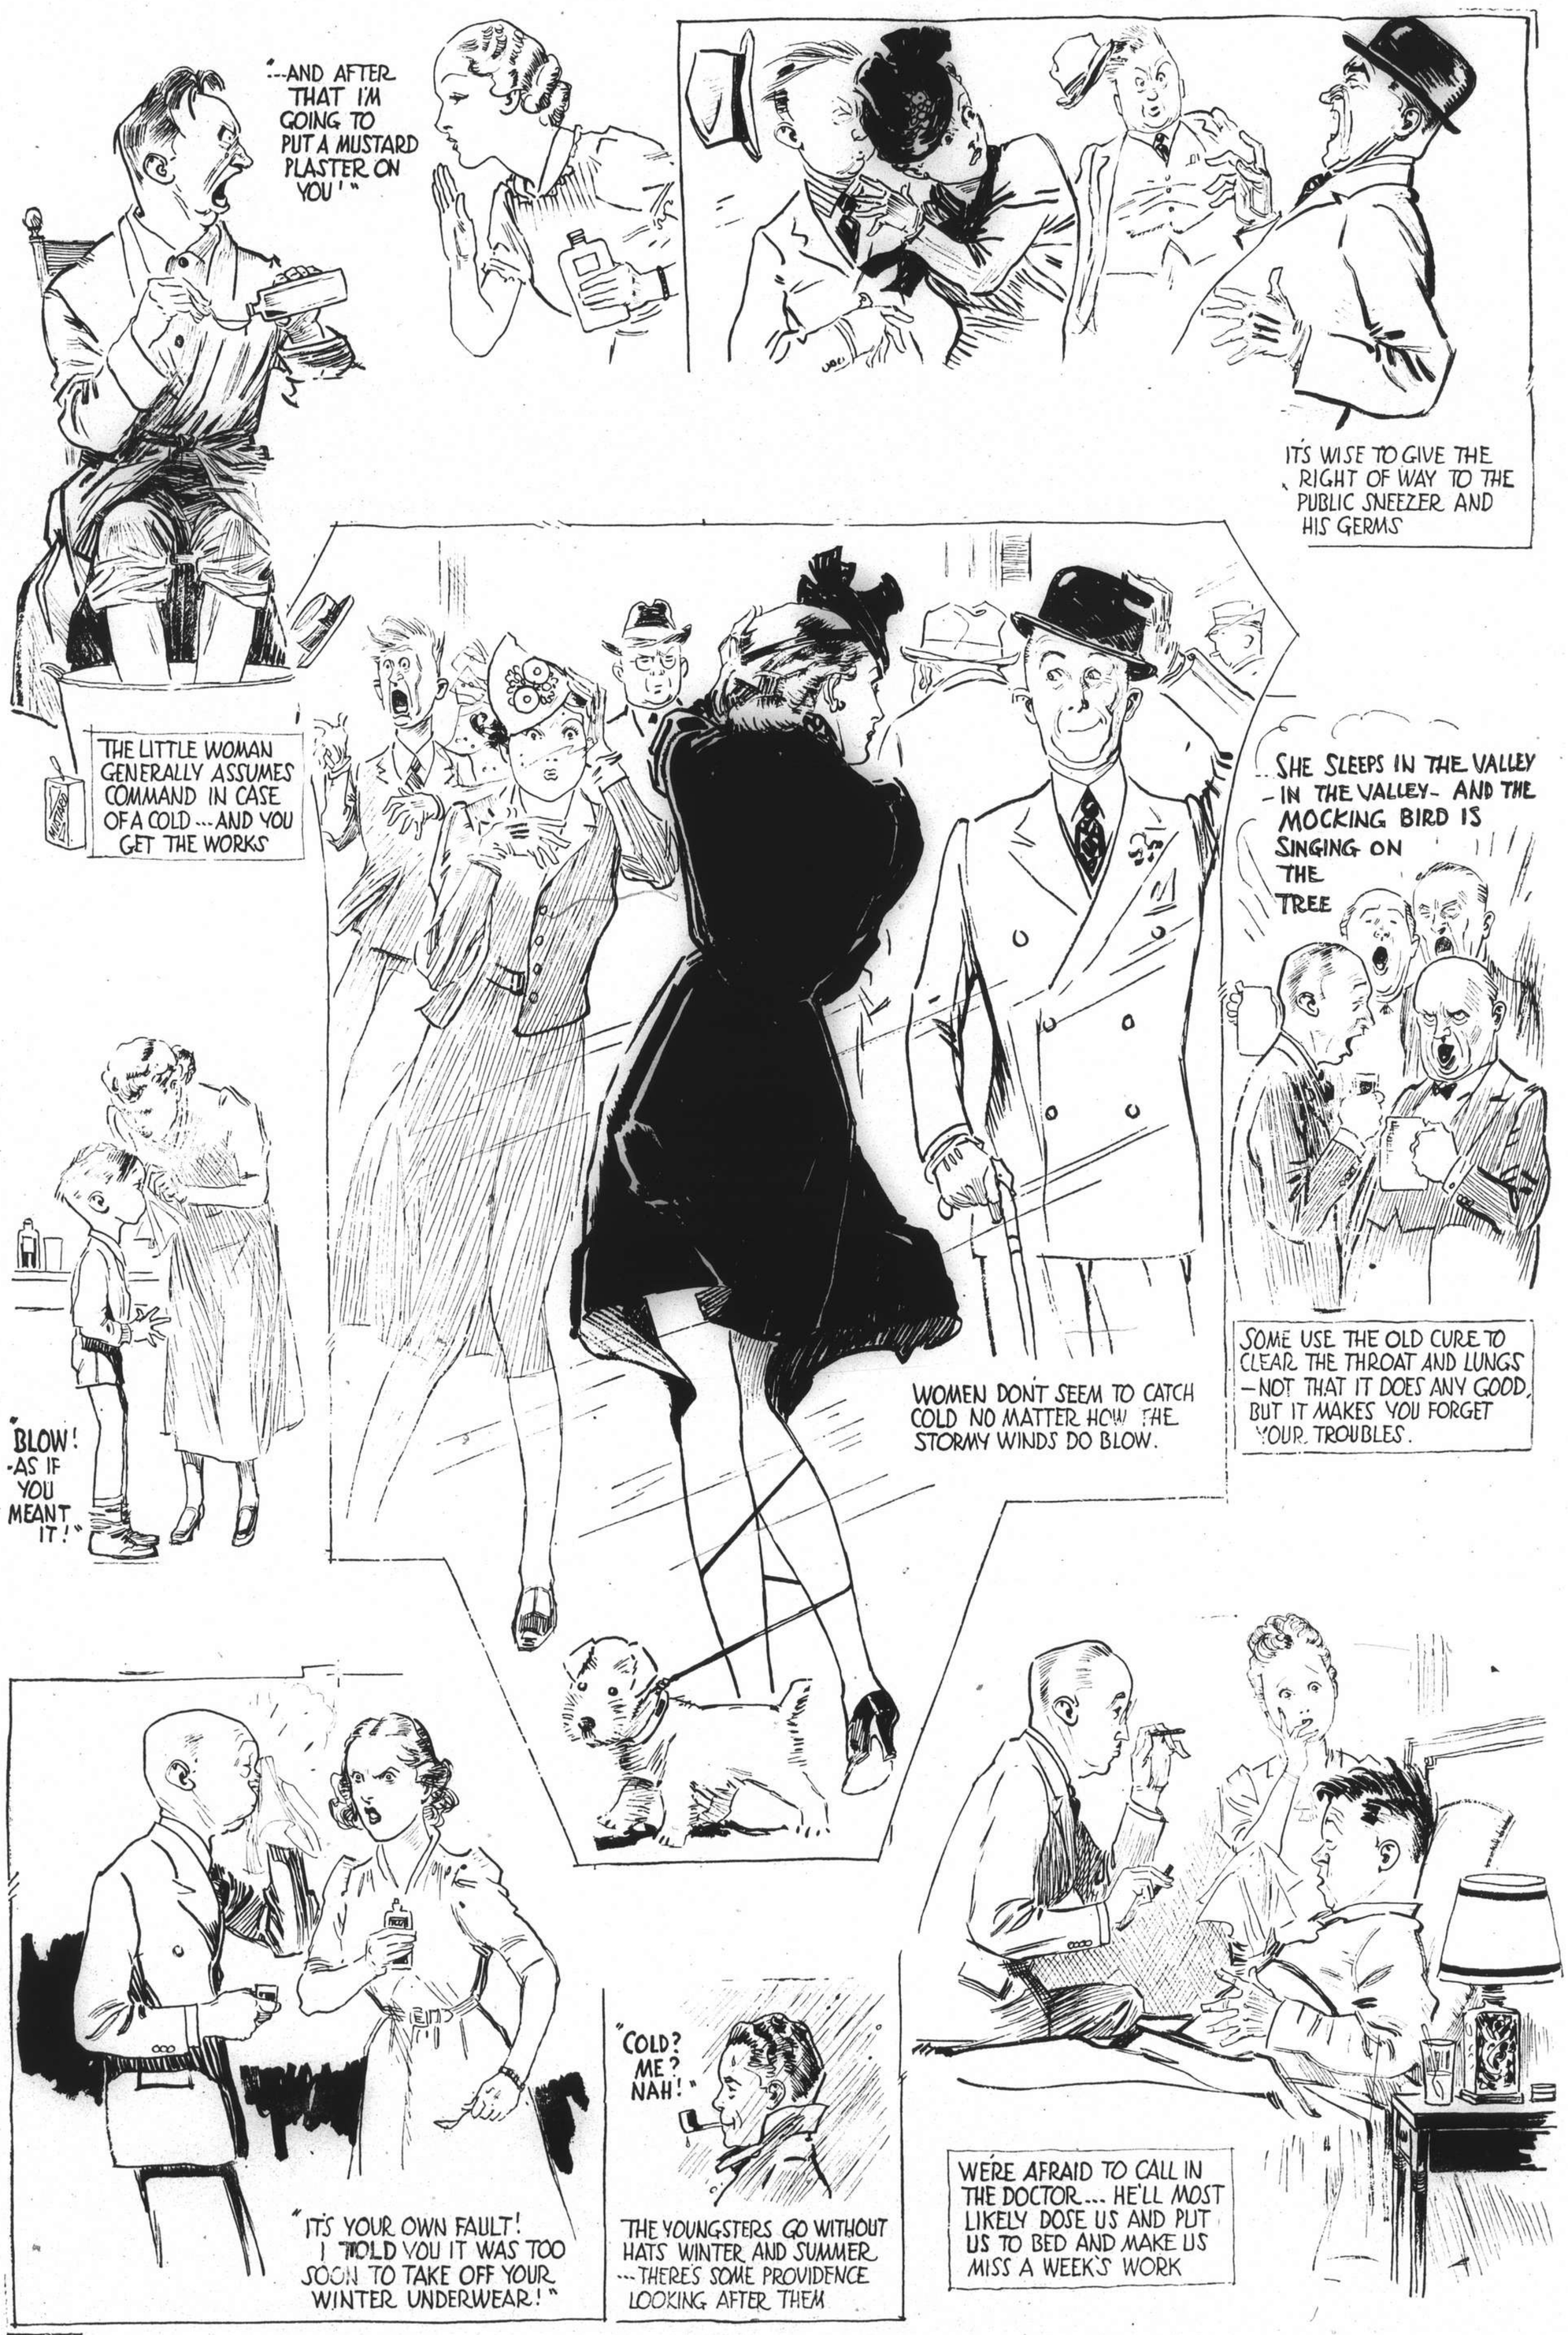
The Simple Cold

VIGNETTES OF LIFE

By J. NORMAN LYND



"--AND AFTER THAT I'M GOING TO PUT A MUSTARD PLASTER ON YOU!"
IT'S WISE TO GIVE THE RIGHT OF WAY TO THE PUBLIC SNEEZER AND HIS GERMS
THE LITTLE WOMAN GENERALLY ASSUMES COMMAND IN CASE OF A COLD ... AND YOU GET THE WORKS
SHE SLEEPS IN THE VALLEY - IN THE VALLEY - AND THE MOCKING BIRD IS SINGING ON THE TREE
WOMEN DON'T SEEM TO CATCH COLD NO MATTER HOW THE STORMY WINDS DO BLOW.
SOME USE THE OLD CURE TO CLEAR THE THROAT AND LUNGS - NOT THAT IT DOES ANY GOOD, BUT IT MAKES YOU FORGET YOUR TROUBLES.
"BLOW! - AS IF YOU MEANT IT!"
"IT'S YOUR OWN FAULT! I TOLD YOU IT WAS TOO SOON TO TAKE OFF YOUR WINTER UNDERWEAR!"
"COLD? ME? NAH!"
THE YOUNGSTERS GO WITHOUT HATS WINTER AND SUMMER ... THERE'S SOME PROVIDENCE LOOKING AFTER THEM
WE'RE AFRAID TO CALL IN THE DOCTOR ... HE'LL MOST LIKELY DOSE US AND PUT US TO BED AND MAKE US MISS A WEEK'S WORK
